

To The Gentlemen Of The Press

A Challenge

In the current number of the Independent is an article by my friend, Rev. Nash. It is called "The Lynching of Anthony Carr..."

The Independent had the courage to print it, despite the invoice which will be brought down upon the head of that journal by certain "old-fashioned" elements of the south.

In the December issue of Heart's Magazine is a brilliantly written article by Charles Edward Russell on the Irish Rebellion...

On November 5, a party of members of labor organizations, coming from Seattle on a steamer with the avowed and advertised intention of attending a labor meeting in Everett...

The true story of the Everett is a far more drastic condemnation of American social and political institutions than is that of the lynching of the negro in Abbeville.

The Everett outrage happened right at home. It was perpetrated upon white workers, not upon negroes; it happened in Free trade territory in Ireland.

Therefore, the Everett affair, full though it is of sensational and human-interest material from the journalistic point of view, was hardly chronicled in the periodicals of the country.

If it be true that the Journalism of America is unumuzzed, then let just one of the magazines of this country accept the following challenge:

Send one of your best special writers to Everett and Seattle. Send us Charles Edward Russell, Roy Nash, Lincoln Steffens or whomever you will. Let your representative investigate thoroughly the details of the Everett massacre.

If any magazine in America will do this, then my dwindling faith in the integrity of American journalism will revive. If you do not do this, then you stand condemned in the eyes of the public as the palsied tools of the capitalist.

A Contribution to I. W. W. Literature

On Sunday afternoons, during the past few weeks, the writer has been listening to a verbal translation into English of the Jewish pamphlet, "The I. W. W., Its Principles and Methods, by Philip Karinsky..."

Small, skilled production in which they were born. Following this comes a consideration of modern industry, with its machinery and effects on the skilled worker.

vividly told, and the fundamental principles of revolutionary industrial unionism will set forth.

The I. W. W. attitude on strike funds, sick and death benefit funds, its direct action methods, and the general strike, make up the concluding chapters of this admirable 90 page brochure.

Useless Information
A few members of the I. W. W. as well as those who are combining are still writing, stating that the "camp is a burn one, better is rotten, burn is less etc. etc."

Writing to the editor about it will not help matters any either. The editor cannot get rid of the lice in your bank house or get you better butter.

Thrift--V

I have said that this is a changing world. To a social rebel, it is the one thing that makes the knowledge of that fact is sometimes the only thing that makes life worth living.

The adjustment of human relationships to the ever-occurring changes of this hopefully changing world is often exceedingly complicated. It worries a man not to be able to cope with it.

Selfish--whether by nature or because of environment--men undoubtedly are, but happily, despite the croakings of all the kind frogs in the Dismal Swamp of capitalist political economy, it is frogs in the Dismal Swamp of capitalist political economy, it is frogs in the Dismal Swamp of capitalist political economy, it is frogs in the Dismal Swamp of capitalist political economy.

It is also true that the principle of thrift is deep seated in human nature, because man's environment has heretofore compelled him to be thrifty. He desires above all things security.

Under the capitalist system of production for profit, the less the wage earner consumes, the less work he will have to do. He ought to be able to consume, and spend every dollar towards that end, or towards bringing about a condition of things which will increase his earning power, and ultimately give to him the full product of his labor.

You Unorganized Workers!

Wherever the slave goes he meets plenty of work. Yes, work and slavery, while the master class enjoys the best of everything in life.

Workers, wake up!... Don't let the workers run this world? It belongs to us, the workers. Why not have it for ourselves?
