ORGANIZED HERALD

September. A banner for Labor is being carried by the United Auto Workers today at the groundbreaking ceremony for a new facility. The union's delegate reported that negotiations for the new plant are progressing smoothly without any major disruptions.

The Executive Board also made it clear that the strike action remains on hold until further notice. The board emphasized the importance of maintaining good relations with the management, especially during the critical stages of the negotiations.

Local Labor Notes: The Building Trades Council and Local 750 announced that they had reached a tentative agreement for the ongoing negotiations. The union's officers expressed satisfaction with the progress made so far and emphasized the need for continued vigilance to ensure the workers' rights are protected.

Still another strike? The Editorial Board of the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel has also weighed in on the situation, arguing that the strike may be longer than anticipated. The paper urges both parties to engage in meaningful dialogue to prevent prolonged disruptions.

The Milwaukee Labor Herald reports on the Milwaukee union body's call for a strike, which has been met with mixed reactions. The union's leaders stress the importance of readiness, while cautioning against unwarranted panic.

Local News: The Wisconsin State Federation of Labor is organizing a series of public hearings on working conditions in the state's industries. The federation calls for more comprehensive laws to protect workers' rights.
