THE IDEALS OF LABOR. THE IDEALS OF LABOR. THE IDEALS OF LABOR.

William Lloyd Garrison Declines To Show Precedent At Christian Ethics in Light of Power and Wealth.

Good For Railroad Owners. Robert Mather, president of the Rock Island Railway system, declares that the adoption of the plank 'would undoubtedly tend to improve business conditions.'

And Robinson Agrees. Along with these distinguished capitalists comes Herman Robinson, of New York, an organizer of the American Federation of Labor, signaling his approval of the courts as they are.

As a citizen of the United States I believe in upholding the law and respecting the courts. I do not believe in attacks on the judiciary, and believe that the honor and the dignity of the courts should be upheld at all times.

CHILD LABOR SIN OF FACTORY OWNERS

Fancy Weeklings Work Long Hours, Factory Inspectors Report, in Unventilated Buildings.

ALBANY, June 9.—The Bureau of Factory Inspection, in its report, just made public, makes strong statements about child labor and the unsanitary conditions in the factories of New York State.

69 Prosecutions in a Month. "In order to impress properly upon all the necessity of observing the requirements of the factory law we found it necessary in the last month to begin proceedings in sixty-nine cases."

To Compel Ventilation. "Perhaps the most important group of cases ever brought to court by this department was ten civil suits instituted in May to recover aggregate penalties of more than $4,300 for failure to ventilate factories properly."

BOYS RENTALS, BUT HE CAN'T COLLECT

City Sells Rights in Condemned Property to Peter Cappel, Who Finds Tenants Have Receipts.

Everyone who lives in the neighborhood of Canal, Forsythe and Bayard and the Bowery grins broadly at the mere mention of the name of Peter Cappel, real estate dealer.

Cappel brought trouble by wholesale when for a small sum he underwrote the city's rents on the buildings at present on the new Manhattan Bridge site.

MEXICAN BANDITS HOLD UP NINE COMPANY'S PAY CAR

CITY OF MEXICO, June 9.—While boarding a pay car on its way to the Las Grandes mines, near Balsas, in the State of Guerrero, four armed men were overpowered by bandits and three of them instantly killed and the fourth mortally wounded.

The mines are the property of an American corporation. The pay train made monthly trips and the bandits had planned to steal the amount used for the pay roll, which rumors had magnified.

MUNICIPAL RESEARCH BUREAU TO TAXPAYERS

Says Now Is the Time to Guard Against Extravagance or Undue Parsimony.

"One June day of intelligent interest in next year's city budget is worth a month of protest and request next January." This is the suggestion which the Bureau of Municipal Research is sending to day to associations of taxpayers.

Work has already begun, for department heads have been told by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment that their requests must be in not later than July 15, 1908.

Usually taxpayers take no interest until the final hearings, in October, when the Mayor and Comptroller and other members of the Board of Estimate feel that it is too late to give them serious consideration.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., June 9.—A volley of bullets, fired at a band of Black Hand Italians, was the answer delivered yesterday by a posse of William Pollock's employees to a demand that $5,000 be placed in a hollow tree. The spot was visited by his employees, who remained until the posse of the Italians appeared and then opened fire. Screaming with fear the Black Hand operators dove into the woods.

THE WEST'S AWAKE

A Dublin correspondent of the Irish World says that reports to the contrary notwithstanding, the popular unrest is increasing from day to day. The western and midland counties, he alleges, are aflame with indignation against the turning of poor tenants off their lands in order to make way for cattle grazers and also against the severe measures employed by the Government to repress all agitation on the subject.

MUST THE SLAUGHTER GO ON?

On the Fourth of July, a month hence, the people of the United States, unless they change their habit, will acquiesce in the killing of 160 persons and the maiming of over 5,000. This was the record two years ago.

Of these probably seventy-five died of tetanus or lockjaw, thirty-eight were killed by gunshot wounds, fourteen by stray bullets, eighteen, mostly very small children, were burned to death; eighteen were killed by explosions of powder, dynamite, and explosives, three by giant firecrackers, three by cannon. In one place six boys were killed outright. Among the injured twenty-two became totally blind, seventy-two lost one eye, fifty-six lost arms or legs or hands.

The Fourth of July outbreak has never been creditable to American common sense and good taste. Its perpetuation is an arraignment of our care for human life. We are calmly proceeding to make a holocaust of children because we lack the energy to break a tradition which fastened itself upon us decades ago.

We are calmly proceeding to make a holocaust of children because we lack the energy to break a tradition which fastened itself upon us decades ago.

Some more sensational developments are expected in the Kaufman-McNichol case which will prove the hypocrisy of the Wagon Wheel reform crusade. The central figure in the fight is Max Kaufman, who before his appointment as secretary of Mayor Reuburn was political reporter on the Record, a Wannamaker reform organ.

When Kaufman and D. Clarence Giboney tell their stories of what they know concerning the inside history of these parties some of the respectable citizens will realize how they have been duped.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 9.—Alphonso, Valone, an alleged Black Hand man, who was arrested three weeks ago, after he had taken a decoy letter from a bush in which $4,000 was supposed to have been placed, was yesterday convicted of attempted extortion in the Court of General Sessions and sentenced to three years of hard labor.

Another in a class with him, declares that they will do "Just what they are doing now; hanging on to the straps part of the time and fool until men have to fight to keep what they have." "Proceed to conquer."

Another, like the lord of creation that he supposes he is, knits his brow and declares: "There is no supposing about it; they will just do without them." (He simply won't let them have it, and there's an end of it!)

Another, who never seems to have observed, that no one prefers for him or herself the attitude of the charity monger to the beneficiary to that of the respected and admired equal in a free society says, that they will "convincingly prove that the sex is illogical by expecting to be still protected and 'petted,' while claiming full equality with men."

Another, who probably believes in protecting the poor frail woman within the four walls of her kitchen, says: "They will sincerely regret their lost golden age of deference and chivalry."

WHAT SHE WOULD DO.

By ROSE PASTOR STOKES. Who said "yellow journalism"? Surely not the good old "conservative" plain black and white Times! Yet it does seem as if even the Times sometimes finds it necessary for the sake of circulation or something else to have a page or so in glowing orange.

Therefore, perhaps, their scheme of offering prizes and a page of their paper to readers for answers to the following question: "What do you suppose women will do when they get 'Equal Rights'?"

On summing up the attitude of the editor who awarded the prizes, however, one is led to feel that perhaps, more than for the sake of circulation, the scheme was got up for the sake of an anti-suffrage campaign on the part of the Times.

Stupid Answers. The three prizes went to three answers that strike one who reads the whole as among the stupidest. There is neither wit nor humor in any one of the three. But the editor seems to have singled them out for the beautiful quality of having taken the opposition on the question of equal rights. Here are the three:

"Try to put the men in the position the women now occupy." "Try harder than ever to discover what advantage they gained." "I suppose we will then complain about being placed on the same level with men."

These three answers, by the way, were written by three men, and the natural wonder is what must their mothers, sisters or wives think of them.

Among the answers, which include over 120, were the following, written by women: "They will have the national scales balanced and all state pendulums swing true." "Demand equal pay for equal work, and get it." "Then there will be more happy marriages and fewer divorces, for woman will be a partner and not a slave."

AMATEUR FIREMEN SAVE THIRTY LIVES

A blazing furnace in just a few minutes was the result of a fire that started in the coal bin of the five-story and basement apartment house at No. 74 West 101st Street late yesterday afternoon.

Fred Washington, the colored janitor of No. 72, Fred Maulie, janitor of No. 81 and Hyman Silver, who runs a tailor shop at No. 72, rushed to the back of the building and mounted the iron ladder of the fire escape.

Mamie Harnett, about 20 years of age, daughter of J. C. Harnett, a widower, was on the fourth floor with her four younger sisters and brothers, whom she led to the roof and made them jump the three feet of space separating the walls of No. 74 and No. 76.

Let us hear what some of the women have to say on this subject. "Abolish child slavery, war and cruelty, and make the world the paradise it was intended to be."

The Changing Style.

SMALL GIRLS WEAR EMBROIDERED MUSLIN FROCKS.

Bold embroideries in muslin frou-frou and bands are extensively utilized in the children's frocks. Often the skirts are formed entirely of flouncing, and sometimes lengthened with ruffles of lace and lace insertion entre-deux, or under the flouncing points. They are pinned or gathered into an underskirt waist band which joins them to a V or Dutch-neck-finished blouse. The bold eyelet and wheels of the flouncings and ruffles are duplicated in broad and narrow bandings, employed for vertical trimmings on both blouses and sleeves. Small girls are wearing colored-striped-top white socks with sandals, and their head-dresses are rather elaborate affairs of twisted ribbon terminating with large bows.

THE ETHICAL DEFAULT OF THE RELIGIOUS.

BY THE REV. JOHN D. LONG.

"Except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no wise enter into the kingdom of heaven." Matt. 5:20.

Jesus used the terms "Kingdom of heaven" and "Kingdom of God," interchangeably. By the Kingdom of God Jesus meant an ideal though progressively realized social order.

"What was the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees? It was a matter of ritual rather than of rightness. Jesus said that they for a promise made long prayers, that they fasted the outside, but were ungodly of the fifth within. He charged them with doing all that they did in a religious way in order to be seen of men, making broad their phylacteries, and performing their ceremonial washings for public observation.

But the religion Jesus demanded was a religion bringing forth the fruit of social well-being. He said "By their fruits ye shall know them." In the Parable of the Sheep and the Goats, Jesus showed the basis upon which he condemned the religion of his time. Those who are found guilty in that parable of judgment were so adjudged because they had allowed hunger, thirst and cold, nakedness and misery, to go unrelieved. The poverty which Jesus saw on every side was sufficient condemnation of the religion of his day. It was placed as the subject of the social regulations of the ancient law (Deut. 15:4): "To the end that there be no poor among you." A social system that permitted poverty was in the eyes of Jesus guilty of ethical default.

The existence of poverty in the land is equally an arraignment of our present-day Christianity. "We profess one day in the week a doctrine of human duty which we renounce in practicing the other six days," Herbert Spencer.

What movement other than the Socialist propaganda promises these social conditions that will make Christian practice possible?

COMPULSORY EDUCATION IN CANADA.

Vice-Consul P. Gorman sends from Montreal the following summary of the requirements of the different Canadian provinces as to school attendance:

Quebec.—The payment of the fees of school children is compulsory, but there is no provision under the law compelling the attendance of children at school.

Ontario.—Under the terms of a special act respecting truancy and compulsory school attendance every child between the age of 8 and 14 years must attend school for the full term each year, unless he has passed the entrance examination for high schools, or under certain other specified conditions. The employment of school children during school hours in professions under a penalty of $20, unless the child is required in husbandry, or in urgent or necessary household duties, or for the necessary maintenance of himself or some person dependent on him. The act also provides for the appointment of truancy officers and defines their duties. The act also provides for the appointment of truancy officers and defines their duties. The act also provides for the appointment of truancy officers and defines their duties.

Nova Scotia.—Children between the ages of 6 and 16 years, if physically and mentally capable, must attend school for at least one hundred and twenty days in the school year, but a child over 12 years of age who passes a satisfactory examination in grade seven of common school work, and any other child over 13 years of age who has attended school for six months consecutive weeks in the preceding year, if necessity requires him to work, may be exempted from the foregoing provision on permission of the local school board.

New Brunswick.—A comprehensive act providing for the compulsory attendance of children between the ages of 7 and 12 years at school was passed in the year 1931. Provision was made in a special way under the act with reference to the employment of children below the school age.

Manitoba.—Under the Manitoba public school act it is declared that every person in rural municipalities between the ages of 5 and 16 years, and in any cities, towns, and villages between the ages of 6 and 16 years, shall have the right to attend school. Attendance, however, is not compulsory.

Saskatchewan and Alberta.—The attendance at school of children between the ages of 7 and 12 years, inclusive, is compulsory for a period of at least sixteen weeks each year, eight weeks of which time must be consecutive. Provision is made for the investigation of cases of non-attendance, and the appointment and proceedings of truancy officers.

British Columbia.—Every child from the age of 7 to 14, inclusive, must attend some school or be otherwise educated for six months in every year. Exemption is granted in case the child has reached a standard of education of the same or greater than that to be obtained in the public schools of British Columbia.

FERN KREHBIEL AND HER MOTHER.

Mrs. Luella R. Krehbiel, well-known Socialist speaker and organizer, has been called the Hypatia of the Socialist platform. There is a strong suggestion of the dramatic in her voice. Some four years ago I asked her how it happened that she had chosen the lecture platform instead of the stage, for her life work. She replied that the platform had held more allurements for her, but said: "I have a fifteen-year-old daughter who I believe will take up the stage as a career. She recites yards of all sorts of things, including Shakespeare, and sometimes becomes so worked up over the tragedy parts in the latter that I have to insist that she put it away for a while."

Mrs. Krehbiel's forecast about her daughter was correct. Miss Fern, whose stage name is Ruth Maycliffe—now nineteen years old, is playing in a Clyde Fitch production on Broadway in New York. She made her debut in Washington, D. C., the first of March, where she captured her audience at once, and was entertained by the President at the White House. She also has succeeded in winning the praise of the rather strenuous New York critics. That she is a young woman of character and spirit, who is further proven when she turned down a high-salaried position because a certain manager was too aggressive in his attitude toward her. She is a good pianist and vocalist, has some talent for drawing, has written for the magazines, and is a good cook and housekeeper.

SHE WHO IS TO COME.

A woman—in so far as she beholds
Her one beloved's face;
A mother—with a great heart that enfoldeth
The children of the race;
A lady, free and strong, with that high beauty of the woman
That comes of perfect use, is built thereof;
A mind where reason ruleth every duty,
And justice reigns with love;
A self-possessed, royal soul, brave, wise
and tender,
No longer blind and dumb;
A human being, of an unknown splendor,
Is she who is to come!

THE DRAMA'S CHARM.

The theatre is the temple of play. What the child creates, with rag doll or hobby horse, his parent or sister discovers amid footlights and painted trees. In the playhouse we take the scheme of things and mold it to the heart's desire. We buy for a coin the happiness of an hour, and perhaps carry away images that float before us as we cobble shoes next day, or prepare briefs, ro cook porridge and send the children off to school. Without dreams the drama would lack its soul. The heroine sighs more gushily in the theatres of the alms, the villain is of darker hue, but romance and striving after visions are also the foundation stones of the great historic playhouses of Vienna, of Paris, of Berlin. Joy has no single home. It visits the mechanic at his work, the shop-girl at her grind. It mingles with the labors of the factory and the home. It is ever the light that flickers amid the shades of consciousness and destiny. Among its many dwelling-places, however, are a few specially sanctified to it, and, after the nursery, there is no spot pricier, more clearly than in the theatre, can be heard evr the flutter of man's hopes his reveries, his wistful, fleeting thoughts.—Collier's.

The general meeting which was held under the auspices of the Central Trades and Labor Unions in Pawtucket, R. I., Saturday at Grand Army Hall on Friday, June 5th, was a huge success. The audience present attended and applauded the Socialist champion, James A. De Bell, upon his presentation of the issues.

LOUISIANA.
The official report of the vote in the State election in April in Louisiana shows an increase of 252 votes over the total vote cast for Debs in the Presidential election of 1904. When it is considered that the industrial development of the far South is quite backward and that 625 votes were cast in 1904, this is quite gratifying.

EVENING CALL PATTERN.

*613—Misses Combination Petticoat and Corset Cover, 14 and 16 Years.

Combination under garments are much in demand just now and undoubtedly they have a great many advantages. They lessen the number of bands and of fastenings about the waist and they do away with the possibility of parting at the waist line. They make a much more desirable effect beneath the fashionable princess, or semi-princess, dresses than separate ones while they are comfortable and satisfactory beneath those of any sort. This one, designed for young girls, is made with petticoat and corset cover in one and is exceedingly simple while it is full enough to round out girlish figures in a desirable way. In the illustration the bustle is trimmed with tulle; but lace trimming can be used if preferred or the frill at the lower edge could be of the material banded or trimmed in some other way, and all the materials that are used for underwear are appropriate. Linen bustles is much liked and is cool and delightful to wear while it perfectly endures laundering, but cotton bustles, lawn and nainsook are the materials most in vogue.

The petticoat is made simply with the front and back. It is tucked at its upper edge and is gathered at the waist line, the gathers being stayed by a narrow belt. The straight sleeves are inserted in the armholes.

The quantity of material required for the sixteen year size is 2 1/2 yards 54 inches wide, 3 1/4 yards of narrow and 3 3/4 yards of wide embroidery to make as illustrated.

The pattern 6013 is cut in sizes for girls of fourteen and sixteen years of age and will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of 10 cents. (If in haste send an additional two-cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.)

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, JUNE 9, 1908.

There is no logical economic reason why in a land of lavish plenty any human being should go hungry. And there is no logical reason why in a land where so many are hungry any man should be unemployed. The presence of so much necessity increases the need for productive-ness. Yet starvation stalks our streets while a multitude of men are idle.

Hunger Is Illogical In A Land of Plenty.

Many good people are horrified by the revelations of conditions existing in the East Side school districts, where children, faint from hunger, collapse in the class rooms. The thing is an inadvertence. There really is no intention on the part of capitalistic society to starve anybody. The aim is to nourish the workers sufficiently to enable them to do the desired service in a satisfactory manner. But miscalculations sometimes are made. And just to the degree that some men thirst for gold, certain others must hunger for bread. Exorbitant greed has overreached itself and excess has caused the present panic and consequent privation.

Plans for amelioration are being formed. Society, that has robbed these helpless children of their rightful portion of bread, will return to them a paltry crust—and call it "charity."

There is in this no criticism of the scheme to alleviate this suffering. The need is imperative for immediate relief. And charity is the next best thing to justice.

But the point is that this condition, though it now be relieved, will recur. It is a well-known physiological phenomenon that hunger invariably results from prolonged abstinence from food. And these children will in the future be repeatedly robbed of their birthright of bread.

There is nothing unusual in the present situation—nothing to excite extraordinary interest and sympathy. Starvation is the normal condition of this squalid quarter, although it is only occasionally exploited. Just now, of course, the destitution is intensified. But a little starvation more or less does not alter the basis of the problem. Relief is needed much, but a remedy is needed more. We should not be content to indulge in temporary expedients, but should seek to prevent a recurrence of the condition.

The fathers of these children ask only the chance to work. This has been denied them. It was an unwise thing to do. The consequence will be that in time they will ask more than a chance to work. They will ask to receive the full product of their labor. And in a little more time they will do more than ask. They will DEMAND. This is the remedy.

The pastor of John D.'s Church says John D.'s world is growing better. Well, that's what he's being paid to say.

Hearst Is Confederate of The Race Track Touts.

No more striking illustration of Hearst hypocrisy could be found than is afforded by the Journal's attitude in the anti-race track gambling crusade. Chief champion of this movement in its editorial columns, inveighing most impressively against the evil of track gambling, it nevertheless is the only newspaper in New York (the Morning Telegraph being an organ of the racing game with no news pretensions) so shameless as to run the swindling advertisements of the "tout syndicate," known as turf information bureaus. Even to the prostitute press of capitalism—or at least that part of it which is frankly plutocratic—there remains a remnant of respectability, some lingering sense of decency, else a wholesome regard for popular opinion. Bue Hearst cares neither for decency nor for public sentiment unless it comes in the guise of dollars, and when he finds prostitution profitable he never fails to hang out the editorial red-light. So it is that the tout touts, unable to purchase space in reputable papers, find in the Journal the prime promoter of their thievish traffic. And it would be interesting to know what advance over its regular rates it gets for inserting these advertisements.

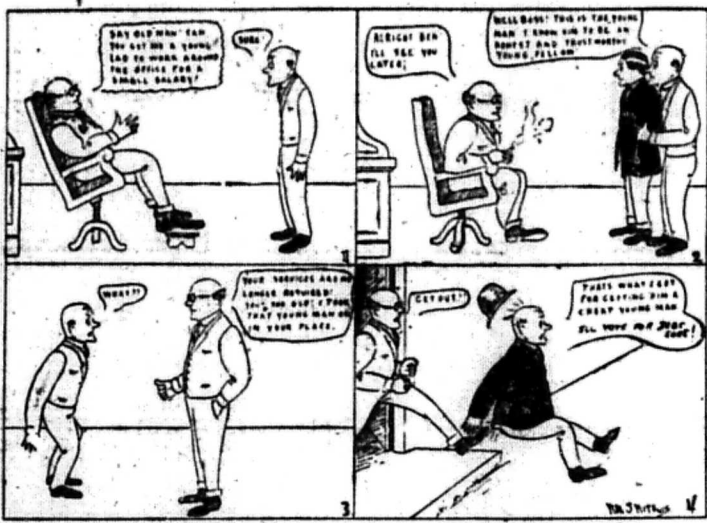

The methods of this syndicate of turf swindlers are so notorious that further expose or explanation should not be necessary. But nothing is truer than the saying that "a sucker is born every minute"—and really it seems that none die. The syndicate advertises under various names, giving a different selection in each advertisement. As by this system all the horses in the running are named, some branch of the syndicate is bound to pick the winner, and so it keeps on landing the dollars of its dupes.

These advertisements of the touts, enticing money from inexperienced boys and ignorant men and foolish women, resulting in a harvest of embezzlements and suicides, are infinitely more infamous than the assignment advertisements and massage parlor "personals" of the Herald, against which the Journal virtuously waged a successful warfare. They enable the public to size up Hearst at his true proportions—his dimensions are those of the tout, no more.

Hearst is a reformer for revenue only, and follows always the lure of the lucre.

The "full dinner pail" has sprung such an awful leak that it's absolutely worthless for campaign purposes.

BY OUR AMATEURS.

WHO ARE THIEVES.

By L. A. MALKIEL. The Third Avenue Railroad thinks it high time that its patrons and its employees be reminded of the commandment. Accordingly the following notice is prominently posted in all its cars: "Every passenger who does not pay his fare steals. II.—Every conductor who does not turn in fares collected steals. So far so good, but why leave the information unfinished? Why not add that "every company that renders in service a measly three-tenths of the value received in fares steals?" Into the strong boxes of the company come pouring a daily river of 50,000 nickels. These are wrung from passengers who, close-packed, abused, maltreated, have been forced to put up with every inconvenience that greedy economy can devise. Every coin that comes into the company's possession, brings in a profit so swollen, that piled together, it pales into insignificance the flogging of an occasional fare. "Don't Steal," is wholesome advice. But it sounds ridiculous coming out of the mouth of a robber captain. Would it not be appropriate here to draw the company's attention to another part of the same "good book," they quote: "Let him who is WITHOUT BLAME among you, cast the first stone?" Wouldn't there be a howl if the Socialists held someone responsible for stealing justice, by packing juries with hired company tools? Or if the Socialists attempted to interfere with the respectable practice of defrauding the victim of an accident of his legal claims?

NO. 8. "WEARY WILLIES"

HOW WOULD W. A. CLARK, THE MONTANA COPPER KING, LIKE IT IF HE HAD TO WALK FOR AWHILE.

TO READERS OF THE CALL. THE CALL ASKS OF ITS READERS THAT THEY PATRONISE ITS ADVERTISERS WHEN MAKING PURCHASES. DON'T FORGET TO TELL THE ADVERTISER THAT YOU SAW HIS ANNOUNCEMENT IN THE CALL.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor The Call. Kindly print the following, which I would like to have impressed upon the readers of The Call, and they in turn to impress it upon those workmen who do not as yet read it. First, that The Call is the workman's newspaper. It prints the news for him. Second, that The Call is the paper that will always support the workman, therefore it is the workman's duty to support The Call. Third, The Call will be what he makes it—bear this in mind—it's up to you, fellow-workmen. Hurray for The Call—a daily, for the workers, for the workers. Believe me, most faithfully, V. F. FOX BUILDING, New York.

Editor The Call. The times are most plutocratically out of joint and the world gives no favor to the working class, while the ghastly glare of the Sun mocks the toilers who produce all wealth. We see the levee of a corrupt system and a Tribune not of the people putting on sanctified airs above the crude, anarchistic, and unprincipled events. The entire press has become the express agent and cringing body servant of the capitalist. Hurray for the first real newspaper in New York, a valiant Call to manhood! Your truly, N. O. ITULOVER.

Editor The Call. At the recent Christian Socialist Conference in Carnegie Hall, next to a woman of the Christian Science faith, and linked with her before the meeting was called to order. (She was not a Socialist.) We declared her devotion to the brotherhood of man. "The drunkard in the gutter is my brother," she cried. "My God is Love." After a while Debs, in the course of his speech, said, "I deny that there are any fallen women. The so-called fallen women are only women who have been thrown down by the system, thrown down and trampled upon. I take my stand by them, they are my sisters."

The lady at my side drew her breath in quickened interest, looking at her with tear-drenched eyes, thinking that she was addressed by the twinning of an eye, in the pathos and passion of the speaker's words. But, no, her face expressed only surprise and indignation. "The twinning of an eye, in spite of myself, I judged her religion and her God (who after all was only a reflex of her own soul). I weighed them and found them wanting. They were undervalued and over-topped by the tender and noble spirit of Eugene Debs."

MRS. J. L. REISSON, 204 President St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

John F. Kelly, Circulation Manager The Call. "The England newspapermen join me in wishing you and The Call success." E. F. CUNNINGHAM, Fall River, Mass.

Editor The Call. Please accept my congratulations upon the appearance of your first number. Few children have been born in my experience so nearly full grown and I predict a wide and large circulation for your undertaking. Allow me also to express my warm admiration for the tone that you have given your editorial column. The absence of all that bitterness of outlook that to my mind mars the value of so many of the Socialist publications, is very noticeable. It indicates a largeness of view that cannot fail to impress you readers with your utmost sincerity. Your fraternally, I. J. POTTER, New Brunswick, N. J.

Editor The Call. Heartiest congratulations. Your paper is a few and satisfied. It is a grand success and fulfill its great mission." E. H. GOHL, Auburn, N. Y.

Editor The Call. The Call is fine. RICHARD BATTLE, Newark, N. J.

Editor The Call. Each edition of The Call looks mighty good. I am a regular reader of your paper, for professional men, for busy men generally, men who want the truth about happenings and the importance of the news. Until The Call came, men and women with clear minds and good judgment could have nothing but disgust and contempt for New York journalism. RICHARD BATTLE.

Editor The Call. Being an every day worker, until now I had to read the New York Evening Journal, which claimed to be a paper for the workers. It only claimed to be such. But now the workers worked themselves up in publishing a paper for themselves. I am very glad that I can stop reading that paper and read The Call. It is really a workers' paper, which will print only the truth. I call the New York Evening Journal a hypocritical paper because in one column they write for labor, and in another against organized labor. One day he writes for a certain thing and the next day he writes just the opposite. I send my hearty congratulations to The Call and wish that in the future every time every worker will read The Call, which is published for them. A. Z. KANDLE, New York, N. Y.

Editor The Call. I want to congratulate you and the committee of the Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association on the successful issue of the first edition of The Call. It is the first time in its history that we have set a high standard of excellence which it is to be hoped they will be able to maintain. Should the workers give their support there can be no doubt but that The Call will be a permanent success. Yours truly and fraternally, JOHN WILKINS, New York, N. Y.

Headquarters 20th A. D. S. P. Editor The Call. Dear Comrade: I beg leave to inform you that the 400 copies of The Call that we bought yesterday were all sold to the newsstands. They literally sold like hot cakes. We were simply mobbed and cries for more came from everybody. All the newsstands from about 120th street and Madison street are making eager inquiries as to how they can be supplied with The Call every day. EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, New York, N. Y.

A RE-CONVERT.

By ROSE PASTOR STOKES. Mrs. Florence Kelley is one of the noblest women I know, and has worked for twenty years or more for socialism among trades unionists and other classes of men and women. She used to belong to the Socialist party, but has not been a party member for many years. Last Sunday Mrs. Kelley was present at the mass meeting of the Christian Socialist Fellowship, when Eugene V. Debs spoke. She was there when everybody else on the programme spoke; but when she heard his wonderful plea for the woman who is not "fallen" but "knocked down" for his sisters who are forced by a cruel and heartless system to sell their honor for a living, when she heard him declare, in a voice broken with emotion, that he honors these sisters of his and places his arm about them, and takes his stand by their side, Mrs. Kelley could not hear more. Her face was flushed, and I saw the tears she wouldn't let come to her eyes, as she exclaimed: "I am ashamed to be out of the party that has a man like that at its head! I'll take out my membership card for him to-morrow." And her word is as good as her bond. Welcome to another new comrade!

HOW TO IMPROVE SOCIALISM

By JOHN R. McMAHON. "You Socialists would be all right if you'd drop a few things and get sensible. I'd join you myself then. For example, the red flag—it suggests violence and no man who loves the Stars and Stripes likes to see it." "We are glad to oblige you on a small point like this, although the Salvation Army also flaunts the red flag without prejudice and the color has been used from time immemorial to signify anti-tyrannical movements. Consider the flag bleached."

"You ought not to talk so much about the revolution. That simply frightens respectable people and it sounds like turning everything upside down. That sort of thing is all right for Russia, but we don't need a revolution in America, I hope."

Perhaps the word is a little too strong and we humbly apologize for its use, although on second thought we recollect that revolutionist is a term of honor applied to the men of 1776 who made a fuss on less provocation than we have. However, to get your support, we will hereafter speak only of evolution. And we will consistently cut out "fight" and "victory" when speaking of our political campaigns.

"Now you're getting reasonable. Another point—why insist on the fact that the workers are robbed of their surplus value? They certainly can't get it back and it creates ill feeling. If you would say that the individual methods of distribution do not correspond with the social methods of production it would sound better and not antagonize anybody."

We are glad to accept the amendment and will not try to use any more such raw words as "robber" and "robbery." Yes, it is dangerous to use such words, as the history of the anti-slavery agitation shows. The whole theory of surplus value ought not to be trotted out in public and the wage-slaves would be happier if they didn't have the name. Imagine that we have dropped all these expressions.

"Good! Just another little suggestion. The name of your party itself has become exceedingly objectionable and obnoxious among our better citizens. Why don't you take a new name unattended with unpleasant associations?"

TO DESERVING CHILDREN ONLY

By HERMAN STRUNSKY. In the meantime I urge upon the Board of Education the simple and inexpensive method of installing X-Ray machines in the class rooms, by means of which a staff of skillful physicians will be able to ascertain when a pupil had his last meal. Pending the installation of these machines, I beg to offer to the teachers and principals the following symptoms which will help them greatly to decide whether a pupil is, or is not hungry. 1. After two days of starvation there is bound to take place a decided change in the voice of the pupil. 2. Boys are in the habit of getting sulky and sullen after going for three days without food. Girls are prone to cry. 3. On the third day the pupil will change color. 4. On the fourth day he will be shaky on his legs. To the strict teachers and most principled principals I would advise—so that no painful contribution is bound to follow a too hasty distribution of tickets—to wait long enough until there is no possible doubt left on the "deservability" of the pupil. In matters of starvation it is only a question of time when the exact nature of the case is ascertained.

I offer these suggestions not without feeling a sense of pride and pleasure in being able to contribute somewhat toward the safety of the people; and I hope that within the next two centuries, science and civilization will make enough progress in the fields of "psychology" and "child-study," that it will be impossible for any pupil who had a piece of bread the day before, to impose upon society by obtaining, fraudulently and undeservingly, a plate of soup and a morsel of meat.

SEEMS LIKE YESTERDAY.
