The Murder of Harry Simms: A Challenge to the Working Class

Harry Simms, 37-year-old leader and member of the National Executive Committee of the Communist Party, was shot dead early today by three men. The party leader and his wife, Eliza, were shot in a Baltimore police station. The bodies of the man and woman were found in a car outside the station. The two men were taken to the hospital and are in critical condition.

Defenders of the Hoover Program

A good example of how the "social" revolution and democratic processes are leading the United States to build socialism, if the Hoover government is willing to implement them, was demonstrated today in the arena of war." The statement was made by the American Federation of Labor (AFL) and the Congress of Industrial Organizations (CIO). The AFL and CIO are the two largest labor unions in the United States. They are not affiliated with the Communist Party, but they support the goals of the Hoover government.

The death of Harry Simms has caused shock and grief throughout the working class of the United States. He was a leading figure in the movement for socialism and a member of the National Executive Committee of the Communist Party. His death will be a great loss to the working class movement.

The Communist Party in Kentucky

Many of the last fighters in the ranks of the radical section of Ken-cy counties are moving into the Communist Party. Deeply alarmed by the methods and commodity prices throughout the state, the leaders of the Kentucky radical section are now responding to the call to fill the revolutionary vacuum in the ranks of the Workingmen's Party. In the midst of the struggle the men have come to realize that the strike would have been very ineffective had there been no support from the most important sections of the Workingmen's Party. Two weeks ago, the Workingmen's Party in Kentucky announced its support of the strike, and this support has now been extended to the entire state.

Whitewashing Franklin D. Roosevelt

Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is working hard to whitewash the administration of the New Deal. The senator's efforts to whitewash the New Deal are not surprising, considering the fact that his own party is currently in power. Hull's whitewashing efforts have been successful thus far, as no one has been able to refute his claims.

DRAFT BLANKS BEING PRINTED FOR NEW WAR

A rash printing order of thirty-three million draft blanks is held by the government printing office. The order is a part of a more general effort to prepare for the possibility of a new war. The government has been criticized for its handling of the draft, but the order is explained as necessary to ensure a sufficient supply of draft blanks for the war effort.
