There was a talk some time ago that there was a Bryan party in the making. Bryan party or not, there was a Bryan movement. But the name was ill-chosen, and the so-called Bryan party was the growth of the same idea that led to the candidacy of Mr. Bryan for President. It is clear that the Bryan movement was not a party in the true sense of the word. It was a movement of men who were tired of the existing system, who were dissatisfied with the policies of the Government, and who were determined to make a change.

But while the name has been changed, the movement remains. The Bryan movement is not a party, but a mass movement. It is a movement of men who are tired of the existing system, who are dissatisfied with the policies of the Government, and who are determined to make a change. It is a movement of men who are tired of the existing system, who are dissatisfied with the policies of the Government, and who are determined to make a change.
