Some Current Comment

The sudden development of the recent Austrian elections has once more emphasized the importance of the workers' movement. The results have been a victory for the working class and a defeat for the bourgeoisie and reactionaries. The working class has once more shown its strength and determination. The Social Democratic Party has secured a large majority in the Diet, and the workers have gained a foothold in the government. The workers are now in a position to demand the abolition of the monarchy, the establishment of a republic, and the workers' control of the state. The workers are determined to fight for their rights and to establish a socialist society. The workers are ready to sacrifice everything for the工人阶级的胜利。
HAYWOOD TRIAL BEGINS AT BOISE!

The trial of John L. Haywood, held in Boise, Idaho, was a significant event in the labor movement, marking the beginning of a period of intense struggle for worker's rights and free speech. Haywood, a prominent labor leader, was charged with violating the state's anti-Communist law, which made it a crime to aid or support any organization deemed to be subversive. The trial was closely watched by labor activists across the United States, as it set a precedent for the treatment of labor leaders and the limits of free speech in the context of the Red Scare.

The Social Democratic program, in its acceptance of cooperation, recognizes the necessity of industrial unity. It is the duty of all Social Democrats to work for the establishment of a government of the people, by the people, for the people. This includes the cooperation of the laboring classes in the conduct of public affairs. The Social Democratic program also emphasizes the need for the immediate abolition of the wage system and the establishment of a system of social insurance.

The Tenents of Social Democracy:

1. The abolition of the wage system.
2. The establishment of a system of social insurance.
3. The immediate abolition of all forms of executive and legislative power.
4. The establishment of a socialist republic.

9. The immediate abolition of all forms of executive and legislative power.
10. The establishment of a system of social insurance.

The Social Democratic program further emphasizes the need for the immediate abolition of the wage system and the establishment of a system of social insurance. It also recognizes the necessity of industrial unity and the cooperation of the laboring classes in the conduct of public affairs. The Social Democratic program is a call to action for all Social Democrats to work towards the establishment of a government of the people, by the people, for the people.
IS SOCIALISM A THIEVES GAME?

IS THE STATE TO PLUNDER THE INDIVIDUAL?

A London Writer Asserts That Questions and Shows That Social-Democratic Societies for All People in Russia Must All Have The Weals They Produce.

By H. R. SUTTON

One of the arguments favored by the advocates of certain opinions of Socialist's in Russia, is the charge that Socialism is robbery. They talk of Socialism as the "predatory party" and "the party of confiscation." They are the enemies of all classes of people who use this argument.

First, those who use it, because they are entirely ignorant of the essence of Socialism, of the meaning of Socialism; of the way in which it works, whether in Russia, especially under the unserious, and bad conditions.

A writer in the Hibernian (Eng.) paper said recently, "Socialism is the party of the prey and the plunderer, with a hundred dollars in the bank or a house of cards in the hand." He concluded by adding that the "accursed policy of economic parasitism" was likely to be successful long as human nature is what it is, Socialism, according to him, means, means to devastate and profit at the expense of others.

According to the other view, the Socialists are the advocates of the property and advantages of an individual.

The writer mentioned, "The chart expresses the intensity of the Socialist movement. It is not at all a question of the cost of those who do not labor.

I propose to show that (1) Socialism is the party of the prey and the plunderer, as is the capitalist system, and (2) Socialism is incapable of out-thinking even the worst of the socialists, as is the capitalist system.

The object of Socialism, as stated by the author, is the ownership and enjoyment of the property and advantages of others. The Socialists, he said, to their own credit, are not to be imputed with a semblance of the party of the prey and plunderer.

There is a saying that "if a man builds a house, he builds it for himself." But, according to the author, if a man builds a house, he builds it for himself and for his family. According to him, the Socialists, they say, are those who have nothing to do with the property of others, as is the case with the capitalist system.

The author asserts that Socialism is a party of the prey and plunderer, as is the capitalist system, and that the Socialists, in their own right, are not to be imputed with any semblance of the party of the prey and plunderer.

The Socialists, he said, "are not to be imputed with a semblance of the party of the prey and plunderer," as is the case with the capitalist system.

THE MATERIAL BASIS OF MORALS ILLUSTRATED.

The material basis of morals is illustrated by the fact that the poor and the rich differ in their values. The poor see the world in terms of scarcity, while the rich see it in terms of abundance. The poor are forced to deal with the necessities of life, while the rich can afford to ignore them. The poor are therefore more likely to be moral in their actions, as they must consider the consequences of their actions on those around them.

Half Hours in the Herald Sanctuary.

In the sanctuary of the Herald, evenings are a time for relaxation and reflection. The noise and chaos of the city fade away, replaced by the soothing sound of paper being turned and the soft murmur of voices engaged in conversation. It is a place of sanctuary, a respite from the stresses of daily life.

A visit to the sanctuary is like a visit to a library, only more exciting. The shelves are filled with the latest news and information, and the people are as eager to learn as the children in a library.
