Politicians will learn bye and bye that it doesen't pay to monkey with that it doesn't provide the Socialist burz saw. At Osceola Mills, Pa., the Socialists found that the election board at the last election failed to make proper returns as to the So-cialist vote. So they took the matter into court and the board could not very well avoid pleading guilty and so had to pay the costs. Next time they will remember their burned fingers and know better, I guess!

The Chicago Daily Socialist has changed its name to The Chicago Evening World. The change came about Evening World. The change came about in a rather unusual way. A big printers' strike in Chicago with the newsboys in active sympathy, resulted in the paralysis for many days of the old party newspaper offices. The Chicago Dally Socialist stepped into the breach with a morning edition which it called The Morning World. It came pretty near being the only daily reading matter Chicagoans had for s veral days, and when the strike subsided in intensity the morning paper was continued and the morning paper was continued and finally, to take advantage of the wide advertising the morning venture had had, the name of the regular evening dition was changed as noted above.

A reader asks for a definition of sabotage, also the pronunciation of the word. The accepted pronunciation is sab, as in Sabbath, a as in far and tage as tawsh, the h being soft. The word comes from sabot, a peasant's shoe. Sabotage has come to stand for a form of lawlessness that is explained pleas-antly by its advocates as a strike where the striker stays at work—and, of course, does all the injury to the employer that he can. Putting emery dust ployer that he can. Putting emery dust in the machinery to cripple it, or chemicals in boilers, or castor oil in bread dough are little tricks of labor warfare that are now referred to as sabotage. It smacks a good deal of the old, extreme pure and simple tactics. It is at best cowardly fighting, and very short-sighted bosides.

No class of human beings, however set aside from the rest of mankind by dress and association, have been more persistent, cunning and soulless in their villification of Social-Democracy than the Jesuits. Yet we find that our party in Germany protested when the Jesuits were expelled from that nation for their intrigues and plottings, and today when the subject is again up they are again protesting, just as they do against exception laws of whatever nature. It was in 1872 that Bismarckiexpelled the been kept out ever since. Speaking of flags—this number is a sort of flag number—the way to exait the American flag with the American people is to keep it clean—to make it the emblem of a republic pledged to political liberty dearly won, a government of the people. The way, to lower respect for the flag is to make it the emblem of all that is mean, and low and corrupt in old party politics, and to make it the emblem of business grafts. Socialists respect and revere the stars and stripes for what it really stands for, a nation of the people, by the people and for the people.

As for the red flag, that has come down to us through history as "the incalculably aged flag of labor," and we respect it as such. It has been the emrespect it as such. It has been the emblem of the oppressed for centuries on centuries. But, after all, it is a non-essential with us. It isn't even worth making a scare over. But we use firth the same right that the papal yellow is used by its followers, or as the square compass is used by our Masonic brethren, and so on. But the origin of the red flag is interesting.

Of course you have noticed that they were very high. But do you know that the American prices on January 1, 1910, were the highest ever recorded?

According to statistics: breadstuffs, which were, to use an average figure, 52 cents on July 1, 1896—were 99 cents on September 1, 1907, and $1.02 on July 1, 1910.

It is true that because of the general outcry, some prices have fallen slightly, about one-half per cent whole-

What if they did? Even so, most prices are higher than they ever were known to be before. And the chances are that they will hold their own this year. We should like to know, madam, how you manage to feed your family on the money you get.

How do you manage to make ends meet, especially at the close of the week?

Did you ever think about it yourself?

No doubt this last year has been very hard for you. Food prices especially have gone up to figures they have never before reached.

But it has been found by statistics that more than half of the total income of a workingman's family is spent for food.

And that is natural enough. Before all things, one

The rent may be stood off. The clothing may be patched. The family may be cold. But the children must eat. And so must the grown people.

Now, what will you do with your family, madam?

The wealthy people say that you do not know how to ve, madam.

But how can you save?

Because the average workingman is poor, his family is unable to practice such ordinary economies as the middle lass think most necessary.

The wife buys one cake of soap for 5 cents, when 25 cents would buy six cakes. She buys one can of tomatoes at a time for 10 cents, when six cans may be bought for 50 cents, etc.

For the workingman who earns $750 a year, which is more than the average workingman earns in Milwaukee, we can say the following:

His family is underfed; is almost ragged; is cold in winter; is huddled, six or seven persons in four rooms; millionaires are infinitely nicer than your house.

There are some poodle dogs that wear diamond studded is without sanitation; is weighed down by debts; is a prey to Shylocks; is in wretched surroundings; and is in a daily race with starvation.

For neat, the average family eats sausage, cheap stew meat, pork, and sometimes the cheapest round steak. And they are mighty glad to get that. Half of the year the family uses eggs.

The only luxury is tobacco for the head of the family.

And in some families, an occasional pint of beer.

So what are you going to do about it?

This is a great country, and produces all we need We produce so many things of all kinds, particularly foodstuffs, that we send them all over the world. And if there should not be enough, we could easily produce ten times as much.

SEATTLE. Wash.—A great city openly defying a judge of the federal court—and getting away with it!

That is the spectacle presented to the people of the nation today by the City of Seattle.

For the first time in the history of the United States the people have defied a judge and purposely ignored and violated his order because they believed that judge to be unfair and tyrannical.

In coming into the city Rainier Valley people had to transfer from the Renton system to the Seattle electric lines. Two fares were charged, whereas they claimed that as the lines were within the city limits, only one fare should be charged, and transfers given from one line to the other. That was what the law said.

The question was taken to the state courts, where it was decided in favor of the people. Then the Renton line carried it to the United States supreme court—and there it lies at present.

The conductors, seting under their boss' orders, stopped the cars to dispute the question.

A whole traction system was tied up by an indignant people until the company gave in by letting the passengers ride into town free.

The struggle went on, day after day, and each day the militant people fought out the lasue with Crawford's line until he turned te a United States court to back him up.

At his request Federal Judge Hanford granted the Renton line a blanket injunction against the city of Seattle and the patrons of the line, forbidding them to even ask for a transfer or to symbol for the "sacred" image or picture they destroyed.

It may amuse some to attack the flag. Such actions do not lead to anything. An attack on the flag rejoices the hearts of the possessing class. An attack on their political powers does not. Yet those who made such a commotion at the May Day demonstration are the very ones who do not use the most effective weapen the working class possesses, the ballot. Why? Let them answer. It is up to them. And until they do, and rightly, we place them with the most insidious, cowardly and contemptible of all the enemies of the working class. And they do not belong to that class, for the y are against it.

If they were working to hang the mob through creating public distrust, they could not have worked more effectively.

One thing is certain, they were not working in the interests of the two men who are now in jail in Lawrence or in the interests of the working class as a whole. The question persists, therefore: for whom were they working?

Brisbane Hall is one of the finest buildings in Milwaukee, and every Socialist and union man and woman in Milwaukee is proud of it as the home of labor. It is centrally situated at the corner of Sixth and Chestnut streets, a live business part of the city. Remember, $37,850 of the stock is already disposed of.

It is a four story and basement fireproof brick, cement and fron building. The foundation is built to support an eight-story building when the time comes that it will be needed. It is wonderful how much can be made on city lots in Canadian rallroad towns. If a man had put $200 or $300 in choice locations in Calgary, Edmonto, Prince Rupert, Saskatoon, or Fort George a few years ago, today he would be worth anywhere from $5,000 to $50,000 because of the increase.

The building was erected by the political and industrial labor movement, that is, by the workers in those movements, by means of a realty company. Shares of stock were issued up to $40,000, and these were so readily taken that today we can announce that simost the entire issue has been sold. When the company was incorporated the shares were issued at $25 each. A share makes as fine and steady an investment as anyone could ask for. And there's absolutely impossible for the reason that such a house can only be made a profitable institution when it is in a congested district where it is easily accessible at all times. If it should come that some locate out of the congested district it would require transportation to gain access to them.

From careful investigation I am ready to say that so called respectable pillars of our community get as much as $250 and $300 for a two story shack each month These are vampires who thrive from vice and these are the people who, up to the present, have been immune from the law. They will be prosecuted vigorously.

"Another argument put forward just now is that we will drive these people into flats in respectable neighborhoods. Let me say that that also is impossible. My reason is that the people, after all, are the best policemen. They are the best watchmen. Neighbors will not tolerate the demoralization of a neighborhood. I have little to fear from that source.

"I feel certain that thousands of citizens will support this morning. "This is the first time a thorough attempt has been made to rid the city of its segregated district and we are in need of every support obtainable.

"To my mind, there are three ways of handling this perplexing problem. First comes the strict enforcement of the laws. Another way is to acknowledge the evil as necessary and allowing it to exist in a segregated district. The third is to repeal prohibitive laws and put immoral houses on a legal and recognized basis, as in European countries." said Mr. Zabel.

Is Proven Failure.

Mr. Zabel added that the third plan, in his opinion, is repugnant and unamerican. In Europe it proved a failure, he said. Segregation, according to the district attorney, is impossible. It is a failure. "It spreads disease: it brings vampire laudords and is an insult to manhood." said Mr. Zabel.

"The only plan is the strict enforcement of the law. That will give the end of the law. That will give the coment of the law. That will give the more contained to a support the support the more contained in the near turns at 19 East Water street.

"The only plan is the strict enforcement of the law. That will give the city a better moral standing. If we do not intend to enforce the laws, then why should they not be repealed?

"To me the problem is very simple. The only remedy is extermination. That is what I offer Milwaukee—extermination of its vice district. All that is needed is the strong support of public opinion and the moral backing of the people," said Mr. Zabel.

Tom why don't you join our company of Boy Scouts. We have glorious times. Last summer we had plendes and outing and had heaps of fun.

Tom—Well, Harry, I am a Socialist and all over the world our people advocate peace and brotherhood. A few years ago the Socialists prevented Germany from engaging in a bloody war. Now, I know that there are two different Boy Scout movements, one of them—your kind—was started by Gen. Baden-Pwoell, of England, and is military in its nature. The other called "The World Scouts," is non-military, but they are not so numerous in this country, and there is no organization of them in this town which I might join.

Harry—Now Tow what I can be dave the subject any serious thought. Now I know you are right. You have not overdrawn the awful realities of war. My pastor and Sunday school superintendent both favor the "Baden-Powell scouts," and advised me to ion them. I now see that I can not be an honest, consistent Y. M. C. A. Cessial man-gamer in the war which England waged against the Boers be-cause English capitalists wanted the rich mines of the Transvall. Later, he went to Russia and induced the czar ganization of them in this town which I might join.

Harry—Now Tom, what if our Boy Scout companies are military? Yes; I igness they are, but isn't it glorious to be a soldier and go to war?

Tom--No: I do not think so. In the just there have been wars in which mea had to go out and fight for their homes and their freedom. Socialists probably would fight in defense of to order that 3,500,000 peasant boys be organized into Boy Scouts and re-ceive military training by regular army officers. If he carries out his intention, aided by his fellow "non-partisans," there will be no Additorium concerts neat winter. For if same Fourth appropriations are illegal, and Kilbourn park concert appropriations are illegal, then appropriations for the Auditorium concerts are lilegal, too.

But perhaps the "non-partisans" are going to pass the hat around among "our leading citizens," continuously. It looks as though they would have to do so, if they cling to their high pedestar of legal virtue.

HANS; THE STORY OF A GERMAN BOY BY MARTIN GALE

CHAPTER II-Continued. Now the yawl was heavy and the oar long, so he had to stand on one of the thwarts in order to get the leverage and be able to scull at all and it was hard work. But he managed to get a little headway on and so he gradually drew up the river. Several tugboats passed him, one with a big schooner in tow. One nearly ran him down, the side of the tug scraping along the gunwhale of the yawl and pushing it aside. A deckhand reached over with a broom to give Hans a swipe but Hans was too quick for him and ducked down so the deckhand could only swear at him as the tug drew away. People on the bridges stood and watched him as he slowly went by and it is a wonder some policeman did not go after him. But nothing bothered or daunted him and as proud as a boy could be, about 5 o'clock he reached the foot of Cedar street, tied up the yawl and skipped up the street where he soon had a lot of kids from four to ten years, boys and girls belonging to the neighbors and he led them down to the yawl. The dock was about 4 feet high from the water and it was quite a job to get the kids al' aboard. One of them slipped down between the side of the yawl and the dock and hung on to the gunwhale till Hans pulled him in, but finally he had them ali in and then he started down the river; for he was bound for the lake, he wanted to make a voyage. None of the youngsters had the slightest fear, the yawl was big, and steady as a church, as a sailor would have said, and they were having a great time.

they went, the current though stow helping them along some and between the last bridge and Sycamore street bridge the tug F. C. Maxon came along and her wash as she passed them made the yawi roll and toss about, which made them all fairly shout with glee. But Hans, as usual, had bad luck. The yawi was discovered missing by the first mate of the Vance, who horrowed a boat from a schooner near by and with two sailors on the thwarts started to look for it. Near Clybourn street bridge he spled it and as he came alongside he exclaimed: "Well, I'll be blowed if we haven't got a young nursery I'll be blowed if we haven't got a young nursery here!" He climbed aboard, took the oar from Hans, sculled the yaw up to the dock unloaded the kids and after pulling Hans' car fold them

Hans had to lead the kids home, and as he Hans had to lead the kids home, and as he came around the corner of Wells into Fourth street, some of the neighbor women who were looking for their youngsters, came along. Some of the children that belonged to them ran toward them and shouted: "Oh! We had a fine boat ride with Hans on the river and we was going to the lake." That was the signal for the women to fall women roor. Have

"You bad boy; how dare you take my girl on the river! Oh, my! Just think if she had fallen into the water. Oh, dear! Oh, dear. What shall I do?"

What shall I do?"

As soon as Hans could clear himself of the women he slipped away, not before, however, he had received soveral cuffs and ear-pullings from them, and when he reached home his mother laid him across her knee and telked to him with her rattan stick. He was put to bed without any supper and the abuse he had had made him smart all over, so he could not sleep, and he lay there wondering why he had got it

The Capitalist class fears the Socialist party and represents its red flag as a flag of anarchy. It is one of their cheap political tricks to get the ignorant to its a well known fact that other movements and organizations have flags and colors, which they choose to use as an in signia of their organization. The Woman Suffrage movement is represented by a yellow flag, the Temperature of the entire vote cast and the chances for a Socialist congressman from this district are good. approve of the flag so long as they can conduct unmolested the present robber system.

While it shelters hoards of parasites of all kinds, the flag can also be used as a weapon of assault as the case of The Milwaukee Sentinel's attack on the Socialists last election day. The crass stupidity and the brazen untruthfulness of the owners and publisher was perfectly shown in using the American flag in the manner he did.

However, The Sentinel only played the part of the Devil's Advocate, deceiving its readers and putting itself in right with the powers that prey.

The more capitalism has developed in this country the more flagrant it has become. All sorts of crooks and grafters and crawling vermin shelter themselves under the proud Old Glory. All sorts of scoundrels drape themselves in the stars and stripes and to them that is excuse enough. The flag has covered more roguery than all of our capitalist courts put together.

Under the present system the flag is used to cover and to excuse the stealings, the murder and the numberless crimes of capitalism. It is for this reason that such representatives of capitalism as Morgan and his local lieutenants, Neacy.

It is for this reason that such representatives of capitalism as Morgan and his local lieutenants, Neacy, Pfister, Falk and Kieckhefer, demand that the flag shall be "reverenced." They do not themselves "reverenced" it except in so far as it covers and protects their bloodstained dollars, filched from the working class.

DON'T FORGET LAWRENCE.

If you are in doubt as to the truth-fulness of this statement, it might be continue to wave over the capital city but it will then be the true emblem of freedom instead of the emblem of greed and Big Business, as it is today.

Living on Cedar street, then the boundary line between the Second and Fourth wards, he had the savantage of being able to go to either the Second or Fourth Ward school. One of his big brothers went to the Fourth and so took him along. When he reached the baby class and was given a seat and had to sit still, a cloud seemed to fail upon everything and the world seemed dark to Hans. He laid his head on the desk and softly cried to himself. The teacher came, raised his head, patted his wet cheek and told him to be a good boy. So he braced up and soon took an interest in the school work. But on days when the sun shone bright and the birds sang. Hans could not stand it in the schoolroom, and then at recess he would quietly slip away and wander down to the lake shore or the swimming place on the Menomonee. Next day he would get a whipping from the teacher and then he would stay away altogether for a few days. Finally he was expelled; because the teacher could do nothing with him, and then he went to the Second Ward school, where the Pabst Brewing company's offices—now are. Here the teacher seemed to understand him better, and for a while he got along very well. But one day a circus parade came by and just But one day a circus parade came by and just in front of the school the band began to play. This was too much for Hans. He went out, followed the parade and forgot to come back. In those days there were no truant officers, and on Hans stayed away from school all summer, until fall came and it was warmer at school, then he went back. The teacher had almost forgotten him and the class was away ahead; but Hans was bright, so he soon caught up and remained at school all winter.

But was a spring came again he was up to his old tricks, but this time the teacher went to Hans' father. Now Hans father and mother were quite busy and both having been gaised on a farm in Wuerttenberg where it was customary to let the children run wild and pay no attention, to them and not having anything for Hans to do likewise let him run about. Hans came regularly to his meals and home to sleep and so his parents thought he was all right. Nor did Hans realize that he was doing sleep and so he parents thought be was all right. Nor did Hans realize that he was doing wrong, he merely allowed fits natural inclinations for a free life out in the open air withold Mother Nature to rule his action. He did not realize that he was doing anything wrong and did not understand the value of an education. But now things changed. Hank got a first class walloping, so he could not so no a chair for a week. Then his father talked to him and explained why he sent him to school and promised him if hy was a good boy he would let him go on a farm, during vacation. a farm during vacation.

So when vacation time came Hans got his first brand new suit, a new hat, some shoes, and his dad took him with him to the farm of Mr. Schulz had seven daughters but no son, and so Hans, who had no sisters, felt a little strange at first, but soon felt at home and before the evening of the first day he had explored the barm, the hayloft, stables and all.

Toward evening Hans went with two of the girls to get the cows that were in the pasture and helped to drive them into the farm yard, where two of the older girls came with stools and pails to milk them. Hans had never seen a cow milked before and stood near the older girl watching her. His mouth was open and all of a sudden the girl turned up her hand and before Hans knew what happened, he had a thin stream of milk straight into his mouth. And how the girls laughed, for them it was a great loke to catch the city boy like that.

When night came Hans was put to bed in a toom all by himself, and for a long time he could not sleep. Outside his door something kept running and pattering up and down.

After a while the moon rose and threw some light into the room, so Hans took courage, got up, and cautiously opened the door and looked into the hallway. To his surprise, there were three halfhallway. To his surprise, there were three man grown kittens playing out there, running up and down, chasing each other, and, after capturing down, chasing each other, and, after capturize one of them, he returned to bed and went is sleep, with the kitten softsy purring in his arm.

The Great Opportunity During the past week each of you Herald readers received a letter containing four subscription cards, each good for one year's subscription to The Herald.

You got the four cards for $1.25, and when you send in the money we will mail you a copy of the 1912, 224-page illustrated, classified and indexed Milwaukee Secialist Campaign book.

THE TIME HAS ARRIVED.

Now is the time to get the Socialist propaganda and educational literature circulating among the people you expect to get to work and vote for Socialism this fall.

Send the $1.25 for those cards at once if within range of the possible. The management of the Social-Democratic Publishing Company is pushed for capital to make the payments on the new press and other printing machinery, and your mite added to the that from thousands others will materially assist at this time in this glorious undertaking.

READ THE SIGN OF THE TIMES.

The things which are happening in the industrial, political and social world these days should send a thrill of joy through you old-time Socialists who hustled for subscriptions for Socialist papers when to do so marked you, in the eyes of most of your friends and other "sane" people, as fit subject for the insane asylum. Tell the story to the new born Socialists in your community. It will inspire them to work the harder.

THE GREAT CHANGE.

It is hard to realize how far we have gone through "the revolution" during the years since 1900. At that time a few groups of earnest, serious Socialists, in the larger cities were about all there was of the Socialis movement on the American continent.

In spite of ridicule, satire, irony and malicious misrepresentation the Socialist movement has forged ahead with Niagara rapidity. Today Socialism is the liveliest issue discussed seriously in newspapers and magazines and on the political platform or from the pulpit. The newspaper, magazine, platform orator or pulpit educator who ridicules Socialism today only makes a demonstration of his lack of understanding of the greatest factor in present day life.

There is no longer a village or country cross road, postoffice or rural mail carrier in the country who does not deliver Socialist papers to enthusiastic Socialists. Every Socialist is a missionary and propagandist for the cause, and thus the work goes on.

Today the multitudes everywhere are hungry for the message of hope which the Socialist press alone is competent to deliver.

Send the $1.25 for those cards and sell them as soon as possible to the unconverted in your community.

the unconverted in your community.

The Socialist's vision is one of citizenship extended over industry. He thinks of all production subordinated say coal, steel and transportation—so public use. To put it roughly, his future is one in which men have learned the art of living and have made business their servant. But the syndicalist dream is far more direct: it intends that those who work in the Lawrence mills shall own those mills, that the union in an industry shall own the machinery of it. Under Socialism all the people own all industries and employ the workers in each particular workers are as wide as society. Some danger of exploitation of particular workers then would be, and the necessary safeguard would be agitation backed up by unionism.

Walter Lippmann in the June International.

What the growth and ultimate victory of syndicalism would mean in terms of civilized life I for one am unable to say. That most of what we understand now by Socialism would be discarded is certain. Syndicalism suggests an entirely new form for society. Some of the differences can be noted.

When- J. Mahlon Barnea, national campaign manager, returns to the city at the end of the week he is expected to have the initial work of the struggle well in hand, having talked over the situation with Presidential Nominee Eugene V. Debs at Terre Haute, Ind., and with Vice Presidential Nominee Emil Seidel, at Philadelphia. Pa.

Separate books and accounts covering all financial transactions are to be kept by the national campaign committee in order to conform with the act of congress (H. R. 2250), which provides for publicity of campaign contributions.

The national executive committee, it its last meeting decided that the National Socialist Lyceum course for next season should not be started until May 1, 1913, for the purpose of preventing the necessary canvass of the bureau interfering with the conduct of the national campaign.

An agreement has been reached with L. E. Katterfeld, manager of the Lyceum bureau, that no advance agents shall be sent out before election day, and that the work of this department shall be of such a character as to supplement the work of the campaign committee.

Heart of the very state secretary in the country. The general work of the state secretaries and they will emplay in the various state secretaries and they will emplay in the various different local committees. It is pointed out to the state secretaries that the probability is that Debs and Seidel will make separate tours, and August 30, they will each probably fill about 20 assignments, mainly at gatherings of a similar charcter. This will make each speaker available for about 85, or at most 90, dates during the campaign.

In order that the best possible assignments may be made, the state secretaries that the probably fill about 20 assignments, mainly at committee.
