WHAT SHALL WE DO WITH OUR YANKIE LAWYERS!!

THEY HAVE BECOME THE ENEMIES OF THE PEOPLE AND THE BULWARK OF CORRUPTED CAPITALISM.

(Shamed E. Moffett in Collier's)

For some time I have suspected a general discontent upon "Lawyers." I am beginning to feel the fact that the chief bulwark of corruption in our government was the creation of a class of perverts of the public mind, to the brains of the highest bidder, the result of pressure requiring that he hold that the nobility of the public and the admiration of its servants. Among other things, Professor H. L. Mencken in his "The American Language" has a most interesting discussion on the subject of the corruption of the public mind by the bar. I quote:

"...the American public is in the hands of the lawyers, both in and out of court, and his legal education is his first public education. To be sure, as he puts it, "the lawyer's true education began when he entered the University," which is a reasonable statement. But his first public education is the legal education, and he is a true student of the legal profession. There is no other institution that can compete with the bar. In fact, it is the only one that can compete with the bar..."

The legal profession is one of the most powerful in the United States and the legal education is a public education. The legal profession is the most educated of our institutions and the legal education is the most important of our public education. The legal profession is the most influential of our institutions and the legal education is the most powerful of our public education.

For some reason these remarks are often found in law books. I do not, however, think that they are as good as the following passage, which I think is a good description of the legal profession in its public relations:

"The lawyer's first public education is the legal education. He is a true student of the law. He is the most educated of our institutions. He is the most influential of our institutions. He is the most powerful of our institutions.

"...the lawyer is the most powerful institution in the United States. He is the most powerful of our institutions. He is the most powerful of our public institutions. He is the most powerful of our public education. He is the most powerful of our public information. He is the most powerful of our public knowledge. He is the most powerful of our public opinion. He is the most powerful of our public action. He is the most powerful of our public society. He is the most powerful of our public life. He is the most powerful of our public thought. He is the most powerful of our public feeling. He is the most powerful of our public emotion. He is the most powerful of our public feeling.

"A woman is entitled to as much respect as a man. This is a point which should be understood by all."

This is the spirit of the new movement for the advancement of women. It is not only the right of women to be treated with equal respect, but it is also an obligation of society to see that they are so treated.

A woman should not be looked upon as inferior to a man, but as equal in all respects. She should be allowed to take part in all the activities of life, and to share in all the responsibilities.
