HALF HOURS IN THE HERALD SANCTUM.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 9.—To the Herald: A newspaper man made a statement today that "if it’s right or ought to be, the present form of American life is the wage system for labor. The wages of labor are paid in goods and services rather than money, and the workers are the owners of the goods and services they produce." This statement is not accurate. The wages of labor are paid in money, not goods and services. The workers are not the owners of the goods and services they produce. The profits of the employers are used to pay for the wages of labor.
