COP'S DEFENSE BREAKS DOWN Officer Dillon, on Trial for Slaying Louis Prober, Contradicts Own Testimony.

The case of the people against James Dillon, the policeman who shot Louis Prober, will be brought to a close to-day before Judge Madrox, of the Brooklyn Supreme court. In his own defense yesterday Dillon illustrated how the deed was done. "The shooting was the result of a struggle between the boy and myself," he said. "I had already arrested the elder Prober for violating the Sunday law and allowed him to enter the store in order to get his coat. He had slipped on the coat when Mrs. Prober came into the store. She said something to the old man in Yiddish, pointing to the door which led upstairs. Prober started to go up, but before he could do so I grabbed him. I started to lead him from the store when Mrs. Prober rushed at me and made a 'twipe' with a long cheese knife. She cried: 'If you don't drop my husband I'll kill you!' All the time the old man was screaming, 'Help!' at the top of his lungs.

Breaks Down During Examination. During his cross-examination Dillon broke down. His answers were evasive, and when pressed for a reply he invariably took refuge in the declaration, "I don't remember."

All of the injured are being cared for to-day in the State Hospital at Spangler, forty miles distant. It is feared that at least four of these men will die, as they breathed the flash of the explosion.

WAS NOT IN ROOM WHEN DEED WAS DONE. Sing said that on the day of the murder of the Sigel girl he was lying in his bed in the rear room, when Leon came to him. "Leon told me Elsie was dead," said he. "He said she bit her tongue and bled to death. He wanted me to help get rid of the body; to put it in a trunk. I got up and went to Leon's room and there I saw the body of Elsie lying on the bed with a handkerchief over her face. I felt her arm. She was warm. Then I felt her pulse. She was dead."

THIRD DEGREE CONTINUED. When Ward and Carey, with several detectives, visited Sing in the House of Detention yesterday afternoon they met him smilingly and quietly. They first pointed out to him inconsistencies in the story which he had told on the previous day. He said he saw either through the keyhole or through the transom of the door leading from his room to Leon's. They pointed out that there was no transom, and that it would have been impossible for him to have seen the bed through the keyhole. They told him that employees of the cycle company on the floor below the sleeping quarters of Leon and Sing, in 788 Eighth avenue, heard no calling down the stairs on the day Sing mentioned, and did not hear any one running up and down stairs, as Sing previously testified had been done. The questioners also told him they had witnesses to prove that early on the morning of the crime Leon and he were seen together in earnest conversation in the restaurant in the second floor.

Unless Leon, supposed murderer of Elsie Sigel, is captured this week the Chinese government at Peking will offer a reward for his capture.

Mr. Ou Scou-tchun, First Secretary, in charge of the Legation in the absence of Minister Wu, cabled the home government and within a day received instructions to do all he could to find the murderer and to discourage crime among the Chinese of America. He received also the statement that the Peking government will take an active hand in the search unless Leon is found at once.

UNION FACTORY IN CANADA A SUCCESS

(Special to The Call.)

LONDON, Ont., June 24.—The factory for the unemployed, established here by the Trades and Labor Council, has aroused interest throughout Canada, and inquiries have been received from the United States regarding it.

Exactly twenty-five of the unemployed have been put to work, and what is more they have done good work and been paid for the work they performed. The factory is still running and is to be a permanent institution. It is no longer an experiment, for it has made good, and next fall its operations will be extended. In the summer months only a couple of men will labor to prepare material for the coming winter and finish goods on hand. It is from November to the close of March that the factory is most active—the time when work is scarce and men are idle. The experience gained in the operation of the London factory will be valuable in helping on similar factories to be started in other places next winter.

The factory manufactures toys, ironing boards and hangers. It pays no dividends to shareholders and does not aim at the accumulation of profits. It was only because the promoters of the new move were not built as quitters that success was made possible. The doubters were many. It was said that printers and painters could not work up tin or wood, that the thing could not be done and it was better to leave it alone. It was only in the face of persistent opposition that a start was made, and it was only in the face of the same persistent opposition for the first few weeks that the work was carried on to success.

SOLDIERS JEEER AS COMRADE DROWNS

BOSTON, Mass., June 24.—Alfred Baker, of Company F, United States Coast Artillery, was drowned off Fort Banks to-day because five companies thought he was shamming distress and watched his death struggles with laughter and jeers.

As he was sinking below the water for the last time one of the men in a nearby boat, who had been enjoying the spectacle of a man struggling for his life, threw a line attached to a boathook, which Baker seized eagerly. Just as the expression of hope came upon Baker's face the man holding the boathook dropped it into the water. It sank and the young man was dragged down, while the man in the boat laughed heartily.

Bolders at the fort have often while bathing pretended to be drowning.

PROMISES SENSATION IN GINGLES CASE

CHICAGO, June 24.—Sensations are promised by her attorney, P. M. O'Donnell, when Ella Gingles, an Irish lace-maker, is put on trial on charge of larceny.

She is the girl who several months ago was found drugged, bound and gagged in the Wellington Hotel here. The girl is accused of stealing lace from Miss Agnes Barrett, but O'Donnell insists this is not the real motive behind the case. He declares he will insist upon the introduction of evidence to show the girl was the victim of a white slave plot in which a politician of national reputation was involved.

MULAI HAFID'S END NEAR

Morocco's Sultan Hemmed In by Enemies—Capital About to Fall.

TANGIER, June 24.—The position of Mulai Hafid was described as desperate on June 20. Roghi's forces, which had defeated the Sultan's army twenty miles from Fez, were then at the gates of the capital. Communication between Fez and Mequinez is impossible, the route being hemmed in by tribesmen from the West. It is reported that Glaoui, the powerful chieftain to whom Mulai Hafid largely owes his Sultanate, has deserted his master.

Mulai Hafid, disregarding the advice of the viziers, marshaled his remaining troops at the capital and sent them out under the command of Cherzoui to engage the Pretender. If Cherzoui defeated the viziers probably will depose Mulai Hafid and proclaim one of his brothers, possibly Abd-el-Aziz, Sultan of the empire.

The situation of foreigners at Fez is described as critical, practically no troops having been left in the capital. Europeans are ready to flee. The series of raids conducted by the Sultan's rebellious brother, Mulai Kebir, who, at the head of the Zennour tribesmen, is now marching on Mequinez, complicates the situation.

FAMOUS ARTIST DIES AT WHEEL OF AUTO

SARATOGA SPRINGS, June 24.—William Verplanck Birney, the famous New York artist with an international reputation, died suddenly here last night when running his automobile with Mrs. Birney seated beside him. Her husband was stricken with cerebral apoplexy so quickly he made no outcry. It was not until the auto, with a dead man at the steering wheel, swerved sharply and headed for a deep ditch that Mrs. Birney realized something was wrong.

The wheels were on the edge of the ditch, when, with a scream in which grief and terror were blended, Mrs. Birney leaped and fell in the road. Before she could regain her feet the auto turned turtle in the ditch and was wrecked. Sympathizing friends took her to her hotel. They also lifted the body of the artist out of the ditch and took it where it could be prepared for burial.

CALL UPON MAYOR TO STOP CONGESTION

Representing some thirty charitable and other societies, a committee headed by Jacob A. Cantor called yesterday upon Mayor McClellan and presented to him a letter accompanied by a brief asking the Mayor for a city plan for New York. The initiative for this step came from the Committee on the Prevention of Congestion.

The letter to the Mayor says in part: "The recent exhibits on congestion of population have called public attention to the need for speedy and intelligent action if similar conditions are to be prevented in those sections which are still free from the evils of congestion. The seriousness of the situation calls for the determining of a plan for the city to deal with housing conditions, the distribution of factories and the location of new communities."

FRISCO POLITICIAN, OLD AND BLIND, JAILED

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 24.—Blind Chris Buckley, at one time political boss of San Francisco, was lodged in jail to-day on a felony charge, sworn out by Edmund Burke, an attorney.

Buckley is charged with conspiring to defraud, it being alleged that the crime was committed when he caused circulars and other literature concerning the Telegraph Typewriter Company to be circulated setting forth what are said to be false statements, with the object of boosting the price of shares. Buckley is held under $500 bail, which he put up himself.

FOREIGN NOTES

MEXICO CITY, June 24.—A dispatch received here from Guadalajara yesterday stated that the Atemajac cotton mills, owned by the Compania Industrial de Guadalajara, were destroyed by fire last night. The loss is placed at $1,000,000, and more than 2,000 workmen are thrown out of employment.

"UPPAH CLASSES" HOWL

British Bankers and Other Parasites Kick About New Budget.

LONDON, June 24.—Supporting the letter protesting against the provisions of the budget, signed by nearly forty London bankers and merchants and sent to Premier Asquith May 14, there was a great meeting in the city yesterday at which it was resolved that the "main proposals of the budget weaken security in all private property, discourage enterprise and thrift, and would prove seriously injurious to the commerce and industry of the country."

The gathering, which numbered nearly a thousand persons, was thoroughly representative of all phases of the bourgeoisie. It was also wholly non-political, and many of the most prominent men present were radicals. Lord Rothschild presided. He said that the meeting was due to the unsatisfactory reply of Premier Asquith to their representations of May 14, and that it was desired to make quite clear that the city objected to the budget proposals which "introduce an innovation in the history of English finance." Continuing, Lord Rothschild said:

"These proposals are framed not with the view of a possible surplus, but the certainty of a very large surplus, which will not be devoted to the old sinking fund, but to the new theory called the 'development fund.' The whole principle of the land clauses in the finance bill is vicious, and shows that the Government wishes to establish Socialism and collectivism."

Lord Avebury and Sir Felix Schuster followed Lord Rothschild and spoke in a similar vein. The resolution was carried by acclamation. Lord Avebury declared that the whole budget was unsound and unjust; that it would drive capital out of the country, and that in the long run the poor would be the greatest sufferers from it.

not be found until after the celebration. Finally, at a meeting of the board, William J. Anderson produced about 100 of them saying they had been given to him since the parade. He declared that the buttons were to be tri-plated with gold and be worth $1 each. Instead he found them to be made of celluloid and worth half a cent. Moreover, they were the size of fifty-cent pieces instead of the size of silver dollars as ordered. The discovery led to a lively row in the board.

The Plan and Scope Committee, which is to probe on its own hook, numbers many prominent citizens of Queens, among them Alfred J. Eno, W. H. William, Milton L. Lisberger, G. Howland Leavitt, Stewart Hirschman, F. J. Degnan, Herbert Lambert, J. Emerson Leach and George C. Meyer.

Do You Think?

Gustavus Myers' great work, "The History of the Great American Fortunes," is arousing widespread discussion.

Already it is being translated into many tongues. The only work of its kind. Masterly treatment of a big subject. A comprehensive, detailed history of the industrial development of the United States. The facts are unearthed, massed together, and indisputable conclusions drawn. Mr. Myers has not received any pay, nor does he desire any, for the years of labor spent in the production of this work, but he does desire that it shall have a wide circulation.

This is the biggest work ever done by an American Socialist. The subscription price for the first three parts will be $2.50, and those desiring the work should write to Gustavus Myers, Care of The Call, 412 Pearl Street, New York.

WATERBURY JAILED

Swindler Arrested After Sensational Fight With Federal Agent.

"Doc" Waterbury, as he is best known, is locked up to-day, having been caught after a sensational, running fight in Harlem, in which a number of shots were fired. Waterbury, whose real name is said to be Julius H. Ford, and who possesses half a dozen aliases, is wanted in Washington for imposing on Government officials, it being claimed that Attorney-General George W. Wickersham, of President Taft's Cabinet, is among those swindled.

The prisoner is said to have won Wickersham's confidence and money while the Secretary was a private citizen in this city. His swindlings are said to amount to over $250,000.

For a month past representatives of the Department of Justice have been looking for Waterbury in this city. They watched the piers of the ocean liners, but the hunt along the wharfs was given up a few days ago when the Government got wind of the fact that he had arrived in the city by way of Canada.

One wing of the pursuing party got track of the fugitive when he registered with his wife, who is a slip of a girl and pretty, at a hotel at Eighth avenue and 124th street, under the name of "L. Holmes and wife." Mrs. Holmes was watched, and when she entered the hotel with her husband one of the Government agents was at his elbow with a warning to Waterbury that he was under arrest.

Quick as a flash the fugitive turned and struck his captor to the floor. In another instant he was out of the hotel, with the dazed agent at his heels, followed by his companions. Down Eighth avenue they raced, the escaping prisoner gaining at every jump. In order to attract attention the pursuers fired several shots into the air.

Policeman Conway, of the West 125th street station, who was on a crostown car, heard the shooting and joined in the chase. He headed off Waterbury as he turned down St. Nicholas avenue and caught him as he dodged into 124th street.

BLIND MUTE MAY REGAIN SIGHT

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—Modern science and surgery may restore sight to little Katherine Frick, the deaf, dumb and blind ward of the state, who is being educated at the Pennsylvania Institution for the Deaf and Dumb at Mount Airy.

Dr. William T. Shoemaker and the child's teacher, Miss Julia A. Foley, are of the opinion that there is a glimmer of vision in the right eye, as Katherine always goes straight to a bright light and twists her head to one side, as if trying to see with that eye.

NEW GERMAN TAX BILL MAKES HEADWAY

BERLIN, June 24.—The Reichstag continued the debate on the new taxation bill, the "unearned increment" tax being the action discussed yesterday.

No definite move toward the resignation of Chancellor von Buelow or the dissolution of the Reichstag is expected until the controversy has developed further. Subsequently the proposal to tax the unearned increment of land values passed its second reading.

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 24.—The workmen employed by the gas company, which is a part of the Light and Power Company of Rio de Janeiro, have gone on strike. The city is in darkness, but there has been no disorder.

CHOLERA GRIPS RUSSIA

Hundreds Stricken in Streets of the Capital—Provinces Also Affected.

ST. PETERSBURG (via Eydtkuhnen), June 24.—Though the official figures to-day place the number of cholera cases in St. Petersburg at 513, careful estimates made by those in a position to know are to the effect that there are fully 1,000 cases.

The conditions have grown steadily worse until now there is an increase of nearly 100 cases a day, and within a few days the situation will be as grave as it was at its worst last year. About one-third of the cases are proving fatal. Within the last few days many persons have been stricken in the streets and other public places, and the entire city is rapidly becoming panic-stricken.

The Sunday closing of vodka shops in the hope of decreasing drunkenness and thereby removing one of the worst incentives to the classes, has proved of no avail, owing to the lax enforcement of the closing order.

The government is again talking of building a complete sewerage system in the capital, as it does whenever the cholera situation becomes serious, but such a move can furnish no relief in the epidemic, as it will take years to get such a system under way.

Every hospital in the city is crowded with cholera patients, and many large buildings are being improvised into hospitals.

Reports from the provinces say that the disease is getting a firm foothold throughout the country, the spread in Finland being particularly menacing.

CONVICT THREE OF MOONSHINING

ANNISTON, Ala., June 24.—In a session of the Federal Court that lasted just forty-five minutes the famous Cleburne County conspiracy and moonshine cases were dealt with summarily, and three men were sentenced to prison terms and fines. The conviction of these men yesterday is looked upon as a long step toward the stamping out of moonshining in this district, which has long been notorious.

Jim Floyd, known as the "Monarch" of Turkey Heaven Mountains, one of the most notorious moonshiners in the history of the state, was sentenced to eight years in the Federal prison at Atlanta for leading an attack on Internal Revenue officers last winter, in which he was himself seriously injured. He also received a sentence of eighteen months, and a fine of $100 on the charge of manufacturing moonshine whisky, for sale.

Will Floyd, his brother, was sentenced to eighteen months and a $100 fine for moonshining, and Bob Allen, another associate of the "Monarch," was given a month in jail and fined $100.

AUSTRIANS TRY TO STOP STANDARD OIL

VIENNA, June 24.—The Austrian war on the Standard Oil Company will receive the aid of the Government. The Galician Society of Oil Producers and the refiners syndicate have agreed to take over and assume the management of the Austrian government's factory for the purpose of providing oil fuel, which is being used on the government's railroads.

The oil producers and the refiners go further and declare they will not buy any more oil from the Standard oil tanks and pipe lines to store the various local supplies.

The ministers of the government have signified their intention of complying with these conditions. Such a move will, in effect, practically ban the Standard from further business in Austria and Hungary.

TO START COMMERCIAL AEROPLANE COMPANY

BUFFALO, June 24.—Edwin L. Thomas, son of the local motor car magnate, is at the head of a company which will shortly experiment with what will be known as America's first commercial aeroplane. With the younger Thomas in the venture are Carl Dinselbach, of New York, a member of the Aeroplane Club of America, and Dr. Francis George Myers, an inventor, from Columbus, Ohio.

Dr. Myers is the inventor of the aeroplane, and is now busy assembling its parts in this city. It is believed by the doctor that the machine will be ready to make its first flight by July 15.

LACKAWANNA STEEL CO. MAKES RESTITUTION

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 24.—The Lackawanna Steel Company has announced that on July 1 it will advance the wages of all its employees 10 per cent.

Last March the company reduced wages in the office force 10 per cent, while that of the unskilled laborers was cut from 15 and 17 cents an hour to 12 cents.

The increase is effective straight through the plant," said General Superintendent Downs. "As to the significance of the action I need only say that business conditions warrant the increase; therefore, it is given."

TRENTON, June 24.—"President Hadley need not hope to evade my charge that the Yale curriculum includes courses that undermine faith and breed immorality by saying he does not believe I have been quoted correctly. I have been quoted correctly, but I haven't said half that I intend to say before I am done with one of the most menacing conditions the young men of this country have ever faced."

Bishop James A. McFaul made this statement in an interview at his home last night, and put himself on record as being opposed to the methods of study in the United States even more emphatically than in his address early in the week at the fifty-ninth annual commencement of the College of St. Francis Xavier in New York.

It was during this address that Bishop McFaul declared that "most of the leading universities in this country are worthy of the greatest censure by reason of their positive and negative teachings, which tend to undermine Christianity and morality."

TO DEFEND MACHINIST

Union Issues Appeal for Member Who Was Unjustly Convicted.

Machinists' Progressive Lodge, No. 335, has issued the following appeal to the labor organizations of New York:

"Fellow-workers—Many of you probably have read in the newspapers that John Schreiber, an active member of the Machinists' Progressive Lodge, No. 335, was sentenced June 14, in Newark, N. J., to three years in the penitentiary, and 1,000 fine, for alleged robbery, on the evidence of detectives and spies. For months Schreiber had been without work. While going from New York to Newark to seek employment, he was arrested.

"Soon the newspapers will have to go more into details about this trial, because the prevailing circumstances are of a nature which cannot be hushed up. We feel firmly convinced that the sentence is a great injustice. Not a single shred of evidence was brought out that will stand the test.

"Not only had no offense whatever been committed, but nothing indicated that an attempt had been committed. The man was entirely innocent of any criminal intention. The invented stories of a few New York detectives who wanted to prove that they did not receive their recompense for nothing, and who found it an easy matter to prejudice the court against Schreiber, because he is accused of anarchistic crews, are the whole foundation of this atrocious sentence.

"Workingmen, we demand only justice, but not justice that has been 'fixed' by spies and detectives. A strenuous protest against this sentence must be made, and a writ of error obtained.

"We must rescue our fellow-worker, who has been one of the most active among us from the fangs of professional Judases.

"He always fought for the cause of all. Now let all and every one do his duty toward him.

DUTCH SOCIALISTS GAIN

Increase Their Vote 25 Per Cent in the General Elections.

(Correspondence to The Call.)

AMSTERDAM, June 13.—Although the Socialists of Holland did not succeed in electing a single deputy in the first ballot of the general elections held last week, they will have candidates in eleven districts for the second ballot June 29, and they feel sure that eight or nine of them will win out over their governmental opponents.

The number of Socialist votes cast increased from 65,743 in 1905 to 82,491, a gain of 25 per cent, whereas the total number of voters increased only 12 1-2 per cent, i. e., from 750,000 to 845,000. The growth of the Socialist vote was particularly marked in the large cities, for instance, in this city it rose to 14,559 compared with 9,852 four years ago; in Rotterdam, from 3,251 to 5,907, and in The Hague, from 2,312 to 3,598.

In the former Parliament the Social Democratic Labor party had six members, and there was one "independent" Socialist, so that if the hopes of the workers are fulfilled at the second ballot, the party will be stronger in the chamber as well as in the number of votes cast.

The new Socialist party, the Social Democratic party, which was formed last winter as the result of a split over tactical questions, polled only a few hundred votes, and will support the regular Socialist candidates at the second ballot.

The general result of the election has been a great victory for the Right, which now has fifty-four seats out of a total of 100, with the certainty of gaining several more in the second turn, whereas in the old chamber the government could only count on forty-nine deputies.

UNABLE TO PREVENT; SEES WIFE KILL SELF

CHICAGO, June 24.—Deprived of the use of his limbs by paralysis, John Bennett was yesterday compelled to witness in helpless terror the deliberate suicide of his wife. Unable to move a finger, he was able to shout, but none heard his cries.

Mrs. Bennett calmly placed a chair under a gas jet near her invalid husband's bed, and to the fixture tied a rope. Unheeding his frantic screams she affixed the noose and kicked the chair from under her feet. There she hung until life was extinct, her husband at last exhausted by his cries, dumbly following with his eyes the slow turning of her form as the rope twisted and untwisted. This motion had ceased when the first neighbor happened in and discovered the tragedy.

INSTRUCTOR WIPES OUT ENTIRE FAMILY

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 24.—W. R. Puryear, an assistant to Professor F. C. Caldwell, in the electrical engineering college at Ohio State University, shot and killed his brother-in-law, Fred West; shot his wife, Mrs. Clara Puryear, and then fired a bullet into his own head, at the Puryear home, 22 Woodruff avenue, yesterday afternoon.

Before making the attempt to end his own life Puryear barricaded himself within the house, set fire to the building and tried to assassinate Police Officer Creedon, as the latter was advancing upon him.

The cause of the tragedy is said by the police to be domestic trouble in the West family, where Puryear boarded while he was attending the State University as a freshman, and acting as a student assistant in the electrical college at the same time.

MASTERS ARE ALWAYS HATED.

Mr. Harriman defiantly announces that, though he knows there are many people who would be glad to learn of his death, he intends to outlive them.

That sounds well as a bluff. But, however long Harriman may live, though he should remain hale and hearty for years after all his present enemies have passed away, it is safe to say that he cannot outlive popular hatred. He will keep on raising up enemies against himself, no matter whether he personally deserves enmity or not, just because he is a great capitalist, whose wealth grows out of the toil and poverty of the masses and whose power can be maintained only by a ceaseless struggle to destroy other men.

That is the fate of monarchs, whether crowned and title as kings and emperors or whether industrial and financial magnates, vested with the substance of power without its outward trappings. They may be fed with flattery, but they will always be hated in proportion as they are feared.

The only persons outside his own little group of great capitalists and his personal hangers-on who do not hate such a man as Harriman and who would see no reason for rejoicing at his death are the Socialists, who understand that his individual life and his personal character have little or nothing to do with the evils of oppression and exploitation, of force and fraud, that cluster around his name.

An Alexander dies and a Nicholas takes his place; Russia is neither the better nor the worse for the change. When Harriman dies there will be another, whatever his name, to do as much ill as ever Harriman has done.

It is Czarism, not the individual Czar, that curses the Russian people. It is capitalism, not this or that capitalist, that deserves the hatred of intelligent lovers of freedom in all lands.

When the Russian revolution has triumphed, the descendants of emperors may enjoy the blessings of liberty side by side with the children of peasants. When capitalism has been ended, the sons of the Harrimans may live in harmony with the sons of Casey who labors in the ditch, of Goldstein who wears out his life in the sweatshop, of Smith and Johnson who dig coal or guide the plow or lay brick.

Till then, it is impossible that the Harrimans should be sincerely loved or that the others should be sincerely contented.

EVERYBODY IS OUT OF TOWN.

"Everybody's out of town" these suffocating days.

To be sure, the tenements of the East Side and the West Side are still crowded, and paying their daily tribute of human life to the deadly heat. To be sure, the workingmen and working women are still at their weary tasks, if they are lucky enough to have permission to work themselves slowly to death for an existence that it is mockery to call life. And those who have no jobs are tramping the streets in the broiling sun, desperately begging for work.

But a walk up Fifth avenue or down Central Park West or a stroll along Riverside Drive will convince the doubter that everybody is out of town, resting and recuperating in the mountains or at the seaside—everybody worth speaking of, that is—everybody who is "worth" enough not to have to do any useful work for a living.

Do we blame or envy those who flee the city in these killing days?

Not at all. We blame the system that permits only a few thousands of those who need it least to figure as Everybody and enjoy a summer vacation. We want a system that will enroll the present idlers as workers and will admit all to the ranks of that Everybody who can live a decent human life.

PUBLICITY.

While the "radical" American announces in flaring headlines that "Taft's Tax Law Will Open Books of All Corporations" and the equally "radical" World editorially declares that the corporation tax, as proposed by the President, "is certain to disclose facts relating to privileged industries and pursuits that the people have a right to know," the Washington dispatches give the lie to both declarations by plainly stating that, according to the plan agreed upon between the President and the Republican Senate leaders, the corporations shall be required to report their gross as well as net incomes, "but there shall be no investigation of the accuracy of such returns unless the Secretary of the Treasury has reason to suspect that a false statement has been made."

WHAT LABOR EDITORS SAY ABOUT THE EVENING CALL.

AMALGAMATED GLASSWORKERS' INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIA-TION OF AMERICA.
Chicago, Ill., June 18, 1906.
Editor of The Call:
I'm not of a character that can praise any person or newspaper, but The Call is the newspaper I read very carefully for its labor news, which gives the true reports as they occur. Its editorials on the labor movement has the right ring to it, for it champions the cause of the working class, both organized and unorganized.
The workers should support a labor paper instead of reading newspapers owned and controlled by the master class, whose labor news is very often unreliable and whose editorials give the views of the employers.
Fraternally yours,
WM. FIG LAH, Editor The Glass Worker.

ROOSEVELT AND LOOSENESS OF THOUGHT.

By Edmond Kelly.

Mr. Roosevelt accuses Socialists in his Outlook article of "looseness of thought." A sample of Mr. Roosevelt's exactness and precision is to be found in the following extract:
"It is not accident that makes thoroughgoing and radical Socialists adopt the principles of free love as a necessary sequence to insisting that no man shall have the right to what he earns. When Socialism of this really advanced and logical type is tried as it was in France in 1792, and again under the Commune in 1871, it is inevitable that the movement ushered in with every kind of high-sounding phrase, should rapidly spread so as to include, not merely the forcible acquisition of the property of others, but every conceivable form of monetary corruption, immorality, licentiousness, and murderous violence."
Free love then, according to Mr. Roosevelt, is the necessary consequence of Socialism; and this is proved according to him by the Socialism that was "tried" in 1792 and 1871.
Now, 1792 is an unfortunate year for Mr. Roosevelt, because it was the year of the ascendancy of the Girondins—the middle class party which we find voting for example the free commerce of grain against those who wanted this commerce to be taken over by the state.

But Socialism as such has never been "tried" in France, nor was it ever a part of the Revolutionary program. One of the points upon which the Assemblee Constituante was unanimous was "La propriete sera sacree"—"Property shall be sacred."
(1) Amongst the inalienable rights of man set forth in the Constitution of 1791 was the right of property—and property understood not as Socialists but as capitalists understand it, for Article 17 specifically protects it in these words: "Property being inviolable and sacred, no one shall be deprived of it unless when public necessity requires it and then only upon just compensation."
The Constitution of 1793 was still more explicit; it reproduced Article 17 of the Constitution of 1791 (Article 19) and assures to every man the enjoyment not only of the fruit of his labor but also of the interest on his capital (Revenues, Article 16) and in Article 17 gives the first constitutional sanction to the competitive system by providing that citizens shall be at liberty to engage in every kind of industry, culture or commerce; that is to say, it explicitly takes away from the state the right to take over any of its industries.

Indeed it would be difficult to find during the whole history of France decrees more anti-Socialist than those of 22 Frimaire An. II. "All combinations or meetings of workmen are prohibited"; "In no case may workmen unite to express their grievances; all meetings shall be broken up and the authors and instigators of them arrested and punished." (Recueil des actes IX., pp. 349, 350.)
And where in any history of the Revolution of 1789 has Mr. Roosevelt found "principles of free love adopted"? All the authors admit that after the death of Robespierre the returning flood of nobles to France substituted pleasure, frivolity and even libertinage for "Republican austerity." Thiers does not mention libertinage but points out that the "garb of simplicity, poverty and even dirt affected during the revolution" was cast aside for rich garments and jewelry. Looseness of morals there may have been among the nobles who put an end to the Revolution; but where does Mr. Roosevelt find it during the Revolution?
And looseness of morals is not free love. There is no class in which looseness of morals more prevails than in the class to which Mr. Roosevelt himself belongs—the self-styled Four Hundred; and yet no Socialist however intemperate has ever accused these of free love. Free love means the abandonment of marriage, of its celebration and of its consequences. It would have taken a legislative act to put an end to marriage in France in 1792 as it would to put an end to it here today. Where is there trace of such an act? Where is there evidence that such an idea was even hinted at during the revolutionary days?

To what conclusion then are we driven?
There was no free love in 1792. There was no Socialism in 1792. If by free love Mr. Roosevelt means looseness of morals corresponding to his own looseness of thought, this looseness occurred during the Royalist reaction and not during the Revolution.
As to the Commune of 1871 Mr. Roosevelt's statement is even more easily answered. The Commune of 1871 never existed. It tried to exist. But as a necessary antecedent to its existence it had to overcome the Versailles troops, and this it did not do. To talk of the "principles of free love" having been "adopted" by the Commune of 1871 is very much like charging a man with committing adultery during the heat of a battle. And in answer to the charge of "forcible acquisition of the property of others" and "every conceivable form of monetary corruption" let me remind Mr. Roosevelt that the first act of those in charge of the insurrection of 1871 was to place guards round the millions of gold, treasured in the vaults of the Bank of France and that the Versailles troops found this treasure intact when they entered Paris.

MONEY AND DEMOCRACY.

By Robert Hunter.

Yesterday we had something to say concerning gambling insurance. Let us add a little more.
The Equitable, the New York Life and the Mutual Life Insurance companies, exercise to-day the greatest financial power in the world.
They have possession of assets to the extent of at least one billion. Through their affiliated trust companies they control as much wealth as all the national banks of America, and more than the great financial institutions of Europe combined.
They have in surplus cash, ready to use in emergency, about two hundred million dollars. This sum is about equal to the combined capital of the banks of France, England, Russia and Germany.
The income alone of these three companies totals not less than two hundred and fifty millions a year.
Every year the people pay to these companies about two hundred millions. The obtaining control of these tremendous funds is the cause of numerous Wall street wars. Fights among the barons to become masters of these savings are reflected in many a political battle.
The parading, shouting and voting people have an idea they are fighting for good government. They want this man or that man for governor, or for mayor. But back of all, controlling all, are rival barons, fighting for mastery over the enormous savings of the people.
The policy holders have no more to do with the matter than the ordinary voter has to do with the political machine which rules him.
Small cliques made up of Rockefeller, Rogers, Silliman, Morgan and Harriman administer the funds, use them to finance their big deals, and even, when they wish, to bribe legislators, corrupt judges and elect presidents.
To-day some traction magnates are trying to obtain the rights for building new subways. Let us suppose the city grants them the rights. How will they get the money to build the subways?
Not one of them, need have a penny. Even the raggedest hobo on the Bowery might build the subways on the same basis if he were only sold with the inner clique.

As soon as the franchises are granted the money is borrowed from the insurance companies, the savings banks and trust companies. It is, of course, the people's money. It is their capital which finances the whole enterprise.
The savings banks, insurance companies and trust companies get interest on their money, but the inner clique divide among themselves the immense profits.
The people whose money built the subways will not own the subways. On the contrary, they will be robbed, nickel by nickel, to pay the inner clique millions upon millions.
Democracy is a good thing, but it has not yet begun in this country.
We think we have democracy because we are allowed to stick a little piece of paper into a ballot box once or twice every year or so.
Even though we actually controlled the government, actually selected our own officials, we should not even then have made a beginning in democracy.
Until we bring under our control these enormous financial institutions, and become masters of our industries, we shall remain a miserable, subjected, degraded and exploited people.
The real governors of America are not the little strutting statesmen and politicians, with their penny fireworks and cheap oratory.
These distinguished gentlemen are merely puppets of financial masters. They are in most cases innocent, child-like, well nigh half-witted—at least as much so as the rest of us American citizens. They are tools, with the brains of a gimlet and the intellect of a lath.
The birth of democracy is yet to be. We shall know it not until the people see somewhat further than the farcical trumpery and unseemly idiocy of tin-horn politics.
A PROFESSIONAL INTEREST.
"I am surprised that you should be so interested in watching those silly dudes."
"Force of habit, I guess. I'm president of a real estate improvement company."
"Well?"
"Well, they're a vacant lot."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

"DAMN A BREADFRUIT!"

By George Allan England.

Apropos of the strike of Japanese plantation hands in Hawaii, I recall a bit of conversation I had on the train some time ago with one of the biggest sugar men in the Islands. His point of view was certainly thought-compelling and full of real value. Needless to say the planter did not know my political complexion, or he wouldn't have loosened up as he did.
Our talk had drifted from one thing to another, from Trusts to Tariffs and from Panick to Presidents, until (somehow guided by my questions) it landed on that sore topic, Labor.
"Humph!" growled the planter, posing his Havana in mid air. "Humph! Labor! Say, it's going all to Hell, down there on the Islands, do you know it?"
"How so?" I inquired with interest.
"Well, this way—it's getting new-fangled ideas, imported from the States. It's beginning to get uppish and insolent—beginning to organize and demand things—to want shorter hours, more pay, and all that sort of thing. Even to talk about strikes! Think of that, will you? A strike, in Hawaii! Say!"
"Too bad," I sympathized.
"Yes, sir," he continued, puffing excitedly. "And all due to labor union ideas creeping in there among those Kanakas and Japs. It's an outrage, I tell you! Why, years ago when I first started in the business, who ever heard of such a thing? But now it's everywhere. Oh, the place is going to Hell, fast—all due to United States influences, every bit. I'd ha' shut 'em all out, ideas, American workmen and all. But no, they've been creeping in, creeping in, and Lord knows what'll happen there yet. Why, even the Kanakas may organize in time, and then where shall we be?"
"Terrible!" I murmured. "They've been dying of a bit, haven't they, those brown fellows? Rum and the white man's diseases have sort of thinned them out, eh? So Stoddard says in his books, anyhow?"
"So?"
"Yes. When the Islands were discovered, I understand there were 200,000 or more natives, and now there are only about 30,000 of Hawaiian blood. Besides that—"

"These unions," the planter interrupted, not heeding my mild statistics, "are going to wreck the whole place, that's what. To say nothing of the climate and the damned oranges and bananas and breadfruit. Damn a breadfruit, anyway!" He gazed out of the car window with visible wrath.
"Why say that?" I asked. "The fruit's very good, isn't it? Very nourishing, and dirt cheap."
"Yes, hang it—that's just the point! Don't you see?"
"No, not exactly," I admitted.
"Why, it's just this way. Suppose you have a bunch of men working for you, and they don't like the hours or the pay, and the woods are full of fruit—the climate's mild—living's easy to get—what happens? The bloody rascals simply walk out! They work when they please and they quit when they please, and they go and lie under a blank-blank fruit tree and eat fruit! And profits go to the devil! Now, if all the fruit and stuff could be fenced in on private ground, there'd be some show, but as it is—rotten conditions, rotten, vile!"
"But you're speaking of the former days, I take it?" said I. "The land is being protected now, I infer?"
He smoked a moment in silence before replying.
"Yes, thank God," said he. "But just as we were getting the swine where they ought to be, along came American labor and Japanese labor and all these new, fool ideas, and began to upset things again. Oh, it's hard luck, something savage!"
The train thundered past a switchyard, then flashed by a large pile of iron rails, a car shop, a factory.
"Now THERE," exclaimed the planter, with vehemence, "is something like! This country has certainly got things clinched. You turn men loose, here, and they'll find it blamed poor picking. Just let them try and sit in the shade of that factory, or gnaw those rails, there or lunch on bricks and mortar, and they'll devilish soon get enough and quit. But out in Hawaii, even yet, the bloody climate and the fruit and all make things pretty near impossible for us solid citizens. There ought to be something done about labor, out there, that's what, sir; that's what!"
"There will be, before very long," I replied confidently.
"Let us hope so! They need a lesson, those fellows do!"
"They do," I concurred. "So does labor everywhere, to teach it certain valuable facts. Well, good day. I've enjoyed your conversation tremendously. Good bye." I got up and went forward into the next car.
The last I heard of my Planter his mutterings and grumblings of indignation, through which like lightning through thunderheads, darted forth: "Damn an orange, sir! Damn a banana! Damn a breadfruit, that's what! Damn a blank-blank breadfruit!"

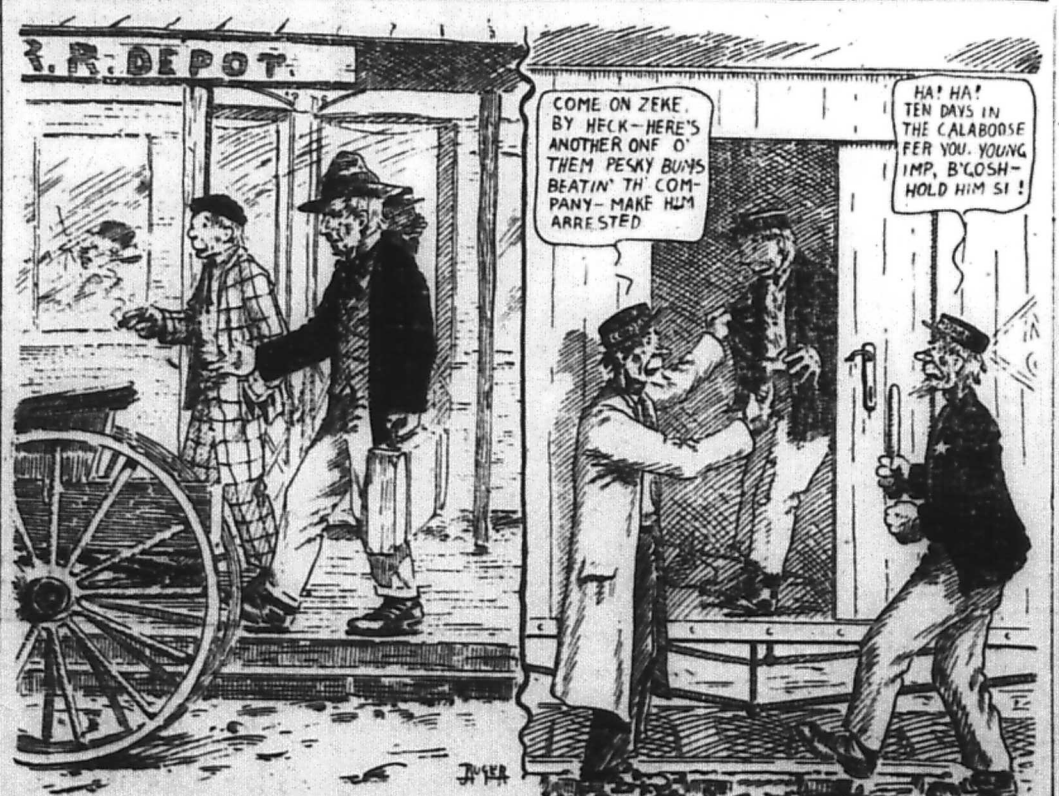

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

HANFORD ON THE EDITOR OF THE CALL:
The Call does not seem never has suited me. The issue of The Call has been I would have had it printed. It contained the things that have been included within Business managers, circulators, reporters—the work of them suits me. Why can we have a manager who understands transmutation of metals? That, then at least let us have who knows something of main, and can get a few out of the air now and then, that let him have sense enough to consult a clairvoyant—where the treasure is. That not as a continuous performance of editors. The work of editors at all. In fact, my own work does not satisfy me—satisfy any. But why can we not have a manager who knows everything happens everything would not be. And reporters—we ought to have porters who are everywhere, and universal presence, funds—that's what The Call. Why have we not had such writers could take their place in hand and turn out the work would convert the work of had better be quick about, wise the enemy may get the pher's stone, the elixir of secret of turning lead into gold. editor should write short half-line editorials, and ought to make a Socialist member out of a workingman read the capitalist papers years. Sure. That's what. Why can't we have it?
Just because we can't. Just there is no philosopher's stone is no elixir of life. We work, and work, and work keep on plugging. That's the shall win. No other way, reds can tell you of the New York labor paper, who is insensible in the office, faint for lack of food, thought to pay his wages, a weekly labor paper. The daily. Its editors have starved, but it has often—about once a week—looked like might be up. But The Call still lives—and is about a great career. There are that must be killed before born, or they never can be. Call is one of them. The is going to have the benefit mistakes, all the heartbreaks and sacrifices and all the of the past. And because of rifice The Call is going to Before another year rolls by will wish that he had parents of The Call an suicide formula. But the and it will arrive at market Roosevelt does.

Taft's Tax Scheme.

Editor of The Call:
The man upon whom the endeavoring to place the taxation is the financial magnate the only way to catch him is come tax. His income is dealing in financial securities than in the receipt of dividends such securities.
The big financial men who participated in the profits from the sale of steel stock from 20 to 30, certainly much more interested in that forty-nine per cent. than they are in the two per cent. annual dividends. Besides, a magnate can make just as much money by selling a stock as he can by buying it, if he can force the down, and certainly nobody would buy a stock that would pay a two per cent. tax upon the earnings of the stock would not be to the advantage of the magnate in depressing its value.
The financial magnate could a hundred million a year in dividends which pay two per cent. net earnings, yet he himself not pay a cent for taxation. Therefore, the financial magnate is in favor of any tax, two per cent. or otherwise, which would divert attention from himself and him escape from an income tax. Very introduction of such a big best illustration of the power financial magnates have over the financial situation, and also evidence the financial magnate has over the old-time industrial magnate.

THE ADVENTURES OF CHARLIE MAKEHISWAY

As He Read It In the Book. As It Happened in Real Life.

ON THE FIRING LINE.

By MONSABIO.
Who knows, perhaps a tax on corporations would prove an easier one for the United States Supreme Court than an income tax. In the words of Dr. Bunion, there is hope!
The appalling ignorance of the poor is the only thing which yet saves capitalism. Let the workers become enlightened and the revolution is accomplished.
A Southerner by birth, a student of a Revolutionary soldier, a Civil War veteran, himself a war volunteer, writes to me that he was made a member of a system "which gives huge profits to the uni"; and forces you to yourself "to steal a sustenance, closes his letter by stating would prefer hell if heaven were this world. It is dangerous, you, and it is not a Socialist uttering it. The yoke is found unbearable by all.
Life says of H. H. Rogers: "As a pirate he was picturesque." Of course the world needs picturesque pirates.
