Don't Starve—Fight for Social Insurance!

GEORGETTIESE, S.C. Over 2,000 unemployed workers, most of them city dwellers, marched to the home of J. Hobbs, a prominent banker, to demand that he give jobs to 300 out of 1,000 workers employed on a number of cotton factories that have stopped paying wages to the workers, including the Asheville, N.C., woolen mill company, and supply North Carolina textile mills with the raw materials needed to keep them in operation.

After getting a promise from Mr. Hobbs, of the Asheville company, to keep his promise, the workers marched to the railroad station to demand that the railroad laborers be kept at work. The workers, numbering about 5,000, occupied the baggage room of the railroad station, where the workers' meeting at which the demonstration was decided was held. In a meeting attended by about 3,000 unemployed workers, the workers decided to proceed to the railroad station, where the workers' meeting was held.

The workers, numbering about 3,000, marched to the railroad station, where they occupied the baggage room, demanding that the railroad laborers be kept at work.

South Carolina workers who were being fired were willing to go on strike, if necessary, rather than accept low wages.

State Jails Are Living Hells

A picture of简单 torture and living hell is given in the following report of the Daily News, and if true, the moral horror that is going on in the nation's jails is something that should cause all good Americans to shudder. The report describes how the prisoners are kept in filthy, overcrowded cells, with little or no food, and are subjected to constant punishment.

GREENVILLE TEXTILE WORKERS GOING “RED”

By a Worker Correspondent
Greenville, S. C.
I am a textile worker and have been for the past two years. I have been to the mills every day, working from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., or 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., depending on the day and the mill. I have been employed by different companies and have worked in different mills, but I have always worked for the same company.

The conditions in the mills are terrible. The work is hard, the hours are long, and the pay is low. The management is brutal and the workers are treated like animals. I have seen many accidents and injuries, and I have seen many workers who have been laid off without any notice or compensation.

The workers are organized and have been fighting for better conditions for the past two years. We have had strikes and boycotts, and we have won some victories. But the management has been ruthless and has not been willing to make any real changes.

We are going on strike again this week. We want better wages, shorter hours, and safer working conditions. We want the right to organize and to bargain collectively. We want the government to enforce the labor laws.

We are fighting for our lives and our families. We are fighting for our future. We are fighting for the dignity of our work. We are fighting for our humanity.

BOSS FRAMES UNEMPLOYED NEGO RENTER

“Speed-Up,” Holy Song of Boss Preacher in Ga.

By a Worker Correspondent
Columbus, Ga.

The boss of the textile mill here is a man named Mr. Smith. He is a mean, selfish, greedy man who cares only for his own profit. He makes the workers work longer hours for less pay, and he constantly tries to find ways to cut costs and get away with less work. He is a mean, greedy, dishonest man.

Mr. Smith is a religious man, and he is always trying to get the workers to pray for him and to forgive him for his sins. He is always talking about “the Lord” and “the Saviour” and “the Kingdom of Heaven.” He is always trying to make the workers believe that everything is going to be all right if they just pray and believe in God.

But the workers know that Mr. Smith is not a Christian, and they know that he is not interested in their welfare. They know that he is just trying to keep them quiet and to keep them from organizing and fighting for their rights.

The workers are组织ed and they are fighting back. They are fighting for their lives and their families. They are fighting for their future. They are fighting for their humanity.

We are going to win this struggle. We are going to make Mr. Smith and the bosses pay for their sins. We are going to make them treat the workers with respect and dignity.

We are fighting for our lives and our families. We are fighting for our future. We are fighting for our humanity.
