THE INCREASE OF SUICIDE.

Life and Death.

By Howard Adams.

One of the most tragic forms of death is suicide, which is as common as suicide itself. A great increase of suicide has been noticed in recent years. The greatest number of suicides occur during the winter months, when the temperature is the lowest. In the United States, the suicide rate is highest in the eastern states, especially in New York and Massachusetts. The rate is lower in the western states, where the climate is milder.

An Industrial Paradox.

When more factories being turned into homes, more people are removing Profits from factories. The paradox is that while factories are being turned into homes, the factory workers are turning to suicide. This is because the workers are left without a source of income and they feel helpless and hopeless. Suicide is a way for them to escape the problems they face in life.
