Laws Ought to Make It Easier to Live, Not Harder

By Victor L. Berger.

THE Socialist Party of America—the Social-Democratic Party of Wisconsin—will take up the fight against the hunger tariff with might and main. And we need not be deterred from this because of the hypocritical and lying cry of the Democrats for a "revision" of duties.

Senator Ben Tillman of South Carolina has openly confessed in the United States senate that the Democrats of the South are willing to join the thieves of the North in plundering the people.

Material for our fight is furnished plentifully by the Secretary of Agriculture, James Wilson, while he is making an attempt to defend the meat trust.

Of course the incredibly stupid figures published four years ago by James Garfield, special investigator of the Roosevelt government, have been thrown aside. Garfield in his report upon the meat trust, claimed that the packers made only "one dollar on every head of cattle" and repeated other ridiculous nonsense which the hog barons gave him.

Mr. Wilson is somewhat brighter. He tries to put the blame on the middle man, the retailer. Wilson claims that the retailers have raised the price of meat from 38 to 45 per cent, on the average, and in some cases even higher.

This, by the way, is an additional argument to show the parasitic nature of the capitalist system, which employs ten times more "middle men" than are necessary for the distribution of the products.

However this may be, the fact remains that the consumption of meat is decreasing rapidly in the United States. The high standard of living which was the pride of this country for nearly two hundred years, is rapidly going to the—Chinese dragon.

Moreover, the vegetarian diet, which is so cheap and easily obtainable in European and Asiatic countries, is very difficult to imitate in this country.

Mr. Wilson, the Secretary of Agriculture, himself takes pains to inform us that during the last ten years the price of corn and potatoes has just doubled. According to this, either the Irish or the South-Italian mode of living would be out of the question for a workman in this country.

And since wheat has gone up about 40 per cent—and milk about 60 per cent—and butter and cheese over 50 per cent—it is impossible for American workmen to live like the Hungarian peasants or the Alpine farmers.

In other words, if this keeps on, and Mr. Wilson promises us that it is going to keep on, the American working class will have to quit eating or it will have to live on rats like the Chinese.

And to make the case against the hunger tariff stronger there comes that great authority, Prof. W. D. Guthrie, and informs us that 76 per cent of all American families of the present day—the families with small incomes—suffer from perpetual lack of sufficient nourishment.

Now, what is the future to bring?

What is it to bring?

Mr. James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, gravely asserts that the production of agricultural commodities does not keep pace with the growth of population, and that the price of food is, therefore, bound to rise continually.

There is an immigration to our country of over a million men, women and children every year. And the steel trust and the packing trust would rather miss the entire farming class of America than to miss these cheap workers.

Mr. Wilson also tells us that cattle are diminishing on account of the big ranges being taken up by farms and the big herds of cattle disappearing to make room for cultivated crops.

On the other hand, he claims that even if all the irrigated and other land in the West should be taken up by settlers, this would not bring down the prices of victuals.

Such settlements, he says, would mean a great increase of land values, and food would therefore go up in price.

In other words, no matter what happens, it will cost more to live.

We are told all this in spite of the fact that scientists assert that the Mississippi Valley alone could raise food enough to feed the inhabitants of the whole world.

Of course, there is a simple way in which we could stop this starvation brought about artificially by a handful of sharks in human form.

The nation could get possession of the trusts, and thus get possession of all the necessary means of livelihood for the people. But the capitalist statesmen will have none of that.

A very simple solution of the question, at least for a while, would be the importation of foreign cattle.

There is a great deal of cattle in South America and Australia which could be imported to the United States as it is imported to Great Britain. At present the duty on a live ox is about 27½ per cent of its value—hogs and sheep are taxed correspondingly.

I understand that some farmers might not like this kind of a revision because meat prices would surely take a tumble. But the farmers get the least profit of this tariff and must pay it out ten times over to the other trusts, and we surely cannot let the people starve for the sake of a few trust magnates.

And all the people, including the farmers, ought to remember that the workingmen were not consulted when the tariff was made.

The working class was not represented. No workman is in congress elected as a representative of that class. Nor is there in congress any other man who can claim that he was elected to represent the working class.

Only the various groups of capitalist exploiters, sparsely intermingled with a few representatives of the farmers, are represented in congress. Only these had their say about the tariff.

The Socialist party is not represented in congress and, of course, there is no other political expression of the working class in America.

Therefore, among other things the Social-Democratic party of America will take up the hunger tariff and make it a prominent issue at the congressional elections.

The time demands this kind of an issue.

It is a matter which concerns the material interests of the mass of the people more immediately and more directly than any other question.

And there is also an ethical side to it.

Even outside of the working class, it has ceased to be considered right for any one to make all the money he can when he thereby injures the people as a whole.

Public opinion has undergone a great change in this respect during the last ten years—thanks to the Socialist philosophy and to the "muckrakers" who have taken up this philosophy, consciously or unconsciously.

However, the Socialists might go just one step further in taking a stand against the hunger tariff.

The conscience of the people at large—of men and women of all classes—ought also to be aroused to the fact that government and laws

GOING UP! THE PRICE OF MEAT.

There is a growing resentment against the way the government allots its new lands to settlers. The number who are lucky at the drawings are usually few compared to the total who have been lured from their (often) far away homes. The plan principally gives the railroads a chance to shake down money out of needy people.

The capitalists have it all figured out that the reason for the high prices that are filling their coffers, is that the working class is not content with the poorer foods. Just how that explains the 66 per cent increase in salt pork, or the 50 per cent increase in corned beef, is hard to see. But any "reason" is good enough for the people who have become used to capitalistic bunk during presidential campaigns.

Statesmanship! A fine sounding name that. But what kind of a statesmanship do we have in the United States? Congress is largely a massing of the smoothest rascals in the country, and whatever the congressmen do they certainly cannot be accused of representing the people. Our government grows more shameless every day. They play the people for gudgeons every minute of the 1440 that make up the day.

Instead of being in office to guard our interests they are there to protect our despoilers, and they do it with neatness and dispatch.

Just now the president is calling for an increase in the cost to the people of newspaper and magazine postage. Yet it is now known that the government permits the railroads to rob the people blind in the mail carrying contracts. The government pays more for the yearly rent of a mail car to transport the mails than it would cost to build a new car. And it now develops that while the government is paying the roads 9 cents a pound for carrying the second-class mail, the railroads have contracts with the express companies by which they carry the same sort of stuff for the companies for one-half cent a pound! Are our representatives protecting us or are they holding us for the thieves to go through our pockets?

Here's another fact that should be known. The express companies control congress and prevent us from having a parcels post. And it develops that the American Express company has a contract with the big steamship lines by which it forwards foreign postal parcels to any point in the United States for 48 cents.

It does that for foreign business, but, thanks to congress, it is able to charge us that much for taking a package from one city to another not a hundred miles away.

If we had a parcels post it would stop this great graft, and so we cannot have a parcels post.

The people must like it, for they keep sending the same class of politicians to congress election after election.

Verily, "statesmanship" costs the people a lot of money! We are told that if the Socialists got to Washington they could do practically nothing. On the contrary, vast opportunities would open up before them such as are now not even dreamed of.

"By working people we do not understand merely the hand workers, but every one who does not live on the labor of another. Besides the city and country laborers must be included also the small farmers and traders who groan under the burden of capital."—Wm. Liebknecht.

Downright Robbery

Uncle Sam pays an annual rental of $4,800,000 for mail cars. In two years this rent would buy the mail cars now used.

Railroads also receive $46,000,000 a year for handling mails.

The government pays the railroads $4,220 per year rental for every car. Is it any wonder there is a postal deficit?—Labor World.

The Passing Show of Capitalism

More Railway Murders.

Macon, Ga.—Eight persons are reported dead, four probably fatally injured and twenty more or less seriously hurt as a result of a head-on collision between a southbound passenger train No. 5 and northbound train No. 2 on the Georgia Southern and Florida railroad, nineteen miles south of this city.

Graft, Graft, Always Graft.

Chicago, Ill.—The sweeping investigation of charges of corruption in connection with various deals in the city hall, first exposed by the local Socialist daily, was resumed on Monday when the February county grand jury was sworn in.

It was stated by persons familiar with the situation that the indictments returned by the January grand jury will pale into insignificance beside the action to be taken by the present grand jury.

The first matter to be taken up, it is said, will be the alleged relations existing between the T. A. Cummins Foundry company and certain city employees. Alleged favoritism toward that company will be inquired into.

Judge Barnes told the grand jury they could inquire into anything they saw fit, whether the state attorney liked it or not. This is regarded as a slap at State Attorney Wayman.

Prices of Meats Still Rises!

CHICAGO.—How prices on Monday reached $3.20 per 100, the highest price reached since the civil war. Various reasons are given for the skyward advance.

New Ministry for Blighted Spain.

Madrid.—The Spanish cabinet, headed by Premier Moret y Prendergast, resigned this afternoon. The crisis was brought about by the right wing of the Liberal party, which was not satisfied with Moret's campaign of repression against the Socialists and other revolutionaries, but demanded that it be pushed still more vigorously.

Senor Canalejas has formed a ministry, in which all shades of "Liberalism" are represented. The best-known members of the new cabinet are Canalejas, minister of foreign affairs, and Senor Romanones, minister of public instruction.

The impartial announces today that the Vatican opposed a categorical non possumus regarding the proposition of the Spanish government for the reform of the Concordat of 1851.

How Capitalism Saves the Home.

Atlantic City, N. J.—An autopsy is to be held to determine the exact cause of the death of Jane Adams, the 18-year-old girl whose body was found floating in the surf on Sunday. The deep wound in her forehead, doctors agree, was inflicted before death and may have been made by a knife.

William Seyler, the young married man, who is alleged to have been the last person seen with the girl before his disappearance ten days ago, is being sought by the police.

A Study Course in Socialism

Prepared Under Auspices of the National Party

Lesson XVI.—The Socialist Program: 1. Industrial Reforms

SOCIALISM and Reform.—It is a mistake to say that the Socialist party is opposed to reform. On the contrary, wherever it acquires any considerable influence, it is the most energetic advocate of reform measures. The mistake arises from the fact that it necessarily opposes that goes under the name of reform and that it refuses to abandon its revolutionary aim, will not fuse with or give way to parties which are merely parties of reform, without any far-reaching purpose or without any special devotion to the working class.

In passing judgment on any proposal of reform practicable within the capitalist system, the Socialist party considers it with regard both to its immediate effect upon the condition of the working class and to its ultimate effect in hastening or postponing the Socialist organization of society. If injurious in either of these respects, the Socialist party must oppose it.

The ameliorative measures embodied in the "immediate demands" or "working programs" of the Socialist party—which are amended from time to time, as occasion requires—fall into several groups. The first group is that of industrial reforms, which directly affect the wage workers in relation to their employers and to the conditions of their work; upon these the Socialist party puts especial emphasis. Next comes the group of political reforms, a term which explains itself. Further may be considered administrative or general economic reforms—affecting taxation, partial public ownership, etc.—and social reforms, such as affect the general life of the people, their health, housing, education, etc. These divisions are, of course, somewhat arbitrary; the various groups overlap to some extent.

Industrial Reforms.—The group of industrial reforms includes: 1. Such as tend to assure the working class the right of organized action for obtaining better terms from their employers and to strengthen them in such organization; 2. Such as tend to "free the hours of labor and give more leisure to the workers; 3. Such as especially protect the weaker portions of the working class—children and women working for wages—and to protect others from the effects of their competition; 4. Such as tend to protect wage workers in life, limb and health or compensate them for loss sustained through industrial accidents or occupational diseases.

The Right of Labor Organization.—The right of wage workers to organize as such for defense or attack against their employers, with all that it implies, has been gradually won in the face of strenuous opposition by the propertied classes and by the state and the law, which have been at the service of those classes. It is still far from being fully established in any country.

The right to organize, in the abstract, is now universally recognized as a matter of law in the United States. But this is not sufficient. In order to do their work, the labor unions must have the right to raise funds and maintain discipline within their ranks by levying dues, assessments, fines, etc.; to demand the closed union shop, the exclusion of scab material, and the use of the label, as well as a scale of wages and hours; to use the strike, including the sympathetic strike, in support of these demands; to picket and to pay benefits as means of carrying on the strike; to use the label and the boycott and to promote these through the press, meetings, etc.; to induce purchasers to discriminate in favor of union-made and

Comment on Passing Events.

By Frederic Heath

The number of Socialists, or Labor men, elected to the new British parliament was 40. The vote of labor in 1906 was 413,123. This time the vote increased 57,000.

Remember the Maine! our rulers said, but all these years the wreck has rested half submerged in front of Havana. Submerged ships tell no tales—of HOW they were blown up!

President Underwood of the Erie road says the people "are bad losers." That may be bad conduct in a game of chance, but the people feel that the cost of living ought not to be a game of chance, capitalistic gamblers to the contrary notwithstanding.

Capitalism may step high, but it does so at its own cost. Already that scandalous $222,000 fine against the Hatters' union is bearing its fruit. Unions are deciding to use the ballot as a labor weapon. The latest to take such action is the Central Federated Union of New York city.

Railroad President Underwood is the latest contributor to the comic fund of capitalist explanations of the high cost of living. He declares that the packers "make nothing from the carcass of a beef." Does he mean that they make their vast profits out of the carcass of the workman?

"I am tired of seeing labor bending the creaking knee before the lawmakers of capital and begging them for mercy," declared a delegate in New York's central labor body, the other night. "Petitioning will only get us kicks or promises—that and nothing more." This sentiment was loudly applauded. The worm is beginning to turn—at last.

At Berlin, Jan. 20, Herr Von Oldenburg, an Agrarian Conservative, declared: "The German emperor as king of Prussia must have the right at any moment to order a Prussian lieutenant to come here and with ten men close the Reichstag." The Conservatives greeted Oldenburg's words with thunderous applause. Instantly all the members on the left (Liberal) side of the house rose to their feet, shouting: "Monstrous!" Scandal!

The Struggle in Germany

The working people of Germany are up in arms over the proposed Prussian government's franchise bill and the kaiser has tried to suppress their street demonstrations with police and military brutality. Demonstrations were held all over Berlin last Sunday and only the fact that the soldiers secretly sympathize with the masses kept the authorities from going the lengths of a massacre. The Vorwärts declares that artillery was posted near the kaiser's palace ready to mow down the malcontents with a word from the military authorities. The artillery was placed there with the sanction of the kaiser, it is declared and the emperor is sharing with the military authorities the condemnation of the Socialists for practically inviting a terrible tragedy.

In other cities there were more wounded than in Berlin. In Halle the number of wounded reached 102. Only one policeman was injured, but the injury was received from a fellow officer. The police were armed with deadly sabres and some of those in sympathy with the authorities used them with ugly effect. Following a demonstration at Neumunster, a policeman, at one stroke of his sabre, cut off the arm of a man who was jeering!

The progressive press lays the blame for the collision upon the military, but the significant fact remains that the military is honeycombed with Social Democrats, who furtively waved the red emblem of labor from the windows of their quarters.

American readers little realize the real meaning of the demonstrations in Germany against the "new" Prussian franchise. The new system is only a slightly disguised copy of the old, which Bismarck called the most miserable of all electoral systems. He did not change it, however, for it gave the power in elections to the wealthy landed aristocracy. The system provides three classes of voters, on a property qualification, each class electing a like number of representatives to the Diet. And the voting is open, not secret, which means intimidation of the workers when they vote.

In the German revolution of '48

dal!" "Impudence!" "Breach of the constitution!"

The revolutionary fathers fought and founded a republic—a republic that was to be a vast advance on king-raked nations. Could they come back and look at America today, we wonder what they would say!

The fact is that this country has not fulfilled its early promises. People unable by the hardest toil to live decently, may still worship the shadow, but the substance is not here.

When we think of what it might be and then reflect, for instance, that last year alone fifty thousand American families shook the dust of the United States from their feet and crossed the Canadian line to settle down under king rule again, the conclusion is irresistible that this nation has not fulfilled its high mission.

The explanation is simple. The nation has become the spoil of the capitalists, it no longer belongs to the people. And only Social-Democracy is armed for the fight to get it back.

"It, no doubt, would be an aid to good city government to have a provision in every city charter that aldermen must be freeholders," says The Municipality.

It no doubt would be nothing of the kind. If only house owners were allowed to hold office in a city it would disfranchise in that particular a large class—in Chicago 80 per cent, in Milwaukee 84 per cent, in Boston 92 per cent, in New York 95 per cent—it is a gross and wanton insult to this overwhelming proportion of the city population to say, or imply, that only the ridiculous minority of house owners are honest men.

And in the larger cities crooked aldermen and the respectable crooks from whom the capitalist parties usually choose their aldermen are well provided with real estate, thank you.

Just a note must be added to the above, however. By "freeholder" the Madison publication means owners of real estate. It wants to impose a property qualification. But under the law as it is now construed, any householder—that is, renter—is a freeholder. The house is his while he rents it.

when the troops were chased out of Berlin and the king was forced to take his hat off to his subjects, a liberal constitution was secured. But the king rallied and the Prussian troops helped him put down the revolution in South-Germany. After that, the German Reichstag having been dismissed, the king, on Dec. 4, 1849, by royal decree, declared the constitution null and void and superseded it with the present one containing the 3-class electoral system. A year ago von Buelow fell as prime minister over a difference as to colonial policy. But he had smuggled into the royal message a promise to change the unjust electoral system. The present prime minister would like to get out of the promise, and so prepared a "new" bill, that keeps the 3-class system, also the non-secret voting, but provides direct voting instead of through electors, and also makes slight changes as to the make-up of the three classes. The first class includes 2 per cent, the second 14 per cent and the third 83 per cent. This will leave the working people as badly off as ever.

All the workers can do is to hold demonstrations and demand the reform that was promised. A proposed general strike is held up their sleeves. It would be serious, as the Socialist gewerkschaften have 2,200,000 members and if two weeks' provisions were put by, they could not only paralyze the government, but all industry as well. But it will be a last resort.

The representatives of the Centrum party (Roman Catholic) which still holds a good many workingmen, have also promised their members that there will be a change, and it remains to be seen if they will keep their word. Their trouble is that the Centrum is led by the Roman Catholic aristocracy and bishops, so the party is between two fires. It will lose many workingmen if it proves false to them. But whatever the Centrum does the Social Democrats will stand solidly against the government.

The absurdity of the 3-class system was recently shown in Silesia, where just two aristocrats made up the first class, casting as many votes as the 95 per cent of the people in the third class. The second class comprised about 5 per cent.

What Is the Matter With the Impossibilists?

By Isador Ladoff

THE hysterical shrieks of the howling derelicts of the revolutionary phrase elucidate very graphically the correctness of our conception of the psychology of impossibilism. What is the matter with English Walling, Slobodin and the minor prophets of that curious, but unlabeled sect? What ails them?

English Walling has more leisure and money than he knows what to do with. He sports radicalism (no matter what kind) for the mere excitement of it. The Lord did not burden him with an excess of learning. His numerous scribbles show a restless and illogical mind. His contributions to the Socialist press, especially his article in the International Socialist Review, in which he extolls Thurston Webber at the expense of Karl Marx, displays an astounding degree of dense ignorance of the subject treated, coupled with almost pathetic audacity. Walling obviously belongs to the class of men (alas numerous!) who, according to Carlyle's apt expression, "do not know that they do not know."

Walling is, like Julius Caesar—ambitious, and like Hewstratos, lacks the power to gratify it. Walling is the reverse of a builder. He can not play such a conspicuous part in the Socialist movement as his gifted relative, Robert Hunter. The laurels of Hunter deprive Walling of his rest. Walling obviously suffers from the ailment of all impossibilists—Dementia Lilliputiana.

That Phelps Stokes, likewise a relative of Robert Hunter, sided with Walling in the disgraceful and stupid act of publishing a confidential letter of an unsuspecting friend and hollering: "Murder!" at the sight of the phantom of a morbid imagination—is but natural. Phelps Stokes is an earnest, well-meaning man, a deeply ethical nature, but not a clear thinker. The same is true in a measure concerning our beloved Eugene V. Debs. We all deplore his lack of mental poise. In the case of Charles H. Kerr it is cool calculation.

Probably more serious than this tempest in a teapot is Slobodin's vicious attack on the "Wisconsin idea." As already stated by Hunter in the pages of the HERALD, the "Wisconsin idea" is nothing else than the idea of international Socialism as it is understood in Europe, as it is propounded by all foremost leaders of Socialist thought and activity. Slobodin's attacks are therefore directed to the integral part of a whole of which he pretends to be the most devout protector. He attacks international Socialism in Wisconsin under the name of the "Wisconsin idea." Slobodin piles Ossa on Pelion in his attempt to discredit international Socialism tactics in Wisconsin. What are his arguments?

Slobodin starts in with the statement of the state of Wisconsin is behind other states of the union in legislation friendly to the laboring class. And jumps at the conclusion that the "Wisconsin idea" is all wrong, "impractical." For the present we need not challenge the correctness of his assertions, that Wisconsin is behind other states in labor legislation.

Let us admit that this is true. However, the Socialists of Wisconsin did not as yet capture the legislative power of their state and consequently cannot be made responsible for the latter. The comrades of Wisconsin are certainly moving in the direction of capturing that power more rapidly than any other state in the Union, including the state of New York. Slobodin's own state, to date, where Dan De Leon and impossibilism had full sway for a number of years. Or possibly, is the better labor legislation in other states than Wisconsin due to the influence of our impossibilists?

O ye gods and little fishes! What, if anything, did our pseudo-revolutionary phrase-mongers accomplish (except in making the name Socialist obnoxious) to organized labor? Did they better the conditions of labor? All they may boast of is of throwing cold water on every one trying to improve the conditions of the working class in our own time, in spreading discord and dissension, of throwing mud in the direction of the best representatives of the American Socialist movement—of villifying Hunter, Spargo, Ghent, Hillquit, Berger and all intellectuals, i. e., men with cultivated brains. All they can boast of is obstructionism and worship at the shrine of ignorance.

Lamentably weak as the arguments of Slobodin are, their animus is simply miserable. Slobodin identifies the "Wisconsin idea" with the person of Victor L. Berger and attacks him personally. When Slobodin failed of election in the body of directors of the Rand school, he accused his old friend Hillquit of "knifing" him. Hillquits, Berger's and other successful leaders' laurels deprive Slobodin of his rest. It is another case of Dementia Lilliputiana.

Victor L. Berger is a valiant and valuable soldier, a mighty warrior in the army of Socialism. Every fair-minded friend of the working class, every sane Socialist rejoices in the success and achievements of Berger. Hillquit, Spargo, Hunter and others. Every friend of the working class, every sane Socialist gives ungrudgingly all due credit to the Wisconsin comrades for putting the Socialist party in indelible outlines on the map of the United States.

Slobodin's personal attacks on Comrade Berger are, therefore, entirely unjustified. They are not only unjustified from the theoretical point of view, but unjustified as a matter of fact. The comrades of Wisconsin are of diverse opinions. Men like Heath, Thompson, Gaylord and others, are high grade men and Victor L. Berger is not a Dan De Leon.

The Buzzy Bees

Once upon a time—or it may have been earlier—a hive of Bees became agitated over the presence of Drones, and met in conference to consider the question. Thereupon a Wasp arose and delivered himself of a stinging attack.

"My friends," said the Yellow One, "I'm sick of listening to those drone, sedition mongering, dissatisfied, and blasphemous bees who are continually denouncing the dear Drones. They have no respect for the sacred Hive life; they are friends of every hive but their own. Consider, my friends, you are misled by these crafty agitators. If it wasn't for the Drones you'd starve! You haven't enough Drones, that's what's the matter; that's why you can't cope with that horrible overproduction which throws you out of work. (Cheers.)

"Just look at the matter from a practical point of view, putting aside, for the moment, the vague buzzings of utopian dreamers. What do we find, my friends? (A bee, gloomily: 'Wish I could find some of that honey I brought in!') Take no notice of that bee! I know him to be a Wont Work and a Disgrace to the Community and a Socialist.

"What do we find? I ask. It's as simple as stealing pollen: the more Drones you have, the more honey is eaten. The more honey that is eaten, the more work you have to produce more honey. And it's work we—I mean you, that is—want isn't it? Do you follow me? (Loud applause.)

"Now, my friends, suppose for a moment that not a single Drone stayed in the hive; suppose every one left the country to escape these continual grumbings. (Shame!) What would you do with all your honey, I'd like to know? (Gloomy bee: 'Eat it ourselves.' Cries of 'order' and 'buzz him out!')

"Why, my dear deluded friends—(applause)—if you didn't have Drones you'd have no one to give you charity, no one to be kind to you. If you didn't have Drones, you wouldn't have Drones we shouldn't need any charity."

At this juncture the bees began to fight each other, and the Drones thereupon remarked, "As usual," and proceeded placidly to appropriate the remainder of the honey.—Labor Leader.

An Unconscious Humorist

By J. E. Harris

(Written for the HERALD.)

EW who have read C. W. Post's "Square Deal" would classify it as a humorous publication, but, perhaps inadvertently, the February issue of that publication contains a delicious bit of humor. Smuggled in amongst its pages of criticism of labor unions and denunciations of everything pertaining to the cause of organized labor is an article entitled "Stealing Trade Secrets." In this article is told the story of how an American stole from a Swiss factory the secret of tempering watch springs by pretending friendship for the possessors of the secret. In one place, referring to the patience of the thief, the article says: "That is where he was smart and showed the stuff he was made of. Your true diplomat never speaks until his turn comes." An American business firm, one of the class whose virtues Messrs. Post et al. are never weary of extolling paid this thief $10,000 for the job.

Another incident is that of a Connecticut wire company which sent twenty skilled workmen to England to steal a wire-making process and succeeded. They improved the process to such an extent that the English firm sent some of its men over and stole the improvements. A number of other incidents along the same line are related.

There is nothing in the article to indicate disapproval, but on the contrary, the tone of the article indicates that the business knavery related is common in business and is rather complimentary to the shrewdness of the firm that succeeds in stealing its rival's trade secrets.

Coming from a publication which has so much to say about the wickedness of workmen who by organization attempt to secure living wages, and which makes a pretense of demanding a square (?) deal, this little expose of the absolute lack of common honesty among business firms strikes me as about the most humorous thing I have discovered in print for a long time.

WANTED

$2,500 IMMEDIATELY

We want and must sell 500 shares of the stock of the Milwaukee Social-Democratic Publishing Company IMMEDIATELY. This is to be used to help pay indebtedness incurred last summer, caused by several very dull months, to help pay our regular deficit, to help pay for a large, new stock of Socialists books and pamphlets which we published, and to help establish our new Polish weekly, Naprzod. Besides the above the Neacy suit will cost the publishing company a great deal of money. To raise this sum we will give

TEN MASSIVE VOLUMES

Valued at More than $50.00 Per Set

We will give one set of the Library of Original Sources to the comrade selling the greatest number of these five hundred shares and another set to the comrade who personally takes the greatest number of shares. Anyone wishing to enter this contest must use our subscription blanks and must follow our instructions, both of which will be furnished upon request. Only paid-in-advance sales will be counted in this contest.

When you consider that the purchasers of a share will receive full value in the form of their subscription to the HERALD in five or ten years, according as they are entitled to the local eight-page or national four-page edition, it will be a very easy matter to sell stock. Besides this, he will become a part owner in the Milwaukee Social-Democratic Publishing Co.

Send for instructions and a list at once—before you do a single other thing. The books will be awarded as soon as the five hundred shares are sold. Progress of the sale will be reported in the HERALD each week. Get busy! Start right now!

KNOW WHY SOCIALISM IS COMING

There is a reason for it—a scientific, logical reason—based on the history of the past. The signs are strung along the economic development of the past five thousand years like guide posts along a country road. The evolution of ideas, institutions, governments, law and social movements unmistakably point the way to Socialism. Read what

V. L. BERGER SAYS:

Every Socialist should know something besides his Karl Marx. The mere knowledge of a few Socialist phrases is not sufficient to make a "scientific" Socialist.

In order to know why Socialism is coming, a Socialist should have some idea of the theory of evolution, and some knowledge of history; in order to know why it is coming; he must know something of economic development.

We, as Socialists, are vitally interested in the development of civilization. History for us is not a collection of "shallow village tales," the story of the coronations, weddings and burials of kings. For us the true lesson of history is the story of the progress of mankind by gradual steps from brutal savagery to enlightenment, culture and humanity.

The manner in which one system has grown out of another, feudalism out of slavery, and capitalism out of feudalism, is most suggestive of the manner by which the Socialist republic will gradually develop out of the present system.

To do this is the aim of a set of books recently published under the title of Library of Original Sources. It gives a history of the various lines of human development. And what is its special advantage, this history is given in the original documents that formed the milestones of the development.

"THE LIBRARY OF ORIGINAL SOURCES"

sweeps away the bigotry and superstition that has accumulated around government, law, social science, religion, etc.—brings to light the naked truth and shows why Socialism is coming. This rare collection of original documents cover as well the entire field of thought—science, philosophy, sociology, education, history, religion, etc.—presenting the ideas that have influenced civilization in the actual words of those who have developed them; a history—not of mere events—but of the evolution of human ideas and institutions. Ten large and handsome volumes, printed on deckle edge paper, bound in art vellum, gold tops and title. To produce this work over 125 American and European specialists spent years searching the archives and libraries of the world, gathering, classifying and translating the great original documents underlying the civilization of the past.

Better Than Wage Work

As an illustration of the absolute contempt in which the system holds the American people's intelligence the Steel Trust's own press agents are spreading: "While we, the Steel Trust, admit we have but $250,000,000 actually invested at the start, we have since added $37,000,000 which we have earned outside our dividends."

In other words, while the Steel Trust was taking away from the American people $600,000,000 annually on an investment of $250,000,000, and paying it out in dividends of 25 per cent. annually, they were taking so much more on the quiet as to enable them in a few years to put $370,000,000 of the people's money to put into the business, and they now use this additional pillaging as their reason for further pillage.—Thomas W. Lawson.

The Iron Heel

I. WHO is the wretched little child That passes by my door each morn! A pail in hand? Poor little lass! Could any one be more forlorn?

II. Ah yes, I know the Iron Heel Has thee beneath its awful weight And you must bow beneath its tread To wait the destiny of Fate.

III. Your home so wretched, dark and cold; Thy father bent with years of toil; You too must give your young life's blood Unto the money master's spoil.

IV. Those factory walls, those smoky tombs, Must you your life within them seal, And give thy all in future years To satisfy the Iron Heel?

V. Forgive the youngsters if they laugh And chide you on their way to school, They have not felt the Iron Heel, They know not of the Greed King's rule.

VI. They know not of your sacrifice That they may linger long for play, They know not that this cruel Fate May call them to thy side some day.

VII. O, you with happy children blessed, Think of the woe the poor must feel And know that this child looks to you, To save her from the Iron Heel.

It Pays to Go to School

The table prepared by the Massachusetts State Board of Education shows the weekly earnings of children who left school at fourteen until the end of their twenty-fifth year. Those who left school at fourteen began at $4 a week and at the end of the twenty-fifth year were receiving $12.75 a week.

Those from the high school began at $10 a week and at twenty-five were receiving $31 a week. The total earnings of the elementary schoolboy in the twelve years were $5,722.50, while those of a high school boy in the eight years were $7,337.50.

Chicago's Siamese Twins

Is there a man, woman or child in this broad land who has never heard of Hinky Dink and Bath House John, the powerful bosses of the great first ward in Chicago? Alike for those who have and those who have not, Bruce Barton's striking story of these worthy gentlemen in the February Human Life, Boston, will be found of unusual interest.

The amazing political machine that these men have built up, as perfect in its workings as the steel shafts and gearing of an electric plant—the way in which it was started and carried to perfection—the personality of the two leaders and the ear-like authority which they wield, are points that fill the reader with astonishment. Unquestionably Hinky Dink and Bath House have erected the strongest political organization in the United States. From this very broad statement not even Tammany is excluded, for Tammany is occasionally defeated and always has opposition, but the Hinky Dink never. No political storm can blow up too quickly to find this good ship unprepared.

These bosses have worked out the problem of municipal government by machine to its finest perfection. The first ward organization is a government of Reformers after another dashes itself against it and is destroyed, but it stands immovable.

Wherein lies the secret of their power?

There are several factors that enable these men to retain unchallenged their leadership of the motley throng enlisted under their banner, and the writer's vivid description of that yearly function known as the first ward ball—the shame of Chicago for years—throws a new light on this subject.

Socialistic "Horrors" in Hungary

Machinists' Journal: One of the greatest problems of modern times and one which has attracted the attention of reformers, political economists and sociologists alike for years past, has been the proper housing of the workers, and every attempt at a solution of the problem has been hailed with joy by every lover of his fellow man. This problem is more intense in the cities of the old world than it is in our own larger cities, and although the same problem is crying for a solution here, the cry is not near so loud as it is there. In Budapest, Hungary, for instance, where the working people have been packed like sardines in unhealthy tenements and where landlords, the most rapacious of their kind, have demanded rents so exorbitant for accommodations so wretched that it placed the workers on the very lowest stratum of the social structure. Recognizing this evil and that rents had increased 60 per cent in ten years and that the cellar dwellings had become more densely packed and as a consequence more unhealthy and unwholesome, Dr. Alexander Wekerle, the premier of Hungary, saw the remedy and pro-

THE CHRISTIAN SOCIALIST.

The Christian Socialist is unique among Socialist papers because it is both revolutionary and religious, both scientific and ethical in its appeal and makes its plea particularly strong to religious men. It has won hundreds of ministers and other religious people to Socialism. It is intensely interesting to all classes of people. Many agnostics declare it to be the best propaganda paper in the Socialist movement. It is entirely non-sectarian and interdenominational, working among people of all creeds. There have been a number of notable special editions, among them a Presbyterian, a Baptist, a Methodist, a Protestant Episcopal, a Temperance and a Catholic Special. You need it yourself and for propaganda. 10c will bring you several sample copies. 50c pays for the paper a whole year. Address 5623 Drexel avenue, Chicago.

WHY WORKINGMEN DRINK

And why rich men drink—for that matter—is a question worth getting an answer to. When you have gotten as close to the facts as Senator Gaylord you may feel more ready to go to work on the real problem. Frances Willard said that the problem was POVERTY, not DRINK.

dwelling houses, with characteristic Hungarian fronts, quaint roofs, airy rooms and neat little gardens. The men engaged in the construction of the houses have done their work well, and we seem to be wandering among villas put up by the wealthier citizens as summer resorts rather than among the dwellings of men earning one dollar and a half a day. The air is pure and invigorating and the lot of the inhabitants is really enviable.

So much for modern progress and what can be done in solving a very difficult problem. When workmen take an active interest in politics and use their political power to have men from their own ranks represent them, they can do as the workmen of Hungary have done and force a premier not altogether in sympathy with them to put into practical demonstration what has been jeered at as a wild Socialistic dream by every opponent to labor's progress. Of a truth the world is moving.

The Morality of Socialism

ON the face of it, Socialism appears to be an impossibility; but so does Christianity. Yet we go on praying Christ's prayer, "Thy kingdom come," and nobody calls us fools—at least nobody belonging to the classes who mostly ridicule the Socialists.

And would Socialism be really a greater revolution than others that have been accomplished in history? Who would have believed it possible in the thirteenth century that within a few hundred years half of Europe would have successfully thrown off the yoke of superstition? Who, fifty years before the reform bill passed in England would have ventured to predict the electoral results of 1906? We Socialists decline to be laughed out of court on the mere score of our impossibility. No, the laugh—if laugh there must be—should be on the other side.

I look upon Socialism as a splendid ideal, like the ideal of the sermon on the mount, and I support it and further it so far as I can for much the same reasons as I support and further the extension of the gospel.

Our present system of almost unbridled competition in the industrial world seems to me to lead to results which are eminently unchristian, and finding an ideal which has laid hold of the imagination of a number of my fellow men in all civilized countries, which seems to me likely to lead to more Christian results, I embrace it, and join with them in attempting to realize it. The unchristian results to which I refer are mainly the frightful inequality of opportunity under which large masses of my fellow men live and labor—the sweating system, the fraudulent methods of business, the want of leisure, of education and of the necessities of life.

Socialism aims at redressing these wrongs. It refuses to believe that men must forever continue to live or try to live after this fashion. I do not agree with all the methods employed by Socialists, nor do I think that they appreciate the moral difficulties of the task they have undertaken, but this is not enough to deter me from giving them support. My only right to speak on this subject at all is the fact that I have been in close touch with the principal persons concerned for some twenty years.

We must get out of our heads the idea that Socialism is a selfish grabbing on the part of the "Haves-nots" from the "Haves."

Socialists are those who have

CHAPTER XXIV
PAID AGITATORS.

THE capitalist press, probably because they cannot controvert the theory of Socialism, are in the habit of abusing Socialists. Socialist writers and Socialist speakers, and very often trade union leaders, are commonly described as "Paid Agitators," and our labor papers are charged with "pandering to the worst passions of the mob," and with "battering on the earnings of ignorant dupes."

This is pretty much the same kind of language as that which the press employed against Wendell Phillips, Lovejoy, Garrison and other advanced reformers. It is the kind of language which reformers expect from the press, and also, I am sorry to say, the church. It is the natural language of shallow, or timid, or interested people, who are startled by the dreadful apparition of a new idea.

The agitator is not a nice man. He disturbs the general calm; he shakes old and rotten institutions with a rude hand; he drags into the light of day some loathsome and dangerous abuse which respectable rascality or cowardly conservatism has covered up and concealed adopted a certain political and industrial ideal and are working toward it in different ways, steadily refusing to be limited by the old divisions of party politics.

Socialism is a religion and that is why it makes such headway. It is not only getting at the imaginations, but at the consciences of its adherents. Nothing but this can account for the untiring efforts of the Socialists to make converts and to keep them.

Nor is the Socialist movement anti-Christian, as it is sometimes said to be. If it were it could not progress in so religious a country as our own.—Rev. J. Adderley.

A Study Course in Socialism

against scab-made goods; and in all these activities to be free from hindrance by injunctions or by criminal prosecutions or damage suits under laws or constructions of law based on the false theory of individual free contract between employer and employee, leaving their officers and members, of course, like all other persons responsible before the civil and criminal law for any acts of violence or fraud they may commit.

It is one of the prime duties of the Socialist party, as the political organization of the working class, to promote such legislation as will definitely guarantee all these rights. In Great Britain in 1905 and the following years, for instance, the Socialists led the fight for the passage of the Trades Disputes Bill, and both the party and the unions were greatly strengthened by it. In France and Italy in recent years the Socialists have made a vigorous campaign to extend the right of organization to state and municipal employees.

Hours of Labor and Days of Rest.—The shortening of the workday (which includes the provision for regular and adequate meal-times) is one of the most important functions of the labor movement. Its success means better health, more pleasure, more education and firmer organization for the workers actually employed; it also means a wider distribution of employment, less competition for jobs, and a better chance to raise wages. The unions have accomplished much in this direction. But there are large bodies of workers outside the unions, and the aid of a political movement to this end is invaluable.

Legislation to limit the workday generally begins with women and children, as in the British Factory Acts of 1810, 1833, 1847, etc., and the similar laws of most European countries and most American states. It may also be applied to public employees, as in the United States eight-hour law and various state enactments. Again, it may be applied to specially dangerous or unhealthy trades, as in the case of the New York bakers' ten-hour and the Colorado mine workers' eight-hour law. The effect of such a law, if enforced, often extends far beyond the workers specifically covered by under a film of humbug. He tramples upon venerable shams; he injures old-established reputations; he bawls out shameful truths from the house-tops; he is fierce and noisy; uses strong language, and very often in his rage against wrong or in the heat of his grief over unmerited suffering, he mixes his own truth with error, and carries his righteous denunciations to the point of injustice. The privileged classes hate him; the oppressed classes do not understand him; the lazy classes shun him as a pest. He finds himself standing, like Ishmael, with every man's hand against him.

But though the agitator is not a nice man, he is a useful man. Your pleasant, cultured, courteous, easy gentleman is a nice man, but he is the unconscious upholder of all that is bad, as well as of a little that is good.

There was a time when women were tortured for witchcraft; when prisoners were tortured into the confession of crimes of which they were innocent; when good men and women were burnt alive for being unable to believe the dogmas of other men's religion; when authors had their ears cut off for telling the truth; when children were worked to death in the factories; when starving workmen were hanged for stealing a little food; when boards of capitalists and landlords fixed the workers' wages; when trade unionism was a conspiracy, and only rich men had votes. Those days are gone; those crimes are impossible; those wrongs are abolished. And for these changes we have to thank the agitators.

The agitators, from Christ down to the present, have been the salt of the earth. It is only such as they who save society from dry rot and putrefaction.

Then, again, there is the practical, hard-headed man who always comes forward to prove every new thing impossible.

We have done many impossible things. Was it not demonstrated to the general satisfaction of the hard-headed ones that Stephenson could not make a train go twelve miles an hour? Was it not proved that railways would exterminate horses? Was it not proved that the Atlantic cable could not be laid?

Yet all these reforms were accomplished by little bands of agitators, in the face of tremendous opposition, and in spite of yells of execration, and virulent charges of "battering" and "incendiarity." To return to our own time. There were never any men more virulently assailed than are the present leaders of the labor movement. The favorite lie is the charge of charlatanism. The man who conducts a strike or organizes a trade union is alluded to by the press as a "paid agitator"; the labor paper is accused of "battering on the earnings of ignorant dupes."

When a paper calls a man a paid agitator, what does the charge imply? It implies that he is a liar and a rogue, who is preaching what he knows to be false and preaching it for the sake of making money. So when a writer is accused of battering on the earnings of ignorant dupes, he is accused of wilfully gulling poor men for the sake of profit.

Such charges are uttered and reiterated with such malicious persistence, that thousands of worthy people have come to believe that the "paid agitator" has an easy and lucrative trade, and that the labor paper is rolling in ill-gotten wealth as the result of its deliberate treachery to the poor.

Now, I will simply confront the slanders with the facts.

If labor leaders were dull and incapable men, who could not hope to make money and position except as demagogues; if the work of the paid agitator were easy and showed no signs of zeal and talent, if the "paid agitator" and the labor writer preached only to ignorant people, if they preached doctrines which could not be maintained, against the cleverest and best informed leaders of the parties of privilege and plunder, if the salaries of the "paid agitators" and "labor writers" were high and their lives luxurious and easy, then there might be as much ground to suspect the bona fides of these men as there now is to suspect the bona fides of the professional patriots, and of editors, who are bound by the tenets of their agreements always to prove the president in the right, or always to prove him in the wrong.

But if "paid agitators" and labor writers are proved to be men of industry and ability, who choose the thorny path instead of the flowery one; if their doctrines can withstand successfully all the attacks of their enemies; if they can be shown to be living sparsely, working hard, and earning very little, then it seems to me it will be unnecessary to defend their honor against the furtive slanders of nameless and incompetent writers who are well paid, and who do sell their conscience in the open market and to the highest bidder.

It is a very effective picture, that of the paid agitator feasting on champagne and turtle or of the labor writer driving his carriage along the promenade. But it has the fault common to editorial pictures—it is a lie.

A paid agitator gets hard work, low pay, ingratitude, and vilification. He will be an old man before his time; but a rich man never.

So much for the paid agitator. Now as to the labor papers. We are confronted with the assertion that we batter on the earnings of misguided dupes. The men who write for the party papers do not batter on the misguided dupes. The rank and file of the political parties are not dupes.

They are intelligent and discerning men. The writers on the party press are not hiring hacks. They are honorable men. It is merely a coincidence that their consciences always happen to fit in with exigencies of the party situation. They are quite different from the labor writer. He "panders to the mob." He batters on the foolish. He rolls in ill-gotten wealth.

Well, let some of the superior ones try it. Let them seek out the "dupes" and go in for "battering." They will find that the "dupe" does not yield much "batter" to the square inch. They will very soon have cause to sing the song of the disappointed pirate—

We boiled Bill Jones in the negro-pot,
To see how much fat Bill Jones had got,
But there wasn't much fat upon Jones.

What Do Socialists Stand For? This Tells You

HUMAN life depends upon food, clothing, shelter, and the means of procuring these. The fact that a small number of capitalists are permitted to use all the country's resources and social tools for their individual purposes, and to make the production of the necessities of our lives the object of their competitive private enterprises and speculations, is at the bottom of all the social evils of our time.

MODERN INDUSTRY PLANLESS. In spite of the organization of trusts, pools, and combinations, the capitalists are powerless to regulate production for social ends. Industries are largely unregulated—a planless manner. Through periods of feverish activity the strength and health of the workers are mercilessly undermined, and during periods of enforced idleness the workers are frequently reduced to starvation.

The class-war of this chaotic system of production is the result of the capitalist's desire to maintain his rule over his fellow men, the capitalists must keep in their pay all organs of the public power, public mind and public conscience. They control the dominating parties and, through them, the elected public officials. They select our executives, bribe our legislators, they control the courts of justice. They own and censor the press. They own our educational institutions. They own the nation politically and intellectually just as they own it economically.

The struggle between wage workers and capitalists grows ever fiercer, and has become a class struggle before the eyes of the people. The wage worker class, therefore, has the most vital and direct interest in abolishing the capitalist system. But in abolishing the present system, the workmen will free not only their own class, but also all other classes of modern society. The small farmer, who is today exploited by large capital, indirectly but not less effectively than is the wage laborer; the small manufacturer and trader, who is engaged in a desperate and losing struggle for economic independence in the face of the all-conquering power of concentrated capital; and even the capitalist himself, who is the slave of his wealth, rather than its master. The struggle of the working class against the capitalist class, while it is a class struggle, is thus at the same time a struggle for the abolition of all classes and class privileges.

The Book Table
THE MILLS OF ALAMOGA. By James H. Brower. Cloth, illustrated, 401 pages. Price, $1.50. Folio, Ill., P. H. Murray & Co.

This is one of those stories in which it is hard to get started, but which is hard to drop till one finishes. In this regard it reminds one of Brand Whitlock's "Turn of the Balance." It is not unlike it also, as regards its purpose, being a novel of exposure. Whitlock's book deals with society's crime against criminals and horrors and shocks as the farthest depths of state brutality are explored. Brower's art does not measure up to Whitlock's, but that is neither here nor there. The story is readable, and in parts, powerful. It is late industrial wrongs, gives a not unlikely, though untraced, exposure of development of white slavery, deals out considerable poetic justice, and where it introduces Socialism spares the reader the usual long and bookish discourses. The story goes forward with a swing that gets easier as the author gains confidence and rewards the reader for sticking to it through the first irrelevant and poky chapters. H.

The People's Hour
Sometime ago we published one of the poems from Comrade Gibson's recent book of poems, entitled "The People's Hour." This volume of verse, written as it is by a workman, voices in a splendid way the aspirations of labor in the present situation.

There is constant reference to the militant movement among the working class, and especial appreciation of the trades union element. There is a hope of triumph that prevails through all of the verses. The poem on "Sunrise on the Hills" is especially pleasing. "Paradise Regained," and "The Common Life," "The Cry and Something More," "The Love of Comrades," and "If I were a Voice" are also particularly good.

The writings are interspersed by quotations from noted Socialists and Socialist writers which add

UNEMPLOYMENT
A NEW BOOKLET ON THE BIGGEST PROBLEM
Written by SENATOR GAYLORD
Senator Gaylord introduced, at the last session of the Wisconsin legislature, a resolution in the form of a petition to congress, asking for immediate action to relieve the unemployment problem in this country.
Of course, the resolution was killed. The Republicans didn't want to know anything about it, for fear they might "recognize Socialism"—and the Democrats followed suit.
In searching for data on the subject, so as to present the argument as fully as possible, Senator Gaylord found a surprising scarcity of material available on American conditions. He began to start inquiries in every direction, however, and replies began to come in.
Meanwhile the Senator was invited to debate the subject of "Unemployment and Socialism" with John Basil Barnhill. Mr. Barnhill did not know much about unemployment, or Socialism, either, but the debate gave Comrade Gaylord occasion to probe deeper into the question.
Finding such a scarcity of information on the subject, and no Socialist book or pamphlet bearing directly upon it in detail, he decided to give the American comrades the immediate use of what material he had already secured—meanwhile continuing his investigations.
The forty pages of this pamphlet are packed with information gathered from state and national bureaus of labor, foreign reports, and such facts as could be secured from American labor organizations.
The pamphlet deals with Seasonal Unemployment, Industrial Displacement, The Chronic Unemployed, The Panic and The Industrial Reserve Army. The returns from Wisconsin are given with especial accuracy and completeness.
We have heard much of unemployment, and most of us know what it is to be "out of a job." But this little work sets forth the fact, and the Socialist argument based upon it, with startling clearness.

National Referendums

Referendum "E" (the Milwaukee Referendum)—
Amend article VI, section 1, of the national constitution, by substituting the following:
The national executive committee shall be composed of seven members from the membership of the party, and they shall hold office for two years. The members of the executive committee shall be elected by referendum vote. The call for nominations shall be issued on the first day of October in years with uneven numbers. Each local shall be entitled to nominate seven candidates. Thirty days shall be allowed for nominations, ten for acceptances and declinations and fifty for the referendum. Nominations from five locals shall entitle a candidate to be placed on the ballot. The seven candidates receiving the highest vote shall be elected. Vacancies shall be filled in similar manner. Members of the executive committee may be recalled by a referendum vote, in the manner provided for referendums in article XI hereof, except that in such cases the initiative shall not be held open for thirty days, but shall be sent out immediately.
ADOPTED, 6014 to 2685.
Amend section 1, article VII, to read "biennially" instead of "annually."
ADOPTED, 5183 to 3352.
Referendum "F," instructing the national committee to restore the old rate of three dollars a day and expenses to national organizers and speakers.
ADOPTED, 5740 to 3971.
REFERENDUM "D" (proposing a new and ill-arranged constitution for the party) was DEFEATED, 2334 to 9318. How anyone could vote for it is a mystery.

or else (b) the substitution of a new ruling class for the old one—e.g., displacement of slave holders or feudal nobles by capitalists. This is no longer true since production has become a social process and is so enormously developed and since the elements of culture are so widely disseminated. Production now goes on without the supervision of its masters; science, art, and education have also been socialized; and the working classes fully realize the value of these things, though largely debared from enjoying them.
The triumph of the working class will mean the subjugation of any other class. It will mean the social control of social production, the wiping out of economic class lines and antagonisms, the equalization of opportunity for all to apply their abilities to the service of the community, and by past achievements of mankind and so to live freely and develop their individuality.
For this reason it is possible for members of other classes, even capitalists, actuated by moral or intellectual motives, to become sincere and valuable adherents of the working class movement. For this reason also the movement commands the devotion of increasing numbers of educated persons of whatever economic class. Its fundamental dependence, however, must be on the working class itself, and the education, organization, and strengthening of that class is its primary duty.
Twofold Nature of the Working Class Movement.—The working class movement acts at once for the present and for the future, is at the same time reformative and revolutionary. Nor is there any antagonism between these two phases. They are complementary, not contradictory.
The working class movement on the industrial field—i.e., the movement of the labor unions—devotes itself particularly to the maintenance and improvement of the workers' conditions under capitalism; yet under certain circumstances these organizations also consciously follow a revolutionary aim. In general, the revolutionary character of the working class movement is more clearly present in its political phase—i.e., in the Socialist party; yet this wing of the movement likewise seeks such partial improvement of conditions as is practicable at the time.
Whether the change from a capitalist to a Socialist order of society can be accomplished gradually through a series of reforms is a question in dispute among Socialists. But there is no disagreement among those whose opinion carries weight as to the necessity of the Socialist movement striving for present reforms, no matter whether these are regarded as steps in the gradual transformation of society or as valued only for their effect in relieving present misery and strengthening the working class for future achievements.

In the remaining lessons we have to consider: 1. The ideal of social reorganization developed and striven for by the labor movement and particularly by its most conscious portion, the Socialist party; 2. the general rules of Socialist policy; 3. the working program of the Socialist party while it remains a minority party, which is determined for it both by its ultimate ideal and by the existing circumstances under which it has to do its work.

References:
During the next week each student is urged to read at least one of the following:
1. Spargo, "Socialism," chapters VI and X.
2. Hunter, "Socialists at Work," chapters VI and VII.
Upon the question alluded to in this lesson, whether or not the change from a capitalist to a Socialist order can be accomplished gradually through a series of reforms, reference may be made to Edward Bernstein's "Evolutionary Socialism" on the one side and to Karl Kautsky's "The Social Revolution" and "The Road to Power" on the other. The conscientious student will wish to hear both sides.
Suggestion for Discussion.
Assuming (as we must) that the independent small farmers will for several decades continue to constitute an important class in this country, and recognizing that there is more opposition between their interests and those of great capitalists than between their interests and those of the wage workers, do you think it advisable for the Socialist party to modify its policy or adopt a special supplementary program to appeal to them as a class? Give reasons for and against.

As to Tactics.
TO THE EDITOR:
The International Socialist party has disavowed its opposition to religion. Its membership may be of all faiths, or of no faith, and be entitled to sit in any Socialist congress or convention without being subject to ridicule, criticism or condemnation because of their faith.

Common courtesy would hold any speaker in check, or the chair would call him to order, should he attempt a tirade against any religion, church or cult dealing with spiritual things. Condemnation may go no further than to economic injustice, and then it is far better to condemn the act than to make sweeping charges of corruption, crime and infamy, against individuals or organizations. Socialists all agree that it is impossible for any one to live under capitalism and the exploiting system without being a party to the crimes.

I hold no brief for Rockefeller, Morgan, Roosevelt, Bryan or Comptroller, but I know many men of large hearts, honest purpose and a noble desire to benefit mankind, who are no farther along than these leaders just mentioned.
I believe we should temper our language to these shorn lambs and not blow hot nor cold. A word fitly spoken never should make an enemy nor drive away a hearer.
The courtesy of convention etiquette should also govern our Socialist press. I know Wayland's theory is to make an antagonist mad. On the theory of the bull fight, shake the red rag and get up a row, keep things hot. That may do for the fighting crowd, but does not win the quiet voters.
The press of the country is too venal, but attacks upon it accusing certain papers of being bought or bribed and of wilfully falsifying is of doubtful utility.

Why not appeal to manhood and public spirit of all classes—speaking no ill of any, to rise together, overthrow graft and establish the co-operative commonwealth? The farmers are awake as never before, and are inaugurating co-operation on a scale the grange never dreamed of. The church is rousing up to its duty in the social and economic field. Hundreds of preachers are thundering Socialism from their pulpits and are listened to with approval where ten years ago they would have had to step down and out. C. E. REEVES, Mich.

UNION MADE PATTERNS
LADIES SHIRTWAIST.
Paris Pattern No. 8047
All Seams Allowed.

The simple tucked shirtwaist is always liked and is very practical for linen, madras, wool batiste and taffeta silk. In this model the tucks on each side of the center front and back are stitched all the way down, those at the shoulders in front terminating at yoke depth. The shirtwaist sleeves are finished by straight cuffs. The pattern is in 4 sizes: 32 to 42 inches bust measure. Full 36-inch bust waist will require 4 1/2 yards of material 30 inches wide, 5 1/2 yards 26 inches wide, 7 1/4 yards 27 inches wide, 5 1/2 yards 36 inches wide, or 5 1/2 yards 42 inches wide.
Price of pattern, 10 cents.

Pensions for Mothers
SHE was just a pale little woman dressed in cheap mourning. She carried a pale little baby and two pale little children clung to her skirts.
"Is this the place where the mothers get pensions?" she asked timidly.
The fat lawyer scowled, because he saw by her clothes that not very much money could be got from her. But he knew by experience that some profit can be made even from poor widows. So he took the cigar from his mouth and asked shortly, "Was your husband a soldier?"
"No," said the small woman.
"Oh no! He was just a brakeman, killed in a railway smashup."
"Then why do you want a pension?" said the lawyer sternly.
"Because I haven't any coal, and Joey and Kitty need shoes and warm clothes, and I can't get them enough to eat, and the baby is always sick."
"And last night, when I was coming home from the house where I do washing, there was a man talking on the street corner. And he said that it was ridiculous to give pensions to soldiers and not to mothers. And he said that the mother's noble work was to bring human beings into the world, and the soldier's mean work was to shoot holes in them. And he said that every mother risked her life more than all the soldiers in our Cuban war, who were not in any great danger from the poor, scared Spaniards. And the only risk our heroes ran was from the embalanced beef which the government and the meat trust fed to them."
"And he said, the most precious wealth of any country is its children. That when we defend them from disease and early death, we are defending our nation a great deal more sensibly than when we sail away with rifles and bayonets to kill a few Filipinos or Spaniards who never came within a hundred miles of our country."

"Then he said that since the work of the mothers is to defend and care for our young citizens, they deserve to be rewarded by the government. And that every mother, especially every widowed mother, ought to draw a pension that would enable her to feed, clothe and house her little ones properly."
"So I thought I'd come to you and see if you could do anything about it. I need a pension so bad. Oh, you don't know how hard it is to hear the children cry and have no bread to give them!"
The lawyer stared in amazement. "Do you think we live under a Socialist government?" he yelled at her. "That man on the street corner was a Socialist! That is the sort of people who destroy the foundations of society! I would just like to put them all behind the bars! Pension you? I guess not! Don't you know that society is maintained by the survival of the fittest? If your husband was killed in a railway accident, that proves that you and your children are not fit to survive. Pensions for mothers, indeed! Socialist rot!"
He leaned back and laughed until his red face was too shaded redder. And when he went out to lunch on turkey and oysters and cocktails, he told the story to a reporter who met him in the street on a hunt for humorous anecdotes. And the reporter wrote it up in a delightfully comical way, making so much fun of the Socialists that everybody laughed next morning when they read the account in a capitalist newspaper.
But the pale little woman did not laugh as she dragged her little brood back to her fireless lodging.
And little Joey said, "Mother, I'm cold!"
And little Kitty said, "Muvver, I'm hungry!"
And the pale little woman, with a dying child's look, pitifully

Newsboys to sell the SOCIAL-DEMOCRATIC HERALD on downtown streets. Will pay no less than 50 cents a day and one-half of sales in addition. Good chance for live boys to make no less than $1.50 on Saturdays. Let us hear from you. Ask for Mr. Bistortus, this office. The boys selling the HERALD now are doing well and are pleased.
Comrade C. A. Bendlin presents a list of ten new subscribers, with the yearly price paid in advance.
Comrade Charles L. Wallen takes out some stock, which entitles him to life subscription, and transfers his unexpired paper to some friend of his.
Comrade Davis sends two new ones who are looking for information regarding our party and its work.

Comrade A. J. Sprague writes: "Enclosed find stock subscription for the HERALD, which will put an end to subscribing for it, which seems a whole lot of bother to me."
Comrade Otto Grosse wants to save his friends and gets them to subscribe to the SOCIAL-DEMOCRATIC HERALD.
And Comrade Walter Schroeder sends in two new ones.
Mr. Taylor sends in two new pluggers, as he calls them.

"I don't want to miss an issue. I expect to throw up my hat and hold for Mayor Seidel, and Berger as member of the council, before many months pass. You may not hear me being so far away, but I'll do it all the same."

The Glass Bottle Blowers, No. 15, credentials were held over.

The special committee on mass meeting on high prices of meat reported that the meeting was held in Freie Gemeinde hall and was a grand success. Resolutions were adopted. (See elsewhere in this issue.) Report placed on file.

The Building Trades council reported on its meeting. Report filed.

The Label section reported the election of Bro. M. Haller as chairman; F. Krohn, vice chairman; H. P. Bock, secretary; John Reichert, treasurer, with Bro. Kahn delegate to the Labor Temple Promotion committee. The section donated $10 to the fund for the defense against the Neacy label suit against the SOCIAL - DEMOCRATIC HERALD. Report filed.

The Waiters' local reported having signed an agreement with the Schlitz Brewing company and announced that favorable terms could be made by unions for a hall and two large rooms at Swoboda's cafe on East Water street.

The executive board reported a complaint against members of certain unions playing with non-union hands and the board decided to take it up at a later meeting. The board recommended that a committee be appointed for Labor Day, the recommendation being taken up later in the meeting. The board acknowledged the receipt of answers from congressmen in regard to its letters on the question of higher postal rates. A communication from the A. F. of L. was referred to the business agent. The board presented a communication from the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor relative to the danger of the re-use of old bottles by certain manufacturers of condiments, etc. A communication from the State Federation was also received urging unions to contribute to the cost of the defense in court against the $10,000 label suit brought against the SOCIAL - DEMOCRATIC HERALD by Tom Neacy, and the board recommended that the donations be as liberal as possible. Approved.

The board recommended that a committee be appointed to investigate an employment agency run by one P. C. Jennings. The recommendation was concurred in and the chair appointed Bros. Weber, Handley and Reichert as such committee.

The board recommended that a communication from the Bakery Workers in regard to the West Side Turn hall be placed on file. Moved to concur. Moved as a substitute that a committee be appointed to try to secure a settlement between the Turn hall and the Building Trades council. Substitute withdrawn. The recommendation of the board was thereupon concurred in.

The board recommended that credentials be given Bro. A. Miner, an electrician of Albany, N. Y., who lost his arms in an accident in his trade, to visit the unions and conduct a drawing; also, that a committee be appointed, together with the business agent, to handle the raffie tickets. The recommendations were concurred in and the chair appointed Bros. Weber, Griebeling, Reichert and Rumpel as the committee.

A communication was received from the International Association of Machinists, urging the council to write the members of congress in favor of the eight-hour bill for all government contracts now pending in congress, and the board recommended that the business agent forward the petitions that accompanied the request. On motion the executive board report was concurred in as a whole.

The chair appointed the following brothers to serve as a Labor Day committee: Frank J. Weber, William Griebeling, John J. Handley, John Brophy and John Rader. Bro. Handley urged the unions to consider the question of marching on Labor Day, and moved that the matter of improving the Labor Day observance, which had been given to a special committee at a former meeting, be taken up.

On June 18, 1906, Belmont acknowledged a further contribution for the same purpose from Vreeland. On Aug. 20, 1906, he wrote him as follows:

Dear Mr. Vreeland, I saw the chairman of the public ownership commission, today, and he told me that the report of the commission will be very voluminous and will be most likely out of the printer's hands by the middle of next January. THE WORK AS FAR AS I UNDERSTAND IS VERY SATISFACTORY.

Unions and Judges at War

THE courts of the United States are to have war with the labor unions, then there is but one thing for the labor unions to do. They must have war.

Since nine-tenths of all law is judge-made law, the labor unions are given at once the key to the action required of them.

And the unions must act. Successful war is offensive and not alone defensive. It is attack and not the receipt of attack.

In America the great aggregations of capital have come to say, "We care not so much how the laws are written into the statute books, so long as our judges may interpret them. And there is truth in that."

In Milwaukee the molders' union went pretty nearly to smash and had to build up again. With no judge to grant an injunction, with no capitalistically-interested law we might not have had that regrettable catastrophe.

Just now another shock comes from the East. The United Hatters have been fined $222,000 by a court. And the hatters did nothing except go on strike for decent pay and decent conditions.

To be sure, they picketed and they fought for their rights.

But we are told by our judges that to picket is illegal. There was a time when to picket was a perfectly proper right. Now it has made it improper, except JUDGES. No judge except a capitalist judge would make it improper.

In England picketing was made illegal and the capitalists were given a right to attach the money in union treasuries as damages.

The workers became aroused then. By force of ballots the Eng-

To Organized Labor Everywhere

Greeting: The lockout of the Garment Workers by the Marx & Haas Clothing Co. is still on. We are determined to fight to the bitter end. There can be neither truce nor peace until the rights of organized labor will be recognized by the Marx & Haas Co., manufacturers of the Jack Rabbit Brand of clothing.

Organized labor throughout the land is supporting our locked-out members very liberally, both morally and financially. Never before have business men been so much interested in any labor disputes as the retail clothing dealers are in the Marx & Haas lockout.

While thanking you for the solidarity you have shown toward the St. Louis Garment Workers in these hours of struggle, we assure you that we are more determined than ever to bring the Marx & Haas fight to a successful and victorious conclusion.

We do not UNDERESTIMATE the power of Van Cleave & Co.; neither do we overestimate our own strength. It is with the undiminished support of organized labor that we will and must win this battle, which has been bravely fought since Sept. 13, 1909, i. e., for over four months. We are confident that you will continue your moral and financial support in our behalf.

Dear Mr. Vreeland, I saw the chairman of the public ownership commission, today, and he told me that the report of the commission will be very voluminous and will be most likely out of the printer's hands by the middle of next January. THE WORK AS FAR AS I UNDERSTAND IS VERY SATISFACTORY.

August Belmont.

The public ownership commission was made up of certain professors, capitalists and labor leaders and was sent abroad by the Civic Federation to get the "facts" about public ownership. The money meeting, be given to the new Labor Day committee. Carried.

lish unions have forced the rulers to give back the right to picket and the right to hold inviolate the treasury.

We, in America, as did they in England, turn from the courts, defeated.

There must be a readjustment somewhere. We feel that in every fiber. We know it. We have passed through the fire and the lesson is burned deep into our souls.

One of the great steps in this readjustment will be the election of working class judges—Social-Democratic judges.

In the election of Social-Democratic judges in Milwaukee labor will have struck a great blow against oppression by judge law, and it will have taught the nation that there is a great, purifying force at work among the world's toilers—a force to be reckoned with.

American workingmen love liberty, justice, home and the right to pursue happiness and not to pursue it but to get it.

We in Wisconsin have seen the futility of making laws that we need, only to have them killed by judges. Witness the tenement house law and the telegraphers' eight-hour law.

Let the workmen of Milwaukee be the first to take this great step in advance. Let us, here in this advance ground of the nation, be first to set up courts that shall be real and true and honest with the whole people.

What IS "Law?" No lawyer today knows the law because the law isn't the law. The law is the judge's opinion of the law. And a judge's success consists in having one ear close to the ground. We are ruled by public opinion.—Elbridge Hubbard.

Mortuary Benefit

The International Typographical Union just now is taking a special referendum vote on the proposition of establishing a mortuary benefit in accordance with a resolution adopted at the recent convention of the international. As outlined at the convention, the plan provides for the following payments:

"On the death of each member in good standing a death benefit shall be paid to the designated beneficiary in amount as follows: For a membership of one year or less, $75; for a continuous membership of more than one year and not more than five years, $125; for a continuous membership of more than five years, $175; for a continuous membership of more than ten years and not more than fifteen years, $275; for a continuous membership of more than fifteen years, $400."

The plan provides for the payment of death claims beginning in June, 1910, providing the proposition carries when the referendum vote is taken.

Owing to a misunderstanding of dates, the Twenty-second Ward Branch has been obliged to postpone its schafskopf tournament from Feb. 13 to Feb. 20. Therefore, the original tournament will take place next Sunday afternoon, at Waedekind's hall, 2714 North Avenue. A large number of valuable prizes have been solicited by the committee, and will be given to the winners.

The Jewish Progressive Dramatic Club will hold a dramatic entertainment, to be followed by a sociable, Saturday evening, Feb. 10, at the Deutscher Maennerchor hall, corner Eighth and State streets. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

The Town of Lake Branch No. 3 will hold its second annual prize schafskopf tournament at Huelbeck's hall, end of Tippecanoe car line, Sunday afternoon, Feb. 20. A sociable will follow in the evening.

representation to this convention will be as follows: One delegate at large from each ward organization, and one delegate for each one hundred votes or major fraction thereof cast in the last presidential election by the Social-Democratic in that respective ward. The representation therefore will be as follows:

Wards—	Delegates—
First	3
Second	6
Third	7
Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-third	11

In connection with representation, the towns are also requested to be represented at this convention and the following representation has been made out for them:

Town of Lake—Three delegates
Town of Greendale—Four delegates
Town of Milwaukee—Two delegates
City of West Allis—Two delegates
Town of Wauwatosa—One delegate

In connection with this, the ward branches have been requested to see to it that foreign speaking branches get representation at this convention by appointing committees and holding joint sessions with the foreign speaking branches. The secretaries are also requested to see to it that the credentials blanks are properly filled out and submitted to the secretary of the convention on the night when the convention is to be held.

(Signed) E. T. MELMS,
County Organizer, Milwaukee County Social-Democratic Party.

IMPORTANT.—Our party standards are reminded that under the new law 20 per cent of the party vote must be got out at the primaries to get our candidates nominated. The presidential vote is to be taken as the basis. It is important to get not only 20 per cent out but more, as there are indications that the honorable enemy is desperate this year and is plotting all sorts of low tricks against us.

Rotten Street Car Service

Our European Correspondent on a Visit to Milwaukee Shows How Old World Cities Manage

Coming back here to my native land after many years of travel in Europe, being used to the orderly ways and methods of transportation on the other side of the big fish pond, it is almost impossible to understand how people, who claim to be free, can allow themselves to be made such slaves of by the railroad and street car companies of the United States.

In every European city, every passenger that pays his fare is entitled to a seat. And when the seats are filled, and the standing room on the rear platform occupied, a little sign is let down upon which is printed "besetzt" or "filled up."

When this sign is on the car, it will not stop to take up any more passengers until enough have got out to make room for more, so that enough cars have to be put on to handle the traffic on this basis.

The consequence is that there is no crowding, no accidents due to people hanging on, to say nothing about the great discomfort and inconvenience caused by the packing up of cars such as is done here in Milwaukee.

All of the larger cities have ordinances regulating the traffic, fixing the fares, and all cities have the zone traffic. The minimum rate being 2½ cents, and then going up as high as 3½ cents, and 4 cents and 5 cents for the longest distances.

When a passenger pays his fare he gets a ticket which entitles him to a transfer in the direction he wants to go.

Cars are mostly heated by electricity and in many cities are divided in half, one-half being for smokers and the other half for ladies and non-smokers.

Safety appliances have got to be put on according to the ordinances, rolling stock is kept in perfect condition, and accidents are practically unknown.

No one is allowed to enter or leave the car while it is in motion and there is a fine of from 25 cents to $1 for any one getting off the car before it stops.

The guards around the wheels underneath the cars are such that it is almost impossible for anybody to get under the wheels. Anybody falling down on the track is usually pushed aside and the injuries are mostly in the shape of bruises and scratches, resulting from sliding the body along on the ground.

There is no city I know of in Europe whose people would stand the discomforts, the pushing, hustling and jostling and the company rules that govern the conduct of the conductors on your street cars here. Everything moves in a much more orderly and safe way, and there have to be sufficient cars to give everybody a seat that wants to ride.

The speed is regulated, and they have usually a five to six minutes service, and this schedule is held.

The streets between the tracks have to be taken care of by the street car companies, and have to be kept in a perfect condition. No salt is allowed to be used in the winter, and the snow that is removed from the tracks, has to be carted away and cannot be piled up on the streets.

Every city, particularly in Germany, is now working towards municipal ownership—that is, toward

Invented Printing, and Since His Day

Recently the Westminster club of the East side, an aristocratic club of gentlemen, held a meeting and discussed ways and means to improve the street car service. Among other rot these gentlemen of leisure took up the matter of cleanliness of cars and neatness of conductors. These fellows, who rise at noon time and work a little on nothing but who talk a whole lot—I would really love to see them get up before dawn like these poor streetcar men, sweep and clean their cars, carry out ashes, build a fire in a stove with as little fuel as possible and then work ten or more hours a day and in evenings, too, and still appear neat and clean, after jumping off at every bridge and railroad crossing. These men are as a rule too weary and tired after their struggle for a mere existence to take a shave at night.

Protecting Its Pet

The Social-Democrats are becoming disgusted at the conduct toward them of the Free Press, which freely opens its columns to blatherers of the Bayliss type and then refuses those he slanders the right of reply. Last week it printed a letter from Bayliss, full of vituperation and falsehood and when Ald. Weiley sent a gentlemanly letter in reply it cut all references to the letter.

To the Editor: Allow me a word on the question of non-partisan candidates for office.

The people have suffered much from officials elected on the old party tickets.

And now certain persons have taken up the notion that the remedy is to be found in electing to office men who are lacking by no party, who are bound by no platform, who have no guarantee whatever to offer for the faithful performance of their duties.

Such a stupid "reform" as this would be simply jumping out of the frying pan into the fire.

Milwaukee can not be reformed by irresponsible individuals. Milwaukee can only be redeemed by an honest party, with an honest platform, which it honestly carries out through its elected officials.

I may state without fear of contradiction that this has been the record of the Social-Democratic party. I will challenge any person to show any official act of the Social-Democrats which has violated their platform.

It is the platform and principles of the Social-Democratic party which control the conduct of Social-Democratic officials. And the fact that on all important questions the Social-Democrats vote together simply proves, not that they are "controlled from Sixth Street," but that they are faithful to the pledges of their platform, that they take these pledges seriously, and in the light of these promises, which they have made to the people, they will conscientiously administer the affairs of Milwaukee.

It is true that the Social-Democratic party "represents a class." But it is a great class—it is 90 per cent of the population—it is the class of the people against the "interests."

On the other hand, how can the voters of Milwaukee know that any individual on a non-partisan ticket may not be secretly representing the interests against the people? The majority of the voters cannot know him personally or have any assurance of what he will really stand for if he is elected.

For instance, the voters of Milwaukee may not be generally aware that Mr. John A. Bayliss is a city contractor. It is hardly possible for the voters to look up the record of every private citizen who runs for city office. But the record of the parties they should know if they pay any attention to public affairs.

The voters of Milwaukee would be very foolish to trust any man who stands on the vague platform proposed for the non-partisan candidates: "The best interests of Milwaukee and all her people." This reminds me of the candidate who instructed his friends to tell the voters that "he was right" on a certain burning issue. What are in fact the "best interests of Milwaukee?" John I. Beggs and the Social-Democrats have exactly opposite opinions on that point.

Or Mr. Bayliss, as a city contractor, may have a different view of the "best interests of Milwaukee" from the view of a common citizen who has no business interests in public affairs.

What is wanted for cleaning up Milwaukee is not a non-partisan ticket. What is wanted is a clean party, a straightforward party, which says exactly what it is going to do, and does exactly what it says.

In voting for such a party, the voter can know just what he is going to get. In voting for an irresponsible individual, he is simply shooting his vote into the air.

CHARLES L. WEILEY, Alderman, Twenty-first Ward.

To the above must be added the amusing fact that while the Free Press suppressed the above indicated portion of the Weiley letter, the editors must have shown Bayliss the portion cut out, for he had a letter in the Wednesday Press "answering" the portion that was not printed. He said that even if he was a street contractor he never made a success of it, which is a pretty rich confession for such a "loud-mouth" to make. If all the truth should come out about Bayliss's street contract operations, it would make the average citizen gasp.

Labor Notes

A suite of large rooms on the third floor at Swoboda's cafe, 423 East Water street, formerly occupied by United Spanish War Veterans, has been leased by the Waiters' union. Meetings will be held there every Tuesday afternoon, although in general use right along. Since the first of the year the membership of the union has been doubled, giving the union ninety members. The rooms are equipped for meeting places and will be sublet to unions and other organizations. Unions will find them very handy for meetings. There is a hall and two large rooms adjoining for committee and other work.

Barbers' union will return to its old hall at 216 Grand avenue, and beginning in March will meet there on the first and third Thursdays of the month.

A movement to form a district of men employed in automobile plants has been inaugurated by the International Association of Machinists and will be handled locally by J. J. Handley, business agent in Milwaukee. The movement will have for its purpose the organizing of skilled and semi-skilled mechanics.

by Johnnie Gorman, Crystal.

"The Typewriter Girl," is the title of a comedy sketch presented by Ralph Cummings and company. If all typewriter girls were like the one in the Crystal's bill there would be something doing in the tall office buildings of the big cities. This act ends with what they call "a screen" in vaudeville circles. The closing number is one of those snappy comedy horizontal bar acts that in Milwaukee, among patrons of gymnasiums and the turner societies, will find many admirers. Lester and Mildred have a novelty singing, dancing and whistling act. The act is good and the girls are good looking.

Gayety.

Sam Howe will be the chief laugh maker in his offering of "The Rialto Rounders," at the Gayety theater, next week. "A Day at Niagara Falls" and "A Day at the Races" are the two amusing sketches presented by the organization this season. The opening farce shows the scheming of a burlesque manager, who, to advertise the show, sends "Moses Cohen" (Sam Howe) in an aeroplane over the falls. A splendid scenic reproduction of the mighty falls are shown and a miniature aeroplane is presented.

New Star.

The handsomest chorus girls on the stage and the spalliest ponies in the world are featured with "Follies of the Day," the musical comedy which comes to the New Star theater next week, with matinees daily, direct from a long run on Broadway, New York. "Follies of the Day" has all the qualifications necessary for a musical show, possessing, as it does, plenty of real clean comedy.

Hippodrome.

The best bill that has been offered this season has been arranged at the Hippodrome for next week. Tuesday night, Washington's Birthday party, in which souvenirs will be given, skating and dancing after. Thursday night an hour's team race, one of the most exciting contests held this season. Friday night basketball game between the School of Engineers and the Perseverance Hickorys. Saturday night skating and dancing reception. The big feature of the week will be the exhibition trick skating by Fred Delmont, champion fat man roller skater. Delmont's act will commence Tuesday night and continue all week.

Racine Notes

In a course of a few years more Racine will also be on the map with other cities in the ranks of organized labor in erecting a labor temple. The Union Hall Association of Racine, an organization that was created some years ago by the local unions to raise funds for the purpose of building a temple, made a splendid report of its last year's work. The report shows a gain of over $1,000. The report Jan. 31, 1910, of the association shows a cash fund of $3,022.46, and a cash value of $5,600 in city property. The association and its officers deserve a few words of praise for their perfect system of operation and for the showing of last year's results. The officers of the association are: President, Leonard Wiedner; vice president, Theo. Foster; financial secretary and treasurer, J. M. Cooney; corresponding and recording secretary, William Jones.

The aldermen of the Racine common council, representing the "capitalistic twin" parties, gave their annual pro-restriction side show, to attract the people's attention away from the Social-Democratic

Furniture Bargains

For the next two weeks we are offering the greatest bargains ever heard of in furniture selling. This year we have made contracts with the Royal Furniture Co. of Grand Rapids, W. K. Cowan, of Chicago, Gustav Stickley, of New York, and Berkey & Gay Flanders Furniture of Grand Rapids to handle exclusively their lines in this city. There are therefore a great many pieces of furniture on our floors at the present time which we shall not handle the coming season—and in order to make room for shipment already arriving, we have marked them at prices which will never again be duplicated in the furniture market.

Davidson.

In "The Awakening of Helena Richie," Margaret Anglin has scored another hit as an emotional actress, and she will be seen in this play, which has been constructed by Charlotte Thompson, at the Davidson theater, next Monday night. The engagement is for three nights and a matinee on Wednesday. The story of "The Awakening of Helena Richie" is one of the Tales of Old Chester, which are the most popular products of Margaret DeLand's pen, and one of its prominent characters is Dr. Lavender, the old preacher and philosopher. In Helena's frenzied pleading, in act three, with Dr. Lavender, that he permit her to keep the child, and in her passionate attempt to justify to some extent her shadowed life, Miss Anglin is said to sweep her audience with a wave of emotion which compels the closest attention and wins for her enthusiastic applause.

Bijou.

It is certain that Thurston's many magic surprises will be the talk of our city the next week, opening tomorrow afternoon. There will be an extra matinee on Tuesday, Washington's birthday. Magic is one of the greatest forms of entertainment in the world and America has the credit of producing the greatest magicians of the past century. Thurston is the ideal magician, quiet, impressive, and magnetic. He creates wonder after wonder until the audience question the veracity of their own eyes. This season Thurston's program contains many new illusions, among which may be mentioned the "Indian Rope Trick."

Alhambra.

At the Alhambra, Sunday night, Wilton Lackaye will be seen in "The Battle," by Cleveland Moffet. "The Battle" aroused interest not only on account of its merits as a drama, but also because of its novel attitude on subjects of popular interest. It concerns principally the adventures of John J. Haggleton, the richest man in New York, in his quest for a long lost son, during which he is brought to "Lung Block," a tenement district notorious for its unsanitary condition.

Majestic.

Miss Fanny Ward, presenting "Van Allen's Wife," the biggest and most expensive act ever brought to the Majestic theater, headlines the bill for the week starting Monday afternoon. "Van Allen's Wife" is the condensation of the play of the same name, in which Miss Ward recently starred. Only recently this play was presented at the Illinois theater in Chicago at $2 prices, yet there will be no advance in the regular Majestic scale during the engagement here. "Swat Milligan" the greatest baseball farce, will be the second big feature of the bill, presented party in the coming spring campaign. The question of a raise in salary $300 a year for the chief of police, was the title of the play. In the first act the heroes voted it down. At the next meeting the first act was repeated for the benefit of the Six o'Clock club, who were there in a body to lobby in behalf of the chief. In the next act the board of health saved the day by allowing the amount wanted to the chief as a health officer! In the third and last act only one actor appeared. This was the city attorney, who declared that the act of the board was illegal, and then the curtain went down with great applause. It is now hoped by the "twin" party's promoters that the heroes will again be elected and returned to the council as the reward for their grand work, but the people are gradually getting wise to the game and are beginning to listen to the Socialists now.

Jones Islanders Win!

Judge John K. Parish, Ashland, who has been trying the suit of the Illinois Steel company against Joseph Konkell in circuit court, decided on Monday that the company had no title to the property on Jones island in question and instructed the jury to return a verdict in Konkell's favor.

As the company's claim to much of Jones island is based on the same transfer, if the supreme court sustains Judge Parish's decision on the appeal, suits now pending against residents on this property will be dismissed.

This decision will not only please the islanders, but all lovers of justice as well, for the operations of the Steel Trust on Jones island have been disgusting in the extreme. It has used every artifice to trap the unsuspecting inhabitants of the island, and its only hope now is the supreme court.

Making Them Pay!

The Democrats have the most efficient political machine extant. In former years each city employee had to belong to the Rose Club and contribute directly to the campaign fund. This was stopped, but they easily got around it. Each ward has a captain who collects tribute from every city employee (and there are many) in his ward, and if such employee fails to fork out promptly he loses his position a few days later. Such employee is likewise ordered to plug actively. An ordinance passed and enforced by the common council, preventing this in pain of dismissal would perhaps have some effect. But the most powerful organizations of all are the various church societies. A Socialist.

Old Party Aldermen Play the Usual Tactics with Police "Offs" Resolution. Ald. Strehlow Asks Cold Storage Investigation

Ald. Strehlow (S.D.) of the Twentieth ward, introduced the following resolution at Monday's meeting of the common council:

WHEREAS, Astonishing information has been secured in the East with regard to food piled up in cold storage and kept away from the people so as to affect prices and produce a virtual famine in the living of the average family; and

WHEREAS, The people are becoming desperate and are seeking means by which to secure relief from the artificial high prices that oppress them on every hand; therefore

RESOLVED, That the health commissioner be and he is hereby directed to investigate the cold storage plants located in Milwaukee and to acquaint this council with the contents thereof, both as to amounts of the various foods and the length of time such foods have been stored, together with such other details as will naturally suggest themselves in such an investigation and in such a crisis as the present; and further

RESOLVED, That the said commissioner of health cause monthly visits to be made to the said cold storage houses and that reports be filed with the city of the foods stored therein.

The resolution, for its timeliness, attracted considerable attention, and will undoubtedly be passed.

Ald. Weiley (S.D.), Twenty-first ward, put on his war paint and tried to get immediate action on his policemen's "offs" measure. The experience he had before the police committee showed him that there was no hope there, and he moved that the resolution be recalled from the committee and put upon its passage. The Republican and Democratic aldermen who thought they had effectually bottled the measure up in the committee were set a trembling. Their plan was plainly to hold the resolution in the box till after election and then kill it off.

Ald. Pierson (D.) jumped to his feet. "May I ask what is the urgency for taking this resolution from the committee?" he demanded of Weiley.

Ald. Weiley—"I'll answer that by asking what is your reason for not wanting to act on it?"

Ald. Braun (R.)—"The committee is giving it consideration and it should not be taken away. It is true, Ald. Weiley had the city's reference librarian write to other cities and that he found that policemen got off in some of them, but perhaps they are working on a different system. We wanted more time so the chief could find out about the other cities."

Ald. Weiley replied that the chief had all the information he could get and hinted that the talk about different systems was simply grasping after more excuses. In reply to a claim that it would cripple the department, he said that the chief had represented that there were forty men, on the average, sick, but that he had got the actual figures and they showed seven men sick in fourteen days.

Ald. Biersch (D.)—"I object to Ald. Weiley's discussing this question; he is not speaking to the motion. We'll all vote for off's for the policemen when the time comes."

jack? Every time one of those flat-wheels makes a turn it gives the car a lift!

These are real funny days. The Free Press in its far-fetched and dishonest effort to insult the trade union mass meeting went to Ald. Joe Carney for an opinion. This disgraced card-man solemnly pronounced the meeting a failure. Well, the people can stand such "failures," we rather guess!

We urge South Side people to sign the petitions to the state railway commission for track elevation. It may do some good; the change is worth taking, although this far the "regulation" of the state rate commission has been a positive detriment to Milwaukee. Beggs has been sabbier than ever with his people-be-damned management.

A few remnants of the old time political scabs are getting busy in the unions trying to get union men to boost them for positions as aldermen-at-large candidates on the capitalist party tickets. Every time such a character gets into office he forgets his unionism and becomes the worst of tools for the capitalist interests. Ald. Carney and Ald. Winters in the present common council are good specimens of renegades of this sort.

Last week Supervisors Mensing and Urbanek were passing the county jail, when they saw the county automobile filling up with ladies all fogged out for a pleasure ride. A little further on they came across Sheriff Franke. "Do you have lady deputies sheriffs now?" he was asked. He looked embarrassed and finally admitted that the ladies were going out to a party given them at one of the county institutions! It is for such things that the county money is squandered when the county supplies the sheriff with an automobile for official uses. It is the Clancy case over again!

Is there some way to protect injured people against the brutality of the street railway's "medical" department? When a man is injured on the street cars the company seems to feel that the case belongs to it to do as it pleases about it. Instead of rushing the unfortunates to the hospital they are taken to the Public Service building.

Wednesday a man named Felski was injured on a Clibourn street car. He was taken to the Public Service building, where the company's physician, Dr. Lemon, looked him over. Then the man was turned over to the police, and next morning was found dead in his cell! It was found that there had been a hemorrhage at the base of the skull and that when he was thrown into the cell he was in a dangerous condition. Dr. Lemon now admits this.

"The car arrived at the Public Service building about 7:30 o'clock in the evening," said Dr. Lemon, "and for the following two hours the man was under my care. He could not make an intelligent reply to any of my questions. My examination showed a slight concussion of the brain, but failed to reveal a hemorrhage at the base of the skull. I telephoned to the central police station for an officer."

Milwaukee is not a safe place to live in as long as John I. Beggs is at large!

Mass Meeting a Big Success!

Freie Gemeinde Hall Overtaxed with Great Crowd to Hear the Speakers. Uncle Sam Urged to Nationalize the Meat Industry

The mass meeting of citizens Tuesday night, called by the Federated Trades Council, was a grand success. Freie Gemeinde Hall was packed to the doors and extra accommodation was secured by removing the sliding partitions back of the gallery. And this in spite of the weather, which was not calculated to help the attendance.

It was a representative meeting, not a "representative" meeting of "leading" citizens, but of the brawn and sinew of the city and the women of the working class.

Only one newspaper in the city tried to belittle the meeting, and that was the Free Press, which is nevertheless supported by a good many working people. The Sentinel especially gave a fine report, with pictures of the speakers.

William Griebing, business agent of the Building Trades Council, presided, and the speakers were Frank J. Weber, Mother Jones, Joseph G. Donnelly and A. M. Simons, editor of the Chicago Daily Socialist.

Mr. Weber gave a clear picture of the situation as between the people and the trusts, using a blackboard to more clearly show the startling truth. There was no escape for the people except by taking the government into their own hands, he said.

"Food-stuffs are in the hands of the capitalist class," he said, "organized to get greater returns on the investment. The railway system is the greatest trust. It controls the transportation of every article of food, including meat. The railway trust is controlled by five men. These five men are able to starve the rest of the people by refusing to transport the food supply. Packing, storage and elevator industries are under one head. If you refuse to buy one product you still contribute to the trust through the other products."

"J. Pierpont Morgan controls 40 per cent of the railroad mileage. He controls $5,100 out of a total of 235,000 miles. He has wealth enough to buy the city of Chicago at its assessed valuation and have a big annual income on the balance of his wealth."
