The most important point in the discussion of this subject is the practical importance equal to that of any other subject, and the importance of this subject to the practical importance of doctors. The subject is of great importance to doctors, as it affects their practice, and the object of the paper is to give the practical importance of the subject to the doctors.

The practical importance of this subject is, first, that it affects the practice of doctors. It is of great importance to doctors to know what is the best way to practice. For example, if a doctor is not satisfied with his practice, he may change his methods, and perhaps get better results. If a doctor is satisfied with his practice, he may continue to practice in the same way.

Secondly, the practical importance of this subject is, that it affects the health of the people. If a doctor is not satisfied with his practice, he may change his methods, and perhaps get better results. If a doctor is satisfied with his practice, he may continue to practice in the same way.

Thirdly, the practical importance of this subject is, that it affects the economy of the country. If a doctor is not satisfied with his practice, he may change his methods, and perhaps get better results. If a doctor is satisfied with his practice, he may continue to practice in the same way.

Fourthly, the practical importance of this subject is, that it affects the political economy of the country. If a doctor is not satisfied with his practice, he may change his methods, and perhaps get better results. If a doctor is satisfied with his practice, he may continue to practice in the same way.

Fifthly, the practical importance of this subject is, that it affects the social economy of the country. If a doctor is not satisfied with his practice, he may change his methods, and perhaps get better results. If a doctor is satisfied with his practice, he may continue to practice in the same way.

In conclusion, the practical importance of this subject is, that it affects the practical importance of doctors, the health of the people, the economy of the country, the political economy of the country, and the social economy of the country. If a doctor is not satisfied with his practice, he may change his methods, and perhaps get better results. If a doctor is satisfied with his practice, he may continue to practice in the same way.
