LET THEM PAY.

A special "reader's answer" which gives the results of an interview of one of the leaders of the Wisconsin farmers' movement, during which he expressed the opinion that the "suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.

The reader states that "the suffering of the taxpayer" might be remedied by the increase in the prices of farm products. But we find that the increase in the prices of farm products will not be sufficient to remedy the situation.
Herald's Bureau Report

A Credit and Help to the Cause.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 15, 1901.

The Social Democratic Herald:

At the last meeting of the New Jersey State Campaign Committee it was moved and carried that your kind offer to donate 500 copies of The Herald to our committee be accepted and that 50 copies be extended to the public at six for six cents.

You should feel proud of your paper as now issued. It is both a credit and a help to the cause, and many favorable comments are heard.

Fraternally yours,

M. M. GOEBEL,
Acting State Secretary,
14 Bridge St.

Machinery and Division of Labor.

The present prosperity which has the entire laboring class of today in its grasp is essentially the result of the increased efficiency and production that have been brought about by the improved and increased division of labor and machinery. The division of labor is the foundation of all manufacturing and of all productive activity.

Two Theories of Government.

Roosevelt and the Negro.

Roosevelt's War on the Paper Mill

The Place of Labor.

We have passed the period of workman's compensation, and we have a new era of finding work and living conditions for the workers.

Republican Patron at the Convention.

This Republican tutelage in the world, and the organs that represent the Republican party, as the mouthpiece of the workers, are conducting a new era of politics.

We have passed the period of the political machine, and the workers are the new era of work and living conditions for the workers.

The Place of Labor.

We have passed the period of workman's compensation, and we have a new era of finding work and living conditions for the workers.

Republican Patron at the Convention.

This Republican tutelage in the world, and the organs that represent the Republican party, as the mouthpiece of the workers, are conducting a new era of politics.

We have passed the period of the political machine, and the workers are the new era of work and living conditions for the workers.

The Place of Labor.

We have passed the period of workman's compensation, and we have a new era of finding work and living conditions for the workers.

Republican Patron at the Convention.

This Republican tutelage in the world, and the organs that represent the Republican party, as the mouthpiece of the workers, are conducting a new era of politics.

We have passed the period of the political machine, and the workers are the new era of work and living conditions for the workers.

The Place of Labor.

We have passed the period of workman's compensation, and we have a new era of finding work and living conditions for the workers.

Republican Patron at the Convention.

This Republican tutelage in the world, and the organs that represent the Republican party, as the mouthpiece of the workers, are conducting a new era of politics.

We have passed the period of the political machine, and the workers are the new era of work and living conditions for the workers.

The Place of Labor.

We have passed the period of workman's compensation, and we have a new era of finding work and living conditions for the workers.

Republican Patron at the Convention.

This Republican tutelage in the world, and the organs that represent the Republican party, as the mouthpiece of the workers, are conducting a new era of politics.

We have passed the period of the political machine, and the workers are the new era of work and living conditions for the workers.

The Place of Labor.

We have passed the period of workman's compensation, and we have a new era of finding work and living conditions for the workers.
BARABOO'S-
MODERN INSTANCE.

The Health and Livelihood of an Entire Community in Wisconsin Perpetuated by the Greed of a Private Corporation.

A. H. BURK.
Secretary of

[Text continues with various articles and columns, including: The Termination of a Career, Grouch Urged to Become a Prominent Citizen, and Book Notices.]