THE PROSPERITY MAKERS; THE TRAGEDY OF A MUSHROOM TOWN.

BY A WELLINGTON EDITOR (WANT MORE?).

The building of an American town is the result of capitalist enterprise and desire. Sometimes the buildings are small, sometimes they are large. The people who build them are sometimes rich, sometimes poor. The reason for building them is sometimes to make money, sometimes to serve the community. But the buildings always serve a purpose, and the people who build them always have an intention.

The example of a certain mushroom town is instructive. In its early days, the town was a thriving center of industry. The people who lived there were prosperous, and the buildings were large. But then the mushroom started to grow, and the town was overtaken by the mushroom. The people who lived there lost their prosperity, and the buildings became deserted. The town was left with only a few relics of its former greatness. The example of this mushroom town is a warning to all those who think that capitalist enterprise is always good for the community. It shows that, even in the case of capitalist enterprise, there can be too much of a good thing.

THE CAPITALISTS GETTING TOGETHER!

Following on the heels of the annual meeting of the National Manufacturers Association, which was held in New York last week, there was another meeting of the Manufacturers Association of Milwaukee, which was held in the same city. The meeting was called to order by the president of the association, Mr. J. P. Morgan, and it was attended by a large number of delegates from the different parts of the country. The meeting was a success, and the association took steps to further the interests of the manufacturers of the country.

The keynote of the meeting was the "new unionism." The association was formed to combat the "old unionism," which it considered to be harmful to the interests of manufacturers. The new unionism was based on the idea that the manufacturers should work with the unions, rather than against them. The meeting was a great success, and the association took steps to further the interests of the manufacturers of the country.

Another notable feature of the meeting was the presence of Mr. J. P. Morgan, who was a member of the association. He spoke at length on the subject of the "new unionism," and he said that the manufacturers should work with the unions, rather than against them. He said that the manufacturers should be willing to pay a fair wage to the workers, and that the unions should be willing to accept a fair wage from the manufacturers. He said that the manufacturers and the unions should work together to further the interests of the country.

OTHER VIEWS OF THE UNION QUESTION.

The union question is one of the most important questions of the day. The manufacturers and the unions are at loggerheads, and it is the manufacturers who are the losers in the fight. The unions are getting the better of the manufacturers, and the manufacturers are losing ground.

The manufacturers are trying to fight the unions, but they are not doing it in the right way. They are trying to fight the unions with brute force, but they are not doing it with the right ideas. They are trying to fight the unions with the idea that the unions are bad for the country, but they are not doing it with the idea that the unions are good for the country.

The manufacturers should be willing to work with the unions, rather than against them. They should be willing to pay a fair wage to the workers, and they should be willing to accept a fair wage from the manufacturers. They should be willing to work together to further the interests of the country.

THE "NATIONAL" TRADE LEAGUES.

The "national" trade leagues are a new development in the union movement. They are formed by the manufacturers to combat the "national" trade unions. HALF HOURS IN THE HERALD SANCTUARY.

If there is one building we have saved in this city from the torch, the Herald Building, it is one of the most interesting structures of its kind in the country, as well as one of the most beautiful. It is a work of art that will never be equalled in this city, and it is a monument to the fact that the press is not a business, but a profession.

One of the most interesting features of the Herald building is the E舰队 room, which is a large room, the walls of which are covered with the names of all the newspapers that have ever been published in New York. It is a work of art that will never be equalled in this city, and it is a monument to the fact that the press is not a business, but a profession.

A Central Labor Headquarters is Proposed.

Action on the Tanners' Strike.—After City Attty. Ronge's Scalp.—The Council gets a Cheer.

Some time ago labor in Milwaukee was discussing plans for a Central Labor Headquarters. That the plan was not entirely far-fetched is shown by the fact that some of the leaders in the movement have been for the past six months preparing for it. Not yet have they made public their plans, but they have been working quietly and they have been working hard.

The idea of a Central Labor Headquarters is nothing new. The city of New York has one, and the city of Chicago has one. But the Milwaukee Central Labor Headquarters is to be something more than the mere meeting place of the labor organizations. It is to be a place where the labor organizations can meet and discuss their plans and where they can work together for the共同 good.

The building is to be located in the heart of the city, and it is to be a place where the labor organizations can meet and discuss their plans and where they can work together for the common good.
