Plain Words for Plain Socialists

By Victor L. Berger.

I t is with a profound sense of satisfaction that I undertake again to discuss party matters, in the editorial columns of this paper, in the face of the approaching election to the National Executive Committee. It is my firm belief that the Socialist party, as an essential part of the industrial and social revolution, should be an instrument through which the laboring masses can achieve their own salvation. It is therefore essential that the Socialist party should be clear and explicit in its purpose and methods, and that it should be able to communicate its message to the people. This is the key to the success of the Socialist party. It is the key to the future of the Socialist movement.

There is much talk about the "revolution," but there is very little talk about the revolutionaries. The Socialist party must be a movement of the people, for the people, by the people. It must be a movement that is based on the principles of democracy and justice, and that is dedicated to the betterment of the human condition. The Socialist party must be a movement that is dedicated to the achievement of a world in which all men are free, equal, and happy.

As it is in the past, so it is now. I stand for a new world, a world where the people are free and equal, and where everyone has a fair share of the blessings of life. I stand for a world where the people are educated and enlightened, and where they are able to make their own decisions and to govern themselves. I stand for a world where the people are able to live in peace and prosperity, and where they are able to enjoy the fruits of their labor.

I stand for a world where the people are able to control their own destinies, and where they are able to determine the course of their own lives. I stand for a world where the people are able to live in freedom and democracy, and where they are able to enjoy the blessings of the human condition.

I stand for a world where the people are able to live in peace and prosperity, and where they are able to enjoy the fruits of their labor. I stand for a world where the people are able to live in freedom and democracy, and where they are able to enjoy the blessings of the human condition.

Bernard Shaw and the World

By Robert Hunter

The tragic cruelty of life can be the topic of a story. It is the story of the life of a master, the United States of America, and the poverty of the people of New York. It is the story of the poverty of New York, the social and economic conditions of the city, the poverty of the people of New York, and it is the story of the poverty of the United States of America. The story of the United States of America is the story of the poverty of New York, the poverty of the people of New York, and it is the story of the tragic cruelty of life.

But while the story does not tell the whole story, it does tell the story of the social and economic conditions of the United States of America. It is a story of the poverty of the people of New York, the poverty of the United States of America, and it is a story of the tragic cruelty of life.

The Modern Kris Kringle

By Samuel Johnson

In the novel, "A Christmas Carol," the character of the Kris Kringle is an embodiment of the spirit of giving and generosity. In the story, Kris Kringle is a wealthy man who has a reputation for being kind and generous. He is known for his generosity and his love for others.

There is a scene in the novel where Kris Kringle distributes gifts to the poor. He does this in secret, without anyone knowing who he is. He is known for his generosity and his love for others.

The Woman's Campaign in Los Angeles

By Mary Walker

The woman's campaign in Los Angeles was a significant event in the history of the women's rights movement. It was a campaign that called for women's suffrage and equal rights. The campaign was led by women who were determined to fight for their rights and to make a difference.

A Study in Socialism

By Karl Marx

Socialism is a system of economic and social organization that is based on the ownership of the means of production by the community as a whole, and the distribution of its products based on need. In a socialist society, the government owns and operates the means of production, and the products are distributed according to the needs of the community.

The Common Good

An "Americanized" Adoption of Robert Blatchford's Famous "Marxian England" (Continued from last week)

There is a strong belief in the effect that if the poor were all educated, wise, and happy, they would cease to be poor. The error arises from confusion of thought.

It is quite possible that other men will become better than a drunken man, but it is not useful if all the people were sober wines.

Support there are two clerks in an office, nine of whom are uneducated and one a drunkard. This steady man will very likely become head clerk. But this is not because he is steady, but because the others are not steady.

You will observe that one man thinks of promoting a clerk because he is honest, for very few clerks being dishonest the honest clerk is not eligible.

You must not oppose this because a sober and industrious man will succeed in the trades—better than a drunken man and a lazy man, that therefore the whole trade would succeed better by becoming sober and hard workers.

You are fast of "facts." What are the facts with reference to gain and industry amongst the workers.

The Halloows are amongst the most industrious and industrious people, and they are the worst employed people in the world. The immigrants in the taking and cap trades are wonderfully fertile, sober, and industrious, and they work eleven long hours for them.

Under completion the workers do not gain any advantage by being sober and industrious.

The abuse to give the statement of this case given by me to my wife a butcher, that the standard of living is lower when the wages are higher than when the wages are lower.

Has your laboratory board or manufacturers tell the workers that they can only improve the health and productivity of the foreigner they might successfully compete against foreign competition in the foreign market? We have said that they do, but that foreign would enable us to put our bread on the line, and to accept less wages.

The long as we are to compete with to work long hours, and fire us and trod on the "laws of supply and demand" will maintain the amount of wages in the shirt trade.

If all our women become firmly convinced that they could not exist without their clothes and that all women put up to a price to pay for things.

There would be no women offering to work for less than 30 cents or 40 cents a day.

So, the laborer is the one who makes the law.

What low wages for themselves, and for others because the workers want a decent day. They pay 50 cents a day for them. They are a man who make a decent day, and they are a man who try and make a decent day for the family.

It is this cheap, and he goes off, but he takes it.

What is the wrong here, and how does one judge accuracy when a man is determined to be a fool and will not sell his help.

This is not true, but it is true that it would be a great crime to work for more money, but it is not necessary to give a man his due.

There is a balance in a theater and a fight for eggers. A big strong man will support the ego征求 others of the world.

You don't say how foolish it is for that man to tell the work

Gompers’ Wilfully False Reports Nailed

[The following is taken from a letter in The Liberator, the bulletin of the German Social Democratic Labor Party, and is reprinted by permission of the party. The letter was written by Max Lefkowitz, editor of the Liberator, to whom Mr. Gompers and other leaders of the American Social Democratic Labor Party have been sending reports of their doings, in the hope of establishing a connection between the two parties. The letter is an answer to Mr. Gompers’ attacks on the German Socialists, and is published in the hope of clearing up the misunderstanding which has arisen between the two parties.]

Socialistic Dictatorship

Social-Democrats Win Victory for City Water Users

Described, by the common council of the city of Milwaukee that the present rate of water was too high for the low income of the people, a sum of money was decided upon for raising the water rates, approved by the common council on the recommendation of the Water Department. The extra cost from the increase in price of the water will add to the cost of living of the people. It is reported that the cost of living of the people is not affected by the increase in price of the water.
