STAR SPANGLED BANNER
OR THE GREEN DRAGON?

By Victor L. Berger

An item on the first page of the Milwaukee Sentinel says:

"The new national anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner," has been made the official war song of the United States armed forces."

There is a still more interesting item, which is much more in line with the sentiments of the people of the United States. It is the statement that "The Star Spangled Banner" is to be made the official war song of the United States armed forces.

The question is, and the question to be answered, is "Why do we make the official war song of the United States armed forces a song which is already an official war song of the United States armed forces?"

The answer is, and the answer to be given, is, "Because it is the best song in the world."

The Star Spangled Banner is a great song. It is a song of patriotism, a song of devotion, a song of sacrifice. It is a song that has inspired millions of Americans to fight for their country, to die for their country, to give their all for their country.

The Green Dragon is a song of rebellion, a song of seditiousness, a song of lawlessness. It is a song that has inspired thousands of Americans to refuse to obey the laws of their country, to resist the authority of their government, to disregard the Constitution of the United States.

The Star Spangled Banner is a song that is loved by all Americans, regardless of their political beliefs. It is a song that is sung by children in school, by adults in church, by soldiers at the front. It is a song that is heard in every land where Americans live.

The Green Dragon is a song that is hated by all Americans, regardless of their political beliefs. It is a song that is sung by traitors, by cowards, by traitors. It is a song that is heard only by those who are plotting against the United States government.

The Star Spangled Banner is a song that is a symbol of freedom, a symbol of democracy, a symbol of the American way of life. It is a song that is loved by all Americans, regardless of their political beliefs.

The Green Dragon is a song that is a symbol of tyranny, a symbol of despotism, a symbol of the anti-American way of life. It is a song that is hated by all Americans, regardless of their political beliefs.

The Star Spangled Banner is a song that is a source of pride, a source of inspiration, a source of hope. It is a song that is loved by all Americans, regardless of their political beliefs.

The Green Dragon is a song that is a source of shame, a source of grief, a source of despair. It is a song that is hated by all Americans, regardless of their political beliefs.

The Star Spangled Banner is a song that is a part of our history, a part of our heritage, a part of our legacy. It is a song that is loved by all Americans, regardless of their political beliefs.

The Green Dragon is a song that is a part of our history, a part of our heritage, a part of our legacy. But it is not a song that is loved by all Americans, regardless of their political beliefs.

ROBERT OWEN AND HIS WORK

The Society-Democratic Herald

Since 1869, when the 1st
Multiples brought out a pamphlet that Robert Owen had been published in the previous year, its editor, John Stuart Mill, had died. The biographies of the founder of Socialism and his younger brother,
James, appeared in the Society-Democratic Herald, and now the younger brother,
J. S. Mill, is also included.

The biographies are based on a collection of letters (some three hundred)
written by Owen, which were found recently and are now in the possession of the British Library. The biographies are written by Professor
C. S. Mantle, and are in the process of being published in the Society-Democratic Herald.

Before reviewing Owen's life and work, it is necessary to consider the conditions in which he was born.
Owen was born in Manchester in 1771,
and his parents were respectable manufacturers. His father was a weaver, and his mother was a weaving girl.

Owen was apprenticed to a weaver at the age of 14, and he worked for many years in the Manchester cotton industry. He became interested in the problems
of child labor and the conditions of the working class, and he resolutely set out to improve the lives of the workers.

In 1790, Owen opened a weaving shop in Manchester, and he began to experiment with new methods of production. He introduced the use of mechanical looms and the use of cotton thread
in weaving. He also introduced the use of cotton yarn in manufacturing, and this innovation greatly increased the output of the factory.

In 1800, Owen opened a new
factory in New Lanark, Scotland,
which became the model for modern factories. The new factory was built on the latest mechanical principles, and it
improved the lives of the workers
greatly.

In 1807, Owen opened a
weaving shop in Manchester, and he
continued to work for the
improvement of the working class.
He founded the New Lanark
Factory, and he became a philanthropist.

In 1819, Owen opened a
weaving shop in Manchester, and he
continued to work for the
improvement of the working class.
He founded the New Lanark

In 1829, Owen opened a
weaving shop in Manchester, and he
continued to work for the
improvement of the working class.

SUPPLIING WAGE SLAVES

CAPITALISTS THINK THEY GIVE THEM A BREAK

Let the Workers Declare the Economic Truth and Keep the Rigidity That Could Be Both.

By Harry T. Jeness

Even during the most prosperous times, production is largely carried on by the same number of men who are employed. The employer believes he is doing the workers a favor by keeping them at work. The man on the job is being maintained in the same way, for his wages are cut off from the capital class. If he is able to maintain a high level of production, it is likely he will get a raise in wages. This is why the capitalists, who own the means of production, are able to maintain such a high level of production.

Direct Legislation.

A decisive answer to the Municipal (f) (of Los Angeles), and the District (f) of the State, that it is the function of the state to regulate the labor of the workers. The resolutions of the state are watered down, and the present policy is to encourage the workers to work harder. They are not given an opportunity to make a living. The workers are forced to work longer hours for less pay.

Socialism Growing Sabotage.

In the future, it is believed that the working class will be able to take over the means of production and control the economic system. This is not possible in the class struggle, but through the socialist movement, the working class can move towards a more equitable distribution of wealth and power. The socialist movement is gaining ground and will eventually lead to a classless society.

The Joy of Hard Labor.

No man can work hard, or be happy, who is not free from care, anxiety, or trouble. The more he works, the more he suffers. It is the joy of hard labor. The more he works, the more he suffers. It is the joy of hard labor. But when he works for himself, and not for the benefit of others, he is happy. He is free from care, anxiety, or trouble. He is free to enjoy the fruits of his labor. He is free to live as he pleases.

AT THE THEATERS.

Big audiences are latching onto "Policeman" at the "Pit, Pat, Fuss" show at the Flicker. A gang of three, who are all of those delightful relations that does not wear out, is a full of tearful tunes and plenty of laughs. The girls, bliss, is simply great and the vigorous dance of these little stunts is the last, all-centering male weakness. The engagement closes this (Saturday) evening.

"The Fugitive" in the new musical comedy, "The Three Musketeers," at the Vaudeville, is one that takes where ever the year is given. "Cape May" is to be presented at the Bijou, 64th, for a week.

DAVIDSON.

George Arliss' famous comedy of college life, "The College Widow," coming to the Davidson, remains for four nights. This charming and delightfully popular drama has a 200-seat capacity and at its first engagement many people go on the road this season, and it is looking forward to a complete success. Few dramatic authors are capable of making such an exploit as this one is a comedy with a capital C. It is a play that demands to be played by the hands of "Davidson" which is being presented by the college. The play has been written by the talented George Arliss, and is one of the best plays of the season.

GAYETY.

Galey, 30th, hilarity and high jinks will bring much to a perfect climate during the next few weeks. The Gayety, which is playing the "Loopy Doo Doo," is the only play to see during the season.

The Crystal has searched the city for the most perfect movie, and we believe we have found it. The "Loopy Doo Doo" at the Gayety will be a great success. The play is a comedy and is played by the Crystal.
