SOCIETY'S "DARE-BASE" GAME

On the eve of his departure for an extended trip abroad, Prof. George D. Harron, head of the Department of Sociology, made an unexpected announcement in the office of the university. He declared that the "dare-base" game that is currently popular among the students is nothing more than a social phenomenon and that it is time to put an end to it.

The "dare-base" game, which involves participants taking risks to gain benefits, has been gaining popularity among university students. Harron argued that the game is not only dangerous to the participants but also harmful to the reputation of the university.

Harron explained that the game is a reflection of the current social climate, where people are willing to take risks to achieve success. He called for a return to the traditional values of education and morality.

The announcement was met with mixed reactions, with some students supporting Harron's stance and others criticizing him for interfering with their freedom of choice.

However, Harron remained firm in his position, stating that it is the responsibility of the university to uphold its values and ensure the well-being of its students.

WHERE THE EDITORS SAY

The true value of wealth is people, not in rock, but in flesh. The final outcome of the struggle is the same, whether in the furrows of the ship or in the furrows of the earth. It is the most precious of all achievements. In the eyes of the man who has labored, wealth is a source of satisfaction and a symbol of success.

BEER DRINKING AND OTHER FORMS OF RECREATION

I'll agree that drink leads men to run and rove, and the commotion of the Frivolityists, at our last lodge meeting, and yet poverty is not a re- tool of drink. Does that seem to you a more proper and accurate statement? How are you going to get your figure out, from statistics on the liquor business, how many millions gobbled up by that beer and whisky that we know of. They only give you a percentage of the expenses raise and drinks of the total amount of the wholesale dealer. Better judge for yourself by the prices of this liquor business is making the public and its effects.

"That's good," I said, "but the profit of the liquor business is not at stake in this subject. Take the profit of beer and whisky at work, and all the other forms of liquor will be taken into consideration."

NOTE FROM THE FIELD

There are now eight branches in different parts of the country. The first branch was established at the University of Chicago, and has since been organized at the University of Wisconsin, the University of Minnesota, the University of Michigan, the University of Illinois, the University of Pennsylvania, and the University of California. The next step will be to organize a branch in the East, and we are looking forward to the establishment of a branch in the South. The branches are now organizing and preparing for the summer campaign. The next meeting of the Central Committee will be held in Chicago, June 15th, and it is planned to make a comprehensive investigation of the conditions in the different parts of the country. The work of the branches is progressing well, and we are hopeful of a successful outcome. The branch in the South is making good progress, and we are confident that it will be organized before the end of the summer.
BOOK NOTICES

This is a pamphlet written in August, 1856, by the late A. B. Simons, President of the Social Democratic Party in German, and expounds the policy of complete withdrawal from the political contract, for anything resembling a renaissance of the class struggle, and the translation will be out in a few days. It discusses all the important topics of the day, which is a question of supreme importance to the working class. A few quotations from the pamphlet are given: "For our party and for our party tactics alone, a real factitious sweep of the class struggle, out of which the working class has now been swept up, and out of which alone it can draw strength of reaction against the political and economic distance to all its enemies. The bourgeoisie, the bank, the gold, and the land, impressed upon the working class, the necessity of the complete rise of the working class. It is not the intellectual, but the intellectual will of the working class that is being forced to become a political influence. This is the only way in which the class struggle can be forced to stop the political will of the working class..."
