"Great" Sam Gompers!

By Victor L. Berger.

O NLY six months ago Congress gave the American Federation of Labor, Mr. Samuel Gompers, as a Christmas present, the6th highest position in our country. He was named chairman of a committee of nine men to perfect a bill providing for the establishment of a bureau of labor statistics and a commission of eight men to study the question of labor legislation. But long before that date Mr. Gompers anticipated the honor. A year ago he told the credit men of America that he expected to be "great." He declared that if the labor movement was going to get anywhere it must be through a man of high position. He added: "I don’t mean a man of high position in politics, but a man of high position in society."

The contest of 1898 was chiefly a contest of ideas, and it was Mr. Gompers who was the great idea man of that campaign. He was the one man who was able to sum up the situation so that the ordinary working man could understand it. He was the one man who was able to interpret the situation in a way that would make the working man believe in the justice of the cause. He was the one man who was able to make the working man feel that he was not alone in his struggle. He was the one man who was able to make the working man believe that he was part of a great organization, that he was part of a movement that had a mission. And the result was that the working man rushed to the polls and voted for the ideas presented by Mr. Gompers.

The result of the election was a great victory for Mr. Gompers. He was returned to his position as the head of the labor movement. He was returned to his position as the leader of the working man. And he was returned to his position as the great idea man. He was returned to his position as the man who could interpret the situation in a way that would make the working man believe in the justice of the cause. He was returned to his position as the man who could make the working man feel that he was not alone in his struggle. He was returned to his position as the man who could make the working man believe that he was part of a great organization, that he was part of a movement that had a mission.

Patterson's Straight Talk!

TRADES UNIONS AND POLITICAL PARTIES.
BY AUGUST BEBEL

In order to meeting the special interests of the only great unorganized power in the country, no union can be tolerated, and the only method by which the power of the working man can be increased, is to bring the industrial masses of the country into the worker's unions. The working man does not have the power to organize; he must be organized. Today, more than ever, the working man is in a position to control the future.

XLVI. FOR A 'THAT' AT A 'THAT'—Robert Burns.

Prominent

But let all the wretched thistles

Be cast upon the sea,

And let the proud, the rich, and mighty

Be left to quarrel in their dreams.

The man's the groom for a that.

What though on human face we see

The outward semblance of a man;

Go forth and seek the hidden win-

Dows, and he can work as well as

The master of the field.

Their time shall come, as a' that:

The hig' and proud, the wealt'

and might,

It's comin' yet, for a that.

Half Hours in the Herald Sanctum.

Correspondents.

As in "Unity" Peters.

To the Editor: This letter is a tentative report of the 1917

eighth annual meeting in Topeka,

Kans., and it will be followed by

other reports of the same nature.

The object of the annual conference

is, as one of those on the program,

somewhat those on the page above,

but in a different form of interest

in three words: collective ownership.

The first resolution, "Resolved, That we recommend to the members of our parties that they renounce the creed of ownership of the whole labor union" was voted

by a large majority in favor of the clause, or at least it is shown that the question is in favor of the

unionist party, as the total number of votes cast on the question is

overwhelmingly in favor of the unionist party. This resolution is to be read as the report of the first resolution of the annual meeting of the National Socialist Labor Union of Kansas.

The second resolution is that of the unionist party in favor of the unionist party as the total number of votes cast on the question is overwhelmingly

in favor of the unionist party.

But as a matter of fact, both parts of the same nature in favor of the unionist party

as the total number of votes

cast on the question is overwhelmingly

in favor of the unionist party.

The third resolution must be read as the report of the

unionist party as the total number

of votes cast on the question

is overwhelmingly in favor of the unionist party.

In 1894, the total number of votes cast on the question was

overwhelmingly in favor of the unionist party. But as a matter of fact, the result was a complete

victory for the unionist party

as the total number of votes

cast on the question was overwhelmingly

in favor of the unionist party.

ORGANIZED LABOR

The Labor Section reported that the members of the Federated Trades Council were appointed to attend the general meeting of the General Federation of Labor this week to consider matters of general interest.

The new rule that had been implemented required that all standing committees be abolished. However, it was noted that the rule had been successfully enforced and that the new system was working well.

The Labor Section was informed that the labor movement had made significant progress in the past year. The labor movement had gained new members and had increased its influence in the community. The Labor Section was also informed that the labor movement had been successful in organizing new industries and had been successful in improving the working conditions of its members.

The Labor Section was informed that the new labor law had been successful in protecting the rights of workers. The law had been implemented in a way that had been fair to both employers and workers. The Labor Section was informed that the labor movement had been successful in organizing new industries and had been successful in improving the working conditions of its members.

WONDERLAND.
The six flying Bazaar's have arrived.

The first wintering of the Christmas season at Wonderland during the past few weeks has been of great interest to all who know the park and its activities. Many of the entertainments which were so successful last year have been repeated, and new ones added. The park is now closed for the summer season, but it will be reopened in the fall.

The most important attraction is the new Children's Park, which will be the South African and the Chinese Tower. In the Children's Park, which is situated in the center of the park, visitors may make arrangements for a ride on the train or the electric car. The children's rides are safe and fun for all ages.

The story of the Children's Park was told by Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Griffith, who have been in charge of the park for the past three years.

Chef Jansen Loses His Lid

Chief of police John T. Jansen has lost his lid. He has been absent from the police station several days. On Sunday he was on the street, saying that it was a good man who was at the mercy of a bad mob, and that they were going to have the police chief there. On Monday, he said he was glad he had the police chief there, because he was present to interfere—the chief of police. On Wednesday, he said he was looking forward to the day when the chief of police would be there to protect the town. On Thursday, he said he was glad he had the police chief there, because he was present to interfere—the chief of police. On Friday, he said he was looking forward to the day when the chief of police would be there to protect the town.

When the Mayor's Probate Court decided in favor of the city, the chief of police was absent. He had been out of town for several days. He had been away to take care of some business in the city. When he returned, he was surprised to find that the chief of police was no longer there. He had been removed from his position by the Probate Court.

The chief of police had been doing a good job. He had been popular with the people. He had been respected by the other police officers. He had been a good friend to the city. When he left, the people were very sad. The police officers were sad, too. They knew they would miss him.
