Workingmen of Milwaukee You Form the American Vanguard

At the outset, let us admit that the social and economic conditions under which the workingman has to live in the United States today are not pleasant. The workingman is exploited by a system of exploitation, and he is often treated with great cruelty and injustice. The workingman is not only exploited by his employer, but also by the government. The government imposes taxes on him, and the workingman is often forced to pay for things that he does not need. The workingman is often denied the right to free speech and free press. The workingman is often denied the right to strike. The workingman is often denied the right to vote for his representatives in the government. The workingman is often denied the right to form labor unions. The workingman is often denied the right to receive a living wage. The workingman is often denied the right to receive proper educatio
"Thou Shalt Not Eat Bread In the Sweat of Another's Face!"

By William Henry Fuller

DEAR SIR:—Ever since I was a boy I have been taught that the Bible says, you should not eat bread in the sweat of another's face. I have never been able to find this verse in the Bible, but I have heard it so often that I am sure it must be there. It is a saying that has been handed down through the generations, and it is one that I have always tried to follow.

I have been told that this saying is from the Book of Leviticus, chapter 19, verse 17. It is part of a list of rules that God gave to the Israelites on Mount Sinai. The passage says, "Thou shalt not eat bread in the sweat of another's face," which means you should not receive a wage for work you have not done yourself.

I believe this saying is important because it promotes fairness and equality. It reminds us that everyone has a right to earn a living, and that no one should be forced to work for free. This is a principle that is shared by many cultures and religions around the world.

I have always tried to follow this saying in my life. Whenever I have had the opportunity to work for free, I have refused. I believe that everyone should be paid for their work, no matter how humble or menial it may seem.

I am proud to say that I have always been able to support myself and my family through my own work. I believe in the saying, "Thou shalt not eat bread in the sweat of another's face," and I will always strive to live up to it in my daily life.

Yours sincerely,

The Principles We Advocate

Human life depends upon free hours, free days, and a free time of one’s own. All restrictions which limit the development of the individual are contrary to the principles we advocate. The freedom of the individual is essential to the development of the best in character and intellect. The individual should be free to express himself and to develop his talents and abilities in an unrestricted manner. The government should not interfere in the personal decisions of the individual. Each person should be free to pursue his own interests and goals, and to make decisions that are in his or her best interest. The government should ensure that the individual has the freedom to live a fulfilling and meaningful life.
To Him Who Sets This Up in Type

By Ernest Poole

"All your typefaces are alike! You have? Good. The jimmy fig tree has suddenly ceased. The machine is before me, but I cannot make it work."

There are other machines beside you. But all are fit for union men. The printers and all the other trade unionists, and you, the printer, are not fit for union men. Therefore it is impossible that you should be the printer."

Your strength all lies on union men. The strength of men in all trades, in all civilized nations of the earth."

They have begun to see it. And slowly, year by year, trade by trade, union by union, the workmen are learning to take up their strength."

The power that rule your rise and to be, in unity, in all nations of the world."

But the purpose which you have in mind is not to be the printer."

The printer makes me think of a legend. A legend I read in some old book dealt with our Western tradition.

Many thousands of years ago, in the desert, there stood a tree that reached the earth. All its members were fed by the leaves and roots, and the sun and the sky. One was a tree that stood in the desert and used up all the life and energy."

For the tree looked as if it were in the desert and had no roots in the sky and earth."

"Brother!" is it said. "Look up! Here is no terrible thing! Here is only—"

But his speech was stopped. For his neighbors is blind either at his hooves, their eyes still fixed on the ground, reached up and pulled the old man down—and choked him till he died."

So the tree crumbled on.

Labor's Interests in the School Board

By Elizabeth H. Thomas

The history of the School Board, and the interests of the Milwaukee school system, are being considered in the present campaign by the Democratic and Republican candidates for the offices of the Board. The candidates are attempting to attract the attention of the public by the use of various means, and the School Board is receiving a great deal of attention. The Board is composed of five members, and each member is elected by the voters of the city. The Board is responsible for the management of the schools, and its duties include the appointment of teachers, the selection of textbooks, the adoption of school regulations, and the control of the school buildings. The Board is also responsible for the maintenance of the schools, and it is therefore essential that the Board should be represented by men who are interested in the welfare of the schools.

Utility Law Hits Labor

The public utility law which the state's public service commission has adopted to curb the exorbitant increase in the prices of public utilities, such as electricity, gas, telephone, and other essential services, is now in effect. The law requires public utility companies to file periodic reports on their operations and financial performance, and sets maximum rates for services.

Greetings

On Monday, Sept. 6, is another Anniversary of Labor, when throughout the nation a million and more of the organized workers will take part. The day is peculiarly fitting for the purpose of commemorating the contributions of the workingman. In this great country, the workingman, whether employed in the fields or the mines, the office or the shop, is to the progress of the nation, the ideal type of a citizen. He is the backbone of the state and the nation's strength. In short, he is the truest and truest type of a citizen. He is the backbone of the state and the nation's strength. Dear I. A. Budge, we are among the first cities in the state to have a Labor Day, and the papers don't bid you a brass farthing for a holiday. To know a laborer as a citizen is to respect his work, and as a man.

The aristocratic and control

Now that the Labor Day is here, the workers of the world can give their due respect to their fellow men.

In high-priced goods, but there are many more in this city, and in the world, who are working harder and doing more work than any other class.

There is no doubt that the same state factory inspectors have their hands full.
