Contest Entered by the Duluth Socialists.

Socialism vs. Capitalism.

The Socialists of Duluth, Minn., Issue a Declaration, Adopt a Platform, and Nominate a Municipal Ticket-Letter of Acceptance by the Mayoralty Can-

DULUTH, Minn., Dec. 24 .- The Socialist Labor Party of this city went at an early hour into convention for the pending municipal elections. It adopted the Declaration and Platform:

"The Socialist Labor Party of Duluth scknowledging the self-evident facts that labor creates all wealth, that the instruments of production are the realt of social co-operation, maintains that the wealth created by co-operative labor should be owned by that social class which performs said labor—the Laboring Class.

Mealizing that victory at the polls in municipal election cannot fulfill this measure of justice to the working class, and that this can only be brought about by victory in national election; while never losing sight of our final aim, the received of the public power by the never losing sight of our final aim, the conquest of the public power by the working class, to restore to those who alone can use them, the means of production and distribution; the Socialist Labor Party of Duluth presents for your consideration the following platform, to uphold which, with every power at their command, each candidate nominated by the Socialist Labor Party is solemnly pledged.

"I.—The city to acquire street railways, electric plants and all public utilities, same to be operated by the employees co-operatively under control of city administration. The employees to elect their own superintendent, foremen, etc., except such as are elected by the direct vote of the people; no employee to be discharged for political rea-

"V.—All city printing to bear the Union label; and all material used by the city to be the product of Union labor when such can be procured.
"VI.—Rigid enforcement of sanitary conditions of streets, alleys, lots, lands, factories and workshops within the city

"VII.—In case of disputes, etc., tween workingmen and capitalists, the city administration shall aid in every possible manner the just demands of the workers; (for instance) by the ap-propriation of money, etc. "VIII.—The acquirement by the city of vacant lots and lands within the city limits, and the erection thereon of sanitary and comfortable homes with modern conveniences, to be let by the city to the working people, at a rental calculated on cost of repairs and administrative expenses. "IX.-Free medical attendance to be "IX.—Free medical attendance to be furnished at the homes of the applicant when necessary; also free medicine, and the establishment by the city of municipal bakeries, milk depots, drug stores, coal yards, laundries and other agencies for furnishing the people, at cost price, pure food and other necessaries now sold for profit, the multiple haths.

free public baths. "X .- School education of all children under 14 years to be compulsory, the city to furnish food and clothing to children when necessary.

"XI.—All business of the City Coun-di to be transacted in public. The abolition of secret sessions."

The convention nominated the fol-

Ticket.

For Mayor, J. H. OPPERMAN. For Alderman (6th Ward), EDWARD KRIZ. For Alderman (2d Ward), JULIUS DWORSCHAK.

Comrade Opperman, the candidate for Mayor, wrote the following

Letter of Acceptances

The Socialist Labor Party in conven-tion assembled, having nominated me for the office of Mayor of the City of Duluth, I desire to express my appre-ciation of the confidence placed in me. accept the nomination, and offer the following brief explanation of Society is divided into two great classes—the Working Class and the Capitalist Class.

The Working Class produces all wealth, the Capitalist Class appropriates it. It keeps the Working Class in poverty and wage slavery. It uses the wage workers when it needs them to grind out more profits; it leaves them to late when it has no further need of them. The wage slaves of to-day are treated with less consideration than saled with less consideration than the the chattel slaves of fifty years

Fellow Wage Workers: Our emanci-ation must be accomplished by the aquest of the political power. The Capitalist Class can only hold its power over us so long as it has control of the government, municipal, State and Na-

So long as it is the ruling class, so So long as it is the ruling class, so long will it legislate for its own instincts and use all the powers of government to keep us in subjection and wage slavery,—subjects of merciless exploitation; and it has proven numberless times that it will not hesitate to shoot down, in cold blood, he workers when they revolt against such degrading conditions and demand better.

Fellow Workinsmen! You have the Fellow Workingmen! You have the power-to sweep those parasites and their political lackeys out of every public office, and send in their place men from the ranks of your own class, pledged to support your own interests, and held to strict account by your own Party—the Socialist Labor Party.

Every election day finds the citadel Capitalism with doors unbolted. De-mand its unconditional surrender by casting your vote for the S. L. P. By so doing you are not voting for persons but for principle. Every candidate you elect on the So-cialist Labor Party ticket assumes his office as your political servant—not your master. Should he prove unfaithful to his trust he is subject to recall. Therefore, I ask for your votes, not as marks of personal friendship or favor, but as fellow members of the Working Class, whose interests are identical the

I pledge myself, should I be elected, to put forth every effort and use every power vested in me by virtue of said office, to secure the enactment of such laws and ordinances as are demanded in our municipal platform. In conducting the affairs of said office, it shall be my constant aim to advance by every honorable means the interests of the Working Class. With this pledge, I ask all wage work-ers—If you believe in the demands of our platform and the principles of our Party—lend your shoulders to the wheel and on to victory. You have nothing to lose but your chains. You have the world to gain.

The depatches from San Francisco. telling of the return on the Zealandia of two companies of Montana voluntcers, who brought with them $150,000 of private loot, contribute their share to enlighten the world upon the sort of civilization that our Republican capitalist Federal Government is trying to ram down the throats of the Filipinos.

Private booty is a feature of uncivilized warfare. Under the folds of the Stars and Stripes, the example of bar-barism is being set to the Filippinos.

The raid on the Philippine Islands is developing into a two-edged sword, with both edges turned upon our work-ing class. By the conquest of the islands our American "Labor Market" is to be overstocked; and by the degra-dation of the element that is to do the overstocking, our people are sure to be pulled down, too.

"Union Wrecking" is being illustrated in Brocton, Mass. A short time ago, there was much activity among the workingmen towards organizing unions of their respective crafts. Hatters, bakers, pressmen, and many other unions were forming, when suddenly all activity in that direction was stopped. Why? Because of the disruption that the Boot and Shoemakers' Union fell a prey to, owing to the manœuvre of their Labor-Fakir national officers, Tobin and Eaton, in compelling the men to pay high dues.

The Labor Fakir is THE "Union Wrecker." That valuable aid towards the emancipation of the working class—the Union—once it has fallen into the hands of the Labor Fakir, is blighted for good. The Fakir, being stupid, ignorant and corrupt, runs the Union in such a course that it is bound to go upon the rocks. The workingmen of all trades, seeing disaster, tyranny and en-slavement falling upon the Union men, do not join organizations, and those who are in do their best to get out.

Thus Unionism becomes a by-word, and the Unions are wrecked. It is left to the Socialist Trades & Labor Alliance, not only to cleanse the word, but to rehabilitate the trade organization, by constructing class-conscious unions, and providing them with such regula-tions that the Labor Fakir could simply not breathe in them;—in short, to smash "pure and simpledom."

Just now, when the subsidized press of America is singing the praises of England as a civilizer, and seeking to win for that international brow-beater of mankind the love of the American people with cock-and-bull stories about the civilization and prosperity that England is bleeding to introduce into the Transvaal, it may be interesting to find out the sort of prosperity that she has cultivated in her South African portion of the nation, the term Bull Pen has become a household word. Just what is meant by that term, the people however, pulled him up short, and ran the scoundrel out of the Transvaal. This international hireling of Capital at large have but a vague conception. The capitalist newspapers have made explanations that did not explain; the "labor" papers and the labor fakirs have added to the confusion; the annual ban-quet of the American Fakiration of Labor has been eaten, and we are as much in the dark as ever. Why? Because the recital of the story of the Because the recital of the story of the Bull Pen and all that leads up to it, with the lessons that it teaches, would, if learned by the working class, cause them to throw the fakirs overboard, stop their scab labor sheets, abandon their capitalist papers, kick their capitalist politicians down and out, and march with the militants of the S. L. P. to the conquest of the public powers. It follows, therefore, that it is left for the Socialist Labor Party to tell the tale of the Bull Pen in Idaho.

CHAPTER I.

Pre-Historical.-Before '92.

Idaho is one of the sage-brush States in the West that has grown up with the present generation. Like her sister States of Wyoming, Montana, Utah, etc., its chief resource is its mineral products. In '82 gold was discovered in that pretting of Idaha known as the that portion of Idaho known as the Cœur d'Alene county. From all over the West prospectors flocked, with hard tack in the satchels, hope in their hearts and a Fifth avenue palace in their minds.

The prospectors speedily found that the mines were not easily worked; large capital was needed to develop them. The money came, and for a time all went well. $3.50 a day was the wage. As has happened from Pennsylvania to the has nappened from Pennsylvania to the Slope, the fine art of skinning Labor, through pluck-me-stores and other de-vices all came after other things were well settled. So, in '85 the Company started a Company boarding house, then a Company store, finally a Company bunk house—all about as comfortable as the boudoirs in the steerage of a tramp steamer.

In June, '87, the Bunker Hill and Sullivan Company, the property of the Standard Oll Co., sought to reduce the miners' wages from $3.50 to $3.00, and the other underground men from $3.50 to $2.50, but failed to reduce their board, which remained at $1.00 per day.

When the miners refused to accept this reduction, the Company was forced on account of the then scarcity of miners, to return to the old schedule of $3.50, but refused to pay other under-ground men more than $3.00, which was a cut of 50 cents per day for these men. Here we see the irrepressible conflict between Capital and Labor, each striv-ing to get the most of the product that Labor produced. At this early stage of the Idaho mining development, we four distinct reductions of the men's ductions, on November 17th, 1887, the first union of miners in the Cœur d'Alenes was organized and was called Wardner Miners' Union. In 1890, the men employed by the Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining Company demanded the prevailing wages paid in the district, $3.50 per day, for all underground men, which was refuse and a strike ensued. It lasted two weeks, and ended in the defeat of the Company, it agreeing to pay the same wages as the other mines in the dis-

This defeat enraged the President of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine, Mr. John Hays Hammond.

And who may this Mr. John Hays Hammond be? The answer will incidentally throw not a little light upon the internationality of Capitalism, and halp to explain the resent disgraceful help to explain the recent disgraceful scenes of love and affection displayed at the banquet of the "Sons of the Amerithe banquet of the "Sons of the American Revolution" for the whipped Britishers in South Africa. This Hammond is the gentleman who afterwards went to Africa, and, together with the protegé of Cecil Rhodes and Joseph Chamberlain, the filibuster, Dr. Jameson, conspired a midnight raid upon the Boer Republic. Just as he smuggled rifles into Idaho in '92, so in '97, he showed his training by smuggling rifles in carloads of coke into the Transvaal. Oom Paul,

This international hireling of Capital at once organized a Mine Owners' Industrial Protective Association for the sole purpose of reducing miners' wages in the West to $2.50. This for a starter. Later reductions to follow until that glorious day would dawn on Shoshone County when the miners would be as County when the miners would be as hungry and as helpless as in Pennsylvania.

The Mine Owners' Protective Association had a grand work before it.
Only the "foolish" miners, with wives and children to support could not see it that way.

The first move of Hammond's Asso-

The first move of Hammond's Association was to raise the sinews of war. This was done by assessing every member of the Association 12 per cent. on every ton of ore shipped from their mines. The collections went into a sinking fund for the purpose of buying guns, hiring toughs and raising hell generally. The poor devils who molled and toiled in the mines at the risk of life, health and limb, should have the last health and limb, should have the last ounce of surplus value squeezed out of them by peaceful means; if not, the Association would buy enough toughs to shoot it out of them.

Right here, mark this down: Up to this time, January 1, '92, not a blow was struck, not a shot was fired, naught save a whispered curse in an outraged worker's throat; while all the prepara-tions for war were going on from the other, the "Law and Order Abiding"

CHAPTER II.

The Big Fight of '92.

The polished plugugly, who presided over the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine felt that all his plans were safe for the starting of his conspiracy. So with all his wires laid, the Courts "fixed," guns purchased and Pinkertons ready, he is-sued the order to shut down every mine in the county on January 17th, '92. Thousands of men were thrown out of employment in midwinter; credit in the Company stores was forthwith denied them; and eviction threatened. On April 1st, the Mine Owners' Pro-tective Association offered to resume operations at a reduction of $1.00 per day for miners and 50 cents for all other men. That was the first part of the scheme. The men, starved out during three months; their funds exhausted, and their credit along with that, were expected to be found pliant; if not, there were the Courts, guns, etc., ready for them. The prospective participator in the future Jameson raid miscalculated on the first point; but he was absolutely certain on the second. The miners refused to accept the prof-ferzed reduction, and Wm. Hammond ordered his Courts, his State and Fed-eral Rep-Dem. Capitalist officials, to

Without a particle of disturbance of any description, the Mine Owners' Association applied for an injunction against the Miners' Union; this was granted by Judge Beatty, of the Federal Court, with a break-neck quickness. Right upon that, the Mine Owners' Association applied to the Governor to declare martial law in that peaceable territory; and he, like Judge Beatty, a ready and complacent tool of the Company, did so forthwith.

Having taken its Judge out of its right-hand pocket, and pulled its Governor out of its left-hand pocket, Hamnor out of its leit-name portation was mond's Mine Owners' Association was ready to unleash the Dogs of War. And it did so; 500 rifles were bought and distributed at the different mines, to be distributed at the different mines, to be used by the toughs that were to be brought in from the large cities to create riot in the name of "Law and Order," and thus furnish justification for the Capitalist brutality in contemplation. So far all was ptaceable at the mines. Not one of the villainous gang, who plotted the scheme with their assistant Judges, Governors, etc., has ever dared plotted the scheme with their assistant Judges, Governors, etc., has ever dared to declare otherwise. Yet the first act of their imported toughs was to attempt to drive the miners out of the county. So they started to raid the town of Gem on July 11.

At this point the miners felt that things had just gome far enough. The right of self-defence was now enforced upon them. They acted as their class always acts in such cases: slow to action but chain-lightning-fire-and-brimstone always acts in such cases: slow to action but chain-lightning-fire-and-brimstone when they start. To be locked out and threatened with starvation for no crime was bad enough; but they could stand it. But when a gang of bums, loafers and drumks, the scourings of the cities, came into Shoshone County to drive them and their wives and families out as a drover would drive his hogs, this was more than flesh and blood could stand. So they picked up their shotguns, Winchesters and all, and sallied forth at daybreak to meet the foe, although outnumbered 2 to 1. They met them. Oh, yes, they did. And they did not do a thing to them. They shot them; they clubbed them; they took their guns off them; they threw 'em down and danced on them—the toughs, not the guns—until there was not a bum pluguigly in Hammond's brigade but wished he had never deserted his dive to monkey with these "wild Western miners." The miners disarmed over 500 of them, marched them out of town, buried their dead, succored their wounded, and told them that if they ever dared to return, they would find a neat little hole in the hillside for their hide. Just then the Federal troops arrived, 1,600 strong, under General Curtin. They arrested every miner in sight, whereupon the "bold" toughs re-appeared, burned the miners' union hall to the ground, in sulted the miners' wives, beat their miners' union hall to the ground, in-sulted the miners' wives, beat their children and raised hell generally, like the bold, bad men that they were, now that the defenders of these women and children were hemmed in by a wall of Some of the Union men were "tried for riot," were found guilty, appealed to the United States Supreme Court, and were discharged. The Supreme Court of the U.S. holding that the Men WERE ABSOLUTELY BLAMELESS FOR THE OCCURRENCE OF JULY 11, '92.

On that July morning when the miners were fighting for their stinted liberties and miserable homes, three of their brave comrades were killed by the imported toughs. Their memory is kept imported toughs. Their memory is kept green in Shoshone County. On the 11th day of July in each recurring year since '92, every mine in the County shuts down. The whole population turns out to the little cemetery on the hillside. While speeches are made and prayers said, their graves are decorated by the children and washed by the tears of the women they had died for. There will women they had died for. There will be more graves to be decked this year— Mike Devine, Mat Johnson and others are there now. Bigger than ever will be the celebration this year, held as it will be under the Shadow of the Bull Pen. And these celebrations will con-tinue until they will be merged in that grand celebration that will commenorate the final downfall of the class that Hammond represented. At that very time when the U. S.

Courts were acquitting the miners, the Courts were acquitting the miners, the Associated Press was sending out redeyed tales about the "murderers of Shoshone County," "Dynamiters," "Scoundrelly Rufflans," etc.

They lied, they knew it; but the rascality of the Mine Owners' Protective Association had to be hidden in this cloud of dust, and yet again there was another gain to be made by this uproar: This Cœur d'Alene County was undeveloned in the main; the cream of the wealth hidden in these hills had only been skimmed; new leads and mines been skimmed; new leads and mines were being continually discovered; the district was a new El Dorado; the Capidistrict was a new El Dorado; the Capitalist clique in control desired no more outside capital to come in; Capital was always timid they knew. Now, if they could cause Eastern investors to believe that this territory was overrun by howlers, dynamiters, murderers, etc., the capital would not come in and all the ers, dynamiters, murderers, etc., the capital would not come in, and all the wealth of the Cœur d'Alenes would, from time to time, come under their control. Hence their desire for trouble:

First, to cut the men's wages to starv-Secondly, to scare outside investors

In the latter they succeeded admirablv. The determined fight of the men caused them to fail in the former. Every mine in the district consented to nay the Union scale except the Bunker Hill and Sullivan Company. The returned to work, happy over their cessful fight: they were determined to make another of the same kind when necessary; so they oiled up their Winchesters while the Angel of Peace was folding its wings.

CHAPTER III.

Politics in Idaho. The Union miners of Idaho at no time knew any more about politics than the aw allowed In a dim way, they realized that political power was at the bottom of the whole situation. They wanted to cap-ture that power, but just what to do with it they were not clear. To use that power as a class-conscious, therefore, revolutionary political party of workingmen would use it, did not occur workingmen would use it, did not occur to them. To use that power as an ad-junct to the union in Shoshone County "to get something now" was all they could see. "A bird in the hand was worth two in the bush," they thought; and it must be said they had better rea-sons for this position than is usually the case; because the political power in the county was in their hands, but in the State of Idaho the Mormon farmers, who had come across the State line from Utah, held the balance of power, and who had come across the state line from Utah, held the balance of power, and, as middle class farmers, they had noth-ing in common with the miners. Hence the miners looked after the county offi-ces alone, leaving the political Sword of Damocles in the State suspended over their heads.

We may easily imagine what followed. The miners had the county officers, sheriff, tax commissioners, etc.; the Capitalists had the State officers. The row between the Union and the Capitalists. row between the Union and the talists breaks out; then the State steps in, erects the Bull Pen, arrests the sheriff and tax commissioners, arrests

Stock Exchanges and the Social Revolution.

Preliminary Battlefields.

Light Thrown Upon the Recent New York Panic Which Connects McKinley's Anti-Trust Fulmination, Gage's Rush to the Rescue, and Roosevelt's Signing of the Astoria Grab.

The attention of the world is centered ipon the war in Africa, little realizing that the sceptre has passed from the field of physical war to the field of commerce, or in other words, that the great wars of to-day are fought, not only upon the battle-field, but in the markets and

The proposition laid down by Socialist thinkers that, under capitalism, if it lasts long enough, all industries will come to be controlled by one man or one clique of men, has been exempli-fied by the warfare that has occurred upon the floor of the New York Stock Exchange lately.

Here we have witnessed a contest that was as disastrous and as far-reaching in its effects as any struggle fought upon the field of battle, the aftermath being a depreciation in the prices of securities reaching the magnitude of some $200,-This means the sweeping of the stealings of many small capitalists into the pockets of the larger ones, with the re-sult of more wealth concentration, the control of industries in fewer hands, and the further result of lower wages for the working classes.

The fear of "confiscation" by the So-cialists, that nightmare of capitalists, is but a shadow compared to the reality of this confiscation that has just taken place under "Law and Order" on the floor of the Exchange.

To-day, when the big fellows find the little fellows an obstruction, orders are given, the guns are trained, and the battle (known to the public as a panie) takes place.

The factors in this struggle throw much light upon another Socialist truth, that the material interests of each class in society compel them to use the powers of government for their protection. We find in this instance the great capitalists, the Rockefellers, in a contest with other great capitalists,—the Whitney, Brady outfit. One side represented by the Republican machine, the other by the Croker Democratic gang.

The Rockefellers have some $50,000,-000 of surplus values accumulated in their hands every year, which, under the law of Capitalism, must be invested.

They have become the industrial kings of the nation, controlling Oil, Lead, Steel, Leather, etc.; there are new industries to conquer; so, in the interest of Standard Oil, they are after the gas plants of the large cities of the United Standing in their way were the interests formerly led by the late Roswell P. Flower, one time Democratic Governor of this State, those interests being now led by Brady, Whitney, Croker Democrats, with the power of the municipal government behind them. But the Federal government is more powerful. To defeat the Democratic capitalists and secure the prize, something must be done, a panic must be created in the midst of so-called prosperity.

McKinley gets off something against "Trusts" in his annual message. This was the beginning. The British reverse in South Africa gives the opportunity. The floor of the Exchange is the battlefield. The war begins. Securities, held by the "Brady" crowd fall in price swiftly. The powers let loose by the Rockefeller crowd do their work too Rockefeller crowd do their work too well; it looks as if they too will be en-gulfed in their snares. What happens? A Gage capitalist lackey comes to the rescue. The United States Treasury is at the command of the Rockefellers. Their plans succeed. A "national cal-amity" just "averted"; the last act in the drama is the signing of the "Astoria grab" by Roosevelt, giving the Standard Oil crowd what they were after. Thus do politics help the capitalists.

The Stock Exchange, with its ramifications, the Exchange and money markets, are destined to be a leading battle ground upon which important economic battles of the future will be fought. There will the little capitalist, forced out of the channels of trade, by centration of industry, play his last card, commit suicide, or become a pro-

Here will one of the last dramas of capitalism be enacted, the Waterloo of the bourgeoisle. To the proletarian, the victories and defeats of these contending forces (who struggle to command a position where they can become the sole confiscators of the surplus values the working class create), are the same as to the privates on the battlefield; they mean no benefit

Only when he realizes that to support politically either of these forces is sui-cidal, and determines to put his own cidal, and determines to put his own class in power, will he be wise.

Until then the battles on the Stock Exchange will, unconsciously, make for the Social Revolution; for they will be a factor in creating those social contrasts, which, becoming apparent and intolerable to all, will lead to the overthrow of all it stands for—Capitalism rampant. rampant.

all the Union men,-and commands the situation in the interest of the Capitalist class. God is always on the side of the strongest battalions. The State was stronger than the COUNTY, hence the stronger than the COUNTY, hence the State, or, rather, the Capitalists, won, and the Union Miners learned this bit-ter lesson, that the bird in the hand was not in the hand at all, but on the contrary was in the Bull Pen; that the only way the bird can be securely in the hand is by capturing, not Shoshone County, but the State, and finally the CHAPTER IV.

The Battle of April 29, '99.—How the Concentrator Was Blown Up.

After the battle of '92 was over, the men had won, the Bunker Hill and sullivan Mining Co. found out that they sullivan Mining Co. found out that they had troubles of their own. For a long time its mines remained closed. Its president, Mr. Hammond, had to seek fresh fields and pastures new, which accounts for his appearance before that wicked old man, Oom Paul, who spanked him even worse than did the miners.

The prosperity of the town of Wardner depended on the B. H. & S. mine. The cockroach business-men were at their wit's end. The red rag of the auctioneer never left their minds, even in the dead watches of the night. They finally orgnized a Militia Company; the finally orgnized a Militia Company; the mine owners having made such a disastrous experience with imported bullies, these cockroach business-men thought they would try home talent. The B. H. & S. mine was thereupon opened, and the business-men commenced to sing. Non-union men were running it under reduced wages;—miners at $3.00; muckers, as the other men in the mine are called, at $2.50. From time to time these Wardner non-union men visited the other towns in Shoshone Co., Gem, Burke, Wallace and Mullan. They were disgusted to find these union men making $1.00 per day more than themselves, so they deter-mined to do a little organizing on their own account—in the spring of *99.

One Burbidge, the manager of the B. H. & S. Co., and worthy successor of Hammond, determined to upset the men's plans. Again, as in '92, the Standard Oil manager imported toughs; armed them; and, anxious to avoid the union men's brand of trouble in the country he proceeded to run things in Wardner with a high hand, believing that later on the county would be his. His reason for believing this was simple. He was to turn to his advantage, against the prospective Union that was looming up from amidst his non-union workers, the sentiment of the other mine owners against their union-men. Maddened by the success of the Union, and desiring, as much as he, to discourage capital as before, all the other mine owners in the order, all the other mine owners in the owners in the court of Alenes were determined to make a last great effort to smash the Union as he had done; an effort that—they had seen to—was to be backed up by Judges, Governors, and military, as before, only in a slightly different way.

These mine owners' scheme was as follows: The Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine had a Concentrator (an immense machine for extracting the ore), very much out of date, despite continuous much out of date, despite continuous tinkering. This Concentrator was insured for four times its value. Into the Union some tools of the mine owners were to be introduced. They would advocate the dynamiting of the Concentrator. This being done, then more Federal troops, injunctions, etc.. with their wished-for accompaniments, to wit, a smashed union, lower wages, and capital scared away. It was certainly a pretty scheme, but not new to these gentlemen, by any means. The Standard Oil officials have already been convicted in the courts of the State of New York of blowing up opposition refineries; arson has been traced to their door; so a little thing like a Concentrator was easy for Burbidge, the representative of the Standard Oil interests in Idaho, to fall in with. ests in Idaho, to fall in with.

ests in Idaho, to fall in with.

Side by side with the developing of this plot went the discontent of the non-union men in Burbidge's own Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine. It culminated on April 24, '99, in a demand made upon Burbidge for the payment of the prevailing wages in the district. This, Burbidge refused; he then discharged every man who indulged in this "un-American" act of asking for an increase; and started to import scabs to take the men's places, and more imported toughs to help the game along.

These "armed guards." as they were

These "armed guards," as they were termed, were placed around the B. H. & S. Mine, although there was no danger of any description, but it was part of the plot to make it appear that there was. Then the "armed guards" took possession of the country road, and, without provocation, haited people who were attending to their best parts. were attending to their business. This usurpation of authority by private individuals continued until Sheriff Young stepped in; yanked these toughs off the public road; and notified the Bunker Hill manager that this thing had to stop.

On April 29, the discharged miners of Wardner—not members of the Miners Union—decided to have a demonstra-tion,—very natural under the circumtion,—very natural under the circumstances seeing they were at logger-heads with Burbidge, the manager of B. H. & S. mine. The demonstration differed in no way from thousands of similar ones, that we see held all over the country. But Mr. Burbidge concluded that he did not want any demonstration. So he ordered his "armed guards" to stop it. To this high-handed proceeding the non-union men objected. Then ensued the liveliest kind of time. As soon as a meeting would start, the Then ensued the liveliest kind of time. As soon as a meeting would start, the "armed guards" would proceed to break it up, absolutely without right—legal, moral, or otherwise. Thereupon would follow a Donnybrook fair, Kilkenny catkind of time. Twenty different kinds of fighting would go on at once. Up and down the country road with sticks, clubs, fists, stones and guns they fought. They fought in the style of five different nations, while they cursed in fought. They fought in the style of five different nations, while they cursed in seven tongues. The non-union men belted the guards as bad as we belted the Kangs; only, unlike the Kangs, the guards held their ground. Nothing was barred, from a strangle-hold to a punch below the mark, while the ground and lofty tumbling was a solace to the eye.

Wardner is surrounded by a number of other towns, all controlled by the union men. But few were at work that day. The largest mine in Shoshone County—the Standard, employing 450 men—was closed on the previous day, ostensibly for repairs, but really as a move in the plot already outlined. When the union men learned of the non-union men's fight in Wardner, some of them determined to go down and take part in the row, on general principles, it really not being their fight at all. At this moment a freight train, with a mall-coach attached, was leaving Burke, for Wallace. Some of the men clambered aboard. The people being wildly excited, a stampede ensued; women, with babes in their arms, girls, and even small children, climbed on. populace was turning out to see the fight.

After leaving Burke, a most remarkable incident occurred, one that shows as clear as a crystal the final working of the plot to blow up the Concentrator.

When the train reached Gem it opped. A dozen men jumped out and stopped. A dozen men jumped out and walked a few yards to the magazine of the Helena and Frisco mine. The manager—Joe MacDonald—was there. This MacDonald is a bull-necked, fighting Irishman. He has the reputation of being a bad man to have trouble with, and is known as one of the best, if not the best rough-and-tumble and gun fighter that ever crossed the trail in Idaho. With him his property comes first, even at the risk of his life. Yet when he saw these men go to his magazine and take his dynamite, he offered zine and take his dynamite, he offered not the slightest objection, but, on the contrary, he smiled with pleasure and said: "Go ahead, boys! I wish you luck. These people (meaning the Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining Co.) ought to be made an example of. I hope you do so."

When the inquest took place a couple When the inquest took place a couple of weeks later on the bodies of the two men killed on April 29, he testified before the Coroner's Jury against the non-tinion men, denounced them in unmeasured terms and swore the dynamite was taken without his knowledge or con-sent; thus clearly showing that he was in league both with the tools of the mine owners, who were on the train, and with the Standard Oil manager Burbidge.

With the dozen boxes of dynamite on board, a fresh start was made, and in a few minutes the train pulled into Wardner Station.

To put the dynamite under the Concentrator was the work of a moment, the fuse was applied, then—bang! The Standard Oil Co. had duplicated the performance for which they had been convicted in the courts of the State of New York. It would be interesting to have Mr. Rockefeller's views as to which is the easier: blowing up Concentrators or refineries.

After the explosion, there was no further disturbance. Every one who participated in the blowing up left the state. The men who came down on the train without expecting any such ending went back in a rush. Two lives had gone out earlier in the day during the day du the riotings already described. A dead-ly quiet settled over Wardner. The Angel of Peace again folded her wings, slightly ruffied, it is true, in the midst of the Concentrator's ruine. of the Concentrator's ruins.

CHAPTER V.

The Bull Pen.

We guide our footsteps in the present by the light of experience we have made in the past.

The band of capitalist criminals in Idaho had made plenty of experience. With Hammond whipped in '92, despite his Governors, Courts and military power; with their pals convicted in New York for blowing up a rival refinery—these gentlemen took care that no mistake was made this time. So they worked their plans exceedingly well, and were repaid as follows:

1st-They had a played-out Concentrator blown up, and collected enough insurance to get a new one.

2d-They sent poor, timid capital flying.

3d-They smashed all the workers' opposition, both non-union and union. 4th-They disfranchised hundreds of miners and made it possible to swing Shoshone County in the clean-cut capi-talist-political camp again—this being of the utmost importance as two Sec-tions of the Socialist Labor Party had ust been organized in Burke and Mul-Just been organized in Burke and Mul-lan, and well the mine owners' fraterni-ty in crime knew that the Socialist La-bor Party alone was the labor organiza-tion able to spread out beyond Shoshone County and reach the other people in the State to a purpose.

ng up of the Concentrator made all this possible. Their free silver Governor commenced to move at once. Without consulting the Sheriff, as is always done in such cases, the Bryan-istic Governor Steunenberg applied to the McKinleyistic President for troops, and got them. The county was put under martial law, and thus "Sound Money" and "Bogus Money" Capitalism that had sworn eternal enmity hands over the mangled body of LABOR.

General Merriam was dispatched post-haste from Colorado with "Veterans of the Juban War." From Spokane, Wash., two companies of colored troops were sent to Shoshone County.

In the mean time the precious Steu nenberg appointed State Auditor Sinnenberg appointed State Auditor Sin-clair as his representative. A splendid selection, indeed! It would be hard to find a better representative of crook-dom than this crook. This is a small pen picture of that worthy: He has always been a shyster lawyer of the shysterishest type. He was at one time a "gold standard Republican labor pro-tector"; when the free silver, "labor-loving," "no government by injunction" wave came along, he became a "free wave came along, he became a "free silver friend of labor." He was at one time Land Commissioner. Judge Beat-ty, mentioned earlier in this narrative as the complacent judicial supplement of the future African "explorer," re-moved him from the position under charges of embezziement. This being the second charge against him, it looked as if he was booked for the Penitentiary, but his friends came to his assistance, and saved him. Finally he was elected on the "Fusion" ticket for State Auditor on the principle probably that on the Fusion ticket for State Auditor on the principle, probably, that em-bezzlers make good capitalist and labor fakir auditors as a rule. This is THE fellow who conceived the idea of the BULL PEN.

On May 4, 1899, in the forenoon, the On May 4, 1898, in the forencon, the Bull Pen was ready for the Shoshone Proletariat. It consisted of a few sheds, that might have been transplanted from the Chicago stock yards with yellow fever paint on the boards; on the floor there was straw for bedding—like the cradle of the Nazarene, but the Prole-tariat had the cross before the cradle.

Of toilet accommodations there were none. Ditto culinary arrangements, Just a pen for cattle; that was all.

On May 4, having corralled the non-union innocents in Wardner. Major Smith, with the Sixth Colored Cavalry, made a sortie on Burke. They sur-rounded the town. As the men came out of the mine in their wet overalls, they were held up and told they were under arrest. For six hours they were kept standing, waiting for the train to ake them to Wardner to the Bull Pen. The business men were also arrested. In fact, everything in the town that wore pants had to come along. They were taken in box cars and cattle cars to the Pen. The business men were reto the Pen. The business men were re-leased. The women asked permission to give their husbands dry clothes and supper; they were refused. At 1 P. M. rext day they got their first meal after a 25-hours' fast. Black coffee and "mulligan" was on the bill of fare (mulligan is a mysterious beef stew).

On May 5 the men in Mullan were arrested. May 6 Gem got in line: the business men were released, but 1,200 miners had to stay to be starved, ill treated and made a jibe of by the colored troops of Spokane.

Company M. Twenty-fourth Regiment, Colored Cavalry, Captain Bachel-lor, commanding, was now placed in husbands and brothers were being treated, cooked two dozen hams and brought them down to the brought them down to the men. Bachellor took the hams, confiscated them for his troopers, who walked around leering at the poor, hungry devils, while they cat the hams that the men's wives had prepared for them. Next the men's wives sent a dozen boxes of cigars; again they were confiscated, while the miners were asked by their tormentors what they thought of their smell.

With the cold, wet clothes, bad food, and general ill treatment, sickness broke out amongst the men. They suffered awful agony from piles, dysentery, and kindred diseases, lying on the floor like sheep. Without toilet ac-commodations of any sort, the most revolting incidents occurred that decency compels me to omit. The Black Hole in Calcutta was a bridal bower compared to it.

As an instance of the savage way in which the men were treated I shall take the case of Mike Devine. Devine was always a staunch union man. He was the life and soul of the union and one of the charter members of Section Burke, Idaho, Socialist Labor Party. An honest, hard-working, folly, fight-ing Irishman; as brave as a lion, as strong as an ox, and as guileless as a child. As a result of having to stay so long in his wet clothes, he got pneumonia. He asked to see his wife and child; both requests were denied him. The little delicacies that a sick man craves were turned back from the door of this pest house. Loving hands were stretched out to him, only to be driven away by the colored scoundrel in

Finally, always being a fervent Roman Catholic, when he realized he was dying, he asked for a priest—a request that never is refused a prisoner in a civilized nation; but it was denied in the Bull Pen. This maddened the dying man. With the giaze of death in his eyes, and the death rattle in his throat, he raised himself on one elbow, gave one last loving look at his fellow prisoners and shouted: "Boys, ——— these murderers! Stand by the union! Don't sign the permit!" Then he fellower dead

Below is an exact copy of the "Proclamation," issued by the Governor jointly with General Merriam, and containing the matchlessly infamous "Permit," or "Application for Permit," against which Mike Devine uttered his last class-conscious breath:

Proclamation.

WHEREAS, The following notice has been served upon the mine owners of Shoshone County by the duly consti-tuted State authorities, by whom martial law has been declared, to wit:

"TO THE MINE-OWNERS OF SHOSHONE COUNTY:

"YOU ARE THEREFORE NOTIFIED THAT THE EMPLOYMENT OF MEN BELONGING TO SAID OR OTHER CRIMINAL ORGANIZATIONS DURING THE CONTINUANCE OF MARTIAL LAW MUST CEASE. IN CASE THIS DIRECTION IS NOT OBSERVED, YOUR MINES WILL BE CLOSED."

Therefore, In order to carry into effect the spirit of the foregoing notice and restore the industries of the district as far as possible, it becomes necessary establish a system by which miners who have not participated in the recent acts of violence and who are law-abiding people, may obtain work, that order and peace may be established, the following is promulgated for the guidance of all owners and employees in the affected district:

All parties applying for underground work in any of the following mines will be required to obtain from Dr. Hugh France, the duly appointed and author-ized agent for the State of Idaho for ized agent for the State of Idaho for this purpose, or his deputy, at Wardner or at Wallace, a permit authorizing said person to seek employment in any of the following mines: Bunker Hill & Sullivan, Last Chance, Empire State-Idaho, Consolidated Tiger and Poorman, Hecla, Mammoth, Standard, Helena-Frisco, Gem. Morning, Hunter and such others as may be hereafter included in the above list. Parties applying for such permits must be prepared: First, to deny all participation in the riots of April 29, 1899, in Shoshone County, and, Second, to deny or renounce member-ship in any society which has incited, encouraged or approved of said riots or other violation of public law.

Mine owners must refuse employment to all applicants for underground work who do not present a duly signed per-mit authorizing the same. Such permits will be deposited in Mine Owners' Office subject to periodical inspection.

The application for permits to seek employ-ent which union men must sign is as fol-

It was around this incident that Comrade Stanislaus Cullen wrote the beauti-ful poem at the head of this story. But Devine was not the only man murdered there. Amongst those ar-rested was a miner named Mat Johnson, an innocent Swede, a typical "Yon son, an innocent Swede, a typical "Yon Yonsen," as gentle, simple and innocent in his make-up as any man that ever lived. Knowing of his guilelessness, the military authorities thought to scare him into telling tales on the union. They told him they would hang him if he did not tell all he knew. He protested in broken English that he knew pothing. They made more threats that: nothing. They made more threats, that so terrified Johnson that he became insane. While he was being taken from the Pen to the Asylum, he feared they were taking him to hang him, whereupon he jumped into the river. Dr. Hugh France, the Bunker Hill and Sulli-van mine doctor, who had been ap-pointed Sheriff in place of Sheriff Young, who was also thrown into the Bull Pen for "not stopping a riot" that he knew nothing about, ordered the soldiers to shoot. Poor Johnson was pulled from the river with three bullets in his brain, a corpse—another of the murdered ones, whose souls, like John Brown's, goes marching on, while their bodies lie mouldering in the ground, awaiting the Appomattox of this generation.

The degree of civilization a man, class or a nation has arrived at can be tested by their treatment of woman. Apply this test to the ruling class in Idaho, and they stand forth as savages. Every code of honor imaginable was smashed to pieces by the brutes. With their defenders under lock and key, the women were abused.

Sinclair was approached by a Mrs. Goldenstein, who went to intercede for her sick husband. This gentlemanly State Auditor said: "Get out of here. I have put up a Bull Pen for the men; I'll put up a Cow Pen for you women."

Dan Kildeas' wife, with a baby in her arms, was thrown out of the Bull Pen on her head for asking to see her

The colored troops took pleasure in telling the prisoners that they would look after the women in their husband's absence, and explained their meaning to the already distracted prisoners by obscene gestures.

Night after night the women were insulted, both by officers and men until they feared to leave their homes after sunset. More than one woman saved her honor with a gun, for these Western working women are as brave as they are pure. One of the most hopeful signs of a revolutionary movement is the magnificent spirit displayed by the sex. When their men were locked up, they did not sit around and cry, but went to West for the development did not sit around and cry, but we work to help them in the fight. speak with these women is a revelation. Earnest, courageous and faithful, they are fit mates for the men who, outnumbered two by one, whipped Ham-monds toughs in 1892. Large in size, as in courage, they impress the Eastern observer, as he notes the flash in their eye that might have been caught from the sheen of our flag. Their day is coming; they know it; they will speed it all they can. It must not be imagined that the miners were the only occupants of the Bull Pen. There were others. Any man, regardless of his station, who would express sympathy for the miners, even in a side-walk conversation, was instantly locked up.

Sheriff Young, the legally elected Sheriff of the county, was thrown in on the filmsiest pretext, because the mine owners could not use him for their

Ex-Sheriff Heney was arrested be-ause he was collecting evidence for some of the men in the Pen.

W. H. Stewart, editor of the Mullan "Mirror," took the strikers' side; he was fired in, too. But of him more

Two of the regularly elected Tax Two of the regularly elected Tax Commissioners were pitched in for a similar "offence." The Concentrator at the B. H. & S. mine was insured for $200,000. The Tax Commissioners assessed it for $250,000. Burbidge went before the Board of Equalizers and swore it was only worth $52,000. Unswore it was only worth $52,000. Un-willingness to be used was proof of crime; so into the Bull Pen the Tax Commissioners were rushed when mar-tial law was declared.

It iaw was declared.

I can now take up one of the most remarkable incidents of the Bull Pen. The men, unaware of when they would be tried, were near crazed by their confinement. Accustomed, as they were, to the freedom of a prospector's life, when they could roam in gay abandon through the hills, ravines, valleys, and gulches of Idaho, this confinement was the most awful punishment that could be devised. This caused them to make an attempt to get out at all hazards. Many schemes were suggested. Eight men did succeed by bribing the guards and getting away. So close was the watch after this that other methods had to be adopted. So the men hit upon the scheme of tunnelling their way out. This was feasible for two reasons. As miners they were accustomed to such work: then, also, they were alone in the Pen all day.

By putting boards over the tunnel which started under one of the bunks, they could work with comparative security. With a butchers knife and a 24-inch pinch bar they sank a shaft six feet deep, 4½ to 3½ feet in width, with 30 inches for the tunnel. Their other tools were a vegetable box, some gunny sacks and a wooden shovel. The picket fence, beyond which lay liberty, was 90 feet away, hence they figured that if they could go some 90 feet in the tunnel all would be well. For three days they worked like Trojans, and drove the tunnel 75 feet. Work was now no longer possible with-out some air. The man in the tunnel at this juncture poked a small wire up to the surface for this purpose. A soldier who happened to be looking in the sun noticed it. He at once gave the alarm. In rushed the officers with Sinclair, and the tunnel scheme, that promised so well, was dead. A second attempt was also nearing success, when some one informed, and again the prisoners were foiled.

As a punishment for this conduct the prisoners were lined up in the burning sun the following day, and made to stand still for eight hours under pain of instant death if they moved. This treatment was meted out to the men for eight successive days and would have continued, were it not that many men commenced to give evidence of insanity under the strain. During their punishment, Captain Edwards, the mer-cenary in charge of the Bull Pen, marched up and down the lines of the defenceless prisoners reviling them calling them names, cusswords, etc. although he knew well in his black heart that, in a fair fight, not a man Jack present but would have demolished his military job-lots in a jiffy.

It would but unnecessarily shock the readers of THE PEOPLE to continue this side of the story longer. Many columns more could be filled, and then the would be but half told. spirit revolts at the recital of the crimes committed by these upholders of capi-talistic "Law and Order." The Bull Pen is a black spot in American history.
It can only be wiped out with the wiping out of the class that built it. Speed the day.

CHAPTER VI. Honesty and Thievery.

The "Spokesman Review," in Spokane, Wash, the organ of the mine owning criminals, has been continually harping on the dishonesty, immorality and general crookedness of the Union men. Fouler lies were never written. It is an attempt to cry wolf, an attempt to hide the rascality of their own fol-lowers. Surely a more thieving set never stretched hemp than the deputies of the mine owners, worthy servants of their masters.

I have already told how the officers confiscated the hams and cigars sup-plied by the miners' wives, but that was not all. The totacco in the men's possession was taken from them and never returned. The same with the prisoners' razors and knives. The troopers took everything that was not nailed down. But they were discounted by the deputies on the outside.

After the wholesale arrests, these worthies went around to the companies' boarding houses, bunk houses and hotrunks, watches, libraries and clothes of the men. Not one of them was brought to account, although they robbed in broad daylight. They acted on the principle that if the master can rob on a large scale, the servant can rob on the small. On the other hand, prior to April 29th, every door in Shoshone County was on the latch. Keys were never in demand. The utmost confidence in the integrity and honesty of one another prevailed. Thievery of any sort was unknown, as the court records show. immoral miners! guess the boot is on the wrong foot!

CHAPTER VII:

The Legal Side.

The men who were continually shouting "Law and Order" seemed, as the record shows, not to know what these terms meant. They broke more laws than their toughs broke heads.

When martial law was declared, the Sheriff, as pointed out before, was not consulted. Without any cause shown, he was thrown in the Bull Pen. The Tax Commissioners of Shoshone County followed. But worse than either of these cases was the case of W. H. Stew-art, Editor of the Mullan "Mirror."

art, Editor of the Mullan "Mirror."

The "Mirror" was a small weekly. When the Bull Pen was built, the Editor took the Union men's side. Merriam ordered the Editor into the Pen. Mrs. Stewart, knowing that the paper was the only means of support for herself and three young children, tried to get it out. One issue appeared. Thereupon a company of cavalry invaded the place, confiscated 18 cases of type, and all the adfiscated 18 cases of type, and all the advertisements, leaving the unfortunate woman destitute.

without them; 19th-Dr. France, the employee of the B. H. & S. Company, having summonathe Coroner's Jury, then packed the Grand Jury, next proceeded to summonathe trial jury.

20th—This France, owned body and soul by the Bunker Hill Company, was given the power to issue the "permits."

If ever a document was illegal, this infamous one was; it manufactures evidence for the company by making the men declare, as a condition to get work. that the occurrences of the 29th was the work of the Union men. If ever there was a case of extortion and subornation of witnesses, this is one. But, further-more, France's "permit" intimidates the men into giving up their membership in their union,—a procedure doubly illegal, inasmuch as there is a State law prohibiting any such proceedings. 21st—Finally, Paul Corcoran, Secre-tary of the Burke Miners' Union, is sentenced to 17 years imprisonment by Judge Stewart, who, for years, had the reputation of being an outspoken enemy of the working class. Corcorn tried for shooting a man he never as and who died in another State. His jury was packed by the Standard Oil en-ployee, France, and most of the evidence secured against Corcoran came from the at which his counsel was not allowed to appear.

After reading this crushing array of facts, all showing the lawless character of the capitalist "Law and Order" brigade in Idaho, where is the workingman so blind and dull as not to be able to see the absolute correctness of the So-cialist Labor Party's contention that

ALL LEGISLATION IS CLASS LEGISLATION Where is that workingman who will deny the correctness of the S. L. P. policy when it says: Every man in the labor movement who votes a capitalist ticket, who endorses or speaks for a capitalist candidate, is an enemy of the working class?

Where is the workingman who will deny that all unions that stand for capitalistic politics are a snare and a delusion at best, and often but criminal arms of the criminal capitalist class?

And finally, who will deny that in the conquest of the political power alone lies.

the safety and salvation of our class?

CHAPTER VIII.

The Labor Fakir.

The lay man who reads this negrative must have said to himself before now, "What did the great organizations Labor do when they found their brothers treated in this shameful fast-ion; their own existence threatened by the establishing of the "Permit" prec-dent, the erection of the Bull Pen and the smashing of the union by martial law?"

NOTHING. They would not do anything if they could; they could not if they would? Why? Because every "pure and simple" union in the land is or ganized on the antiquated lines of fity years ago, hence the rank and sign The answer is simple. years ago, hence the rank and file, blinded by false principles, is misled by fakirs, who, growing like a fungus in the jungle of reaction, fatten on their is-norance and lead them to the capitalist shambles in the interest of the ruling

The touch-stone to apply to the "pare and simple" organization, so-called union, to discover its utter worthless is a conflict of just this sort. It was so in the A. R. U. strike of the again in the great coal miners' strike of '97; and yet again in Idaho in '88.

ably in the interest of the vegetarians, as that is the only place in St. Louis to get meat; after fawning on every capitalist politician in Washington for capitalist politician in washington for months in the interest of the eighthour law, and then getting spat on for his pains, Mr. Samuel Gompers looked around for other opportunities to make around for other opportunities to make an ass of himself—which I would not mind, were it not that by so doing he makes asses of the workers, too. He held himself to Idaho: peered through the chinks in the Bull Pen fence; rushed er to Butte; made the same speech he has made for the past twenty-nine years: "Organize, organize, organize!"—and then he disappeared. The A. F. of Hell with its million (?) members had done its "full duty"; but the Bull Pen kept doing business at the same old

As bluff and bombast are the chief cards of the Fakir, Gompers on his return to Washington gave out a statement to the press that the A. F. of L. r of fact they gave one-tenth of that

As I write the American Fakiration As I write the American Fakiration of Labor Convention is adjourning. Of course, the Buil Pen was "discussed," but as I well knew the capitalist politicians, who control these "conventions," saw to it that no action was taken.

Every fact set forth here was known to Gompers and the Executive Board, for he had been on the spot and learned the whole tale from Ed. Boyce. A stupid resolution condemning outrages in Idaho was passed, that was all. Not Idaho was passed, that was all. Not a word of warning or advice was given to their members; they feared for their positions as spittoon-cleaners in public buildings. The "boring from within" fakirs of the Hayes type, who bored from within in the S. L. P. so well that they bored themselves out, did a ghost dance, were laughed at by the Fakirs, and the incident closed. They were not there to help their suffering brothers in the Bull Pen. They were there to solve the Labor problem in their own sweet way, viz., by sponging a political sweet way, viz., by sponging a political job from the capitalist class. The borers may now get it into their thick borers may now get it into their thick heads that putting a poultice on a cancer is a more sensible proposition than trying to reform the A. F. of L. Then the "K. of L." had their turn through his crying nibs, Jeems Sovereign. Jeems when the trouble broke out was running a paper in Shoshone county, called the Idaho "State Tribcounty, called the Idaho "State Trib-une." With an eye to future pickings as a capitalist stump speaker he dis-coursed on everything from free silver to astrology, but not a line on how labor ould free itself.

Fear of the Bull Pen caused him to Fear of the Bull Pen caused him to write in a wishy-washy way, until finally he cleared out and informed the unfortunate miners that he was going to work for free silver and Bryan. Unfortunately their presence in the Bull Pen kept them from accelerating his progress with the toe of their boots, for these miners well knew that, although they had helped to increase the freelighting medium enormously, the dreulating medium enormously, the only increase they had received was an increase of bullets in their hide, an increase of tears on the pale faces of their wives, an increase in the misery their class

Bait Sovereign!
The next band of Labor Fakirs to appear on the scene was the infamous "Industrial Commission." Formed for the purpose of giving fakirs a job and bamboozling the class they were supposed to represent by side-tracking them from he Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance, as was admitted by Senator Perkins of California when in the debate on the California when in the debate on the Commission he arose and said: "This is how workingmen are commencing to organize now," and then, to the aston-ishment and dread of the capitalists present on the floor of the U. S. Senate, he read the Declaration of Principles of the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES.

WHEREAS. In the natural development of capitalism, the class struggle between the privileged few and the disinherited masses, which is the inevitable and irrepressible outcome of the wage system, has reached a point where the old forms, methods and spirit of labor organization are absolutely impotent to resist the aggressions of concentrated capital, sustained by all the agencies of government, and to effect any permanent improvement in the condition of the wage earners, or even to arrest for any length of time their steady and reserval degradation; and
"WHEREAS, The economic power of the capitalist class, used by that class for the oppression of labor, rests upon institutions essentially political, which in the nature of things cannot be radically changed, or even silgatly amended for the benefit of the working people themselves, except through the direct action of the working people themselves, except through the direct action of the working people themselves, except through the direct action of the working people themselves, except through the direct action of the working people themselves, except through the direct action of the working people themselves, except through the direct action of the working people themselves.

THEREPORE, It is as a class; the second of the working people themselves, except through the direct action of the working people themselves.

ing people themselves, except infough the direct action of the working people themselves, examined and politically united as a class: THEREFORE, it is as a class, conscious of its strength, aware of its rights, determined to resist wrong at every step and sworn to achieve its own emancipation, that the wage workers are hereby called upon to unite in a solid body, held together by an unconquerable spirit of solidarity under the most try-lag conditions of the present class struggle. As members of the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance of the United States and Canada, we shall constantly keep in view its great object, amely: The summary ending of that barkenous struggle at the earliest possible time by the abolition of classes, the restoration of the land and of all the means of production, manportation and distribution to the people as a collective body, and the substitution of the Co-operative Commonwealth for the present state of planless production, industrial war and social disorder; a commonwealth in which every worker shall have the free exercise and full benefit of his faculities, multiplied by all the modern factors of civilization."

This move carried the day, for well capitalists knew that if the impure and poor and simple "unions" down one of their strongest bulwarks dless to say, the Labor leaders, sho got their fat jobs, were owned body and soul by the capitalist class who appointed them. To send such men to avestigate the Bull Pen were equivalent to send Satan to rebuke sin.

How well they did their dirty work can be seen from the fact that on their return to Washington J. L. Kennedy was interviewed by a Washington "Post" correspondent. He denounced the miners; called them "dynamiters," and "according" and "according" and "according" and "according". urderers" and "assassins," and imed that Steunenberg was a good on man, but he had to declare martial law; Merriam was also right; the Bull Pen was just the thing, etc., etc. This heading of his interview will live a good idea of its tone:

"DAHO LABOR TROUBLE."

SION TO DOEUR D'ALENE."

"Kartial Law Was Justified." om of Lawlessness Had Existed for Years the Local Authorities Had Become Ter-sers, John L. Kennedy Gives the Re-ula of the Official Inquiry Into the Con-lines that Led to Murder and the Destitu-es of Property."

Kennedy's version is wholly at variance with that given by the Western Federation of Miners. Kennedy heard the testimony of the mine owners and the testimony of the miners. That testimony differed in important respects, and Kennedy announced that he considers the testimony of the mine owners as the most reliable. The whole inter-view is an insult to the working class, and clearly shows that Kennedy does not care a continental about that class. I may here state that Kennedy is a workingman that never works. He carries a card in Columbia Typographical Union, but he has not set a line of type for twelve years. From 1889 to 1893 he was a foreman in the Government Printing Office at $1,800 a year, and all that a foreman there has to do is draw his From 1893 to the time he got his appointment as a member of the Industrial Commission he hung around Washington, doing a little newspaper corresponding and spending the rest of his time trying to get on the soft side of members of Congress and other poli-

The August meeting of the Columbia Typographical Union met on August 20, the same day that interview appeared. Comrade Peirce took the interview down there, read extracts from it, spoke on the subject, and then introduced the following resolutions:

"WHEREAS, John L. Kennedy was endorsed by thousands of printers for appointment to the 'Industrial Commission,' and

"WHEREAS, John L. Kennedy in an interview published in the Washington 'Post' of August 20, 1899, upholds the capitalist class by contending that the martial law recently declared at Wardner, idaho, with all its accompanying brutallities, was fully justified; therefore be it

"RESOLVED. By Columbia Typographical Union No. 101 that we censure John L. Ken-nedy for thus upholding and defending the latest method by which the capitalist class seeks to enslave the working class."

The president of the union ruled the resolutions out of order on the ground that they were "charges" and would have to take the course prescribed for charges. At the suggestion of some members of the union Peirce then amended the resolutions by calling for the appointment of a committee of five to in-terview Kennedy as to the authenticity of the interview. After debate the motion was tabled by a vote of about thirty to eighteen.

Thus the Sub-Fakirs come to the assistance of the chief Fakir, and, as far as his own "union" and the I. T. U. generally is concerned, Kennedy is safe. How true is this may be learned from the fact that the Boise, Idaho, Typographical Union, of which Steunenberg is an honorary member, ENDORSED HIM last week, the fakirs again pulling the wires, while, on the same day, the New York "Sun" backs up Bolse Typographical Union, and shouts honor to Steun-enberg, and then kicks the Boise Union's fellow members in New York in the face, and hires Pinkertons to club them. Verily, verily, the ways of the pure and simple union are strange, and their conception of solidarity is amaz-

Let us ask ourselves a question right here: Can such a thing be called a union? No; unless it be a union of vampires, sucking the proletarians' red

Are the Kennedys, Ratchfords, Gompers, Donnellys, et al., leaders of the proletariat? Again, no. They are stool pigeons of the capitalist class.

What then is our duty in the circumstances?

To serve notice on the rank and file, whose honesty we never doubted, that their Fakir Leaders must go, and their worn out principles must be abandoned. And that if they refuse, they must ex-pect to have their union smashed over their heads, and smashed, too, by the hammer of the S. L. P.

And it is but right and proper that this should be so. The S. L. P. is the child of conflict and the progress of the race is its reward for its battles; and progress we will, if needs be over the bodies of every fakir in the land, and through the debris and ruins of all their through the debris and ruins of all their capitalis "unions"—such "unions" being but just so many capitalist outposts that must be shattered.

CHAPTER IX.

The Political Side.

It has been the custom in the past when labor troubles occurred in a Democratic district, and the usual clubbing and shooting would take place, for the Republicans to say: "Oh, my dear Mr. Workingman, how cruel are not these Democrats; we Republicans, good friends of Labor that we are, would not treat you this way. Vote for us."

In a Republican district the Democrats would sing in the same key.

This was varied somewhat when the straight Pops came along, while the Fusionists whistled the same old "friend of Labor" tune.

When the wave of political unrest in the West was at its height in '92, Idaho got caught in the undertow. The State went Populist, but there were two brands: The miners' brand in Shoshone County and the farmers' brand in the agricultural centers.

Later on, the Republicans went for silver, the Democrats, too. Finally the issue narrowed itself down to a straight fight between the Union men in shone County against the rest of the

Steunenberg, with his "union" card and "union" backing as a decoy, was elected first time with the assistance of showed himself such a friend of the corporations that at the next election, with Democratic endorsement, he squeezed in the miners voting against

Although called a Pop ticket in Shoshone County, it was not a Pop ticket in the usual sense. It was really a Miners' Union ticket. Steunenberg knew this, and, although by cajolery threats and bribes, he sought to win the miners over to him; they stood solid and refused all offers.

A new danger then presented itself to the politicians. An active Socialist agitation had been carried on for some time in the county. This sentiment was now crystallizing in the form of sections of the Socialist Labor Party, organized or the Socialist Labor Party, organized in Burke and Mullan. Well did the political gang know that this step meant the placing of a straight S. L. P. ticket in the field, with all that that implies. Steunenberg warned to go to the U. S. Senate. To get there he needed the votes of Shoshone County. The S. L. P. would prevent all that. Need we wonder then that Steunenberg lent a willing ear to the Standard Oil scheme to smash the union, build the Bull Pen, and thereby disfranchise the workingand thereby disfranchise the working-men of Shoshone County, leaving as voters business men who hated the miners on general principles; hated them so deeply that when the colored troops came to the county first some business men offered a gold watch to the colored trooper who would kill the first miner.

Steunenberg's scheme was ably seconded by Governor Smith, of Montana, who had been elected on a straight Pop-ulist ticket, and who, when the men were fleeing from the county after April 29, gave instructions to his officials to allow the Idaho authorities to come in across the State line and arrest any union miners they wanted, without extradition papers, or any of the legal methods pursued in such cases; thus trampling on the State Constitution he had sworn to uphold. In five different towns in Montana his orders were carried out, and the unfortunate union men were dragged back to the Bull Penn without any warrant of law.

How true it is that the desire to gain the political control in the county moved Stuenenberg to act so, may be seen from the fact that a Populist mine doctor testified before the fakirs' Commission that he would "give $5.00 a head for every man in the Bull Pen who was not a Populist" of the pro-union type. Furthermore, of the 1,600 inmates of the Bull Pen, less than twenty were tried for any offence, and only eight men were convicted.

The Bull Pen was closed in November, but now, two months later, martial law is still on, the "permit" system contin-ues, and the Federal troops are a fixture. To what lengths will not the capitalist class go when their political power is threatened!

Take notice, oh worker, and act. That Stuenenberg moved at the right moment to smash the union may be judged from the fact that only a few days after the blowing up of the Con-centrator, on May 5, at the moment that the union men of Gem were being ar-rested, the Western Federation of Miners, in their national convention, at Salt Lake City (the largest they have ever held), almost without a dissenting voice, endorsed the Socialist Labor

Steunenberg won out temporarily; but watch for the aftermath.

CHAPTER X.

The Western Federation of Miners. I have shown the rotten reed the workers have to depend on in the A. F. of L. and the K. of L. Let us now look at the organization that conducted the fight—the W. F. of M.

The Western Federation of Miners is a progressive body; none more so in the economic field to-day, save the Socialist Trade & Labor Alliance-its residuary

The W. F. of M. gave evidence of its progressive and honest spirit three years ago, when it broke away from the corrupt and reactionary A. F. of L.

Again did it display a forward, honorable spirit when it realized the necessity of securing some political power for the workers in their conflicts, by capturing the political power in Shoshone County.

And yet again did it progress when it endorsed our revolutionary political program in '98.

The W. F. of M.'s President, Edward Boyce, and their Secretary, James Maher, have the confidence of every worker in the West, and are feared and Marcus Daly to Burbidge. They recognize, as does the bulk of the membership of their organization, that the strategic point in the Labor Movement. is the political power, and they will move accordingly towards that position where they can say, after their future, strikes, as the Socialist Trade & Labor Alliance said after we won the Alle-gheny strike, that we won because:

Backed, and known to be backed, by a growing class-conscious Party of the Working Class, the irrepressible economic uprising of the Proletariat can be successful, and can be turned into a valuable coadjutor for emancipation—Only when backed, and known to be backed, by ignorant and corrupt Pure and Simple Fakirdom are the economic uprisings of the Proletariat disheartening flashes in the pan.

CONCLUSION.-THE S. L. P.

The tale of the Bull Pen is here told: and it is told by the S. L. P., the Party that alone is fit to tell it.

It is now the dulty of the Western Federation of Miners to see that the lessons this strike teaches are learned, the capture of the public powers by the working class, through the medium of a revolutionary political Party, pledged to overthrow capitalism, and to found the Socialist Republic will suffice, and nothing short of a trade organization, planted on that principle—as is the Socialist Trade & Labor Alliance,—can serve as the handmaid and aid to that end. From very hill, ravine, and house top in the the banner that is emblematic of the industrial freedom of our class must be floated. Error must be grappled with and overthrown, not compromised. Their position must be that of men standing in the trench with hte sword drawn and the scabbard thrown away, never to be sheathed while wage slav-ery exists. They must vote themselves on the right side of the guns, the policemen's clubs and the deputies' bayonets. They must vote themselves into the ermine of the Judges on the Bench, knowing that if they fail to do so with the power in their hands, they are not fit to be free; but they will do it, and do it well, for in that way alone can Bull Pens be abolished.

In their struggle they will be assisted by the S. L. P. and S. T. & L. A. that have so far blazed the way through the jungle of reaction, and now march for-ward facing the rising sun, conscious of the dignity of our class, proud of our achievements in the past, lifted up and exalted by our abiding faith in our ability to carry out our historic mission, the overthrow of all classes and the emancipation of our own.

The Haverhill Debs-Democracy Outlined on the Spot.

By MICHAEL T. BERRY, Haverhill, Mass.

All freakdom is exultant! On the morning of December 6 the press from one end of the nation to the other told its readers that Haverhill had re-elected a "Socialist" Mayor and sundry other "Socialist" officials.

"Socialist" officials.

But there are "Socialists" and Socialists. New York has its "kangaroos," Ohio its "Golden Rule" Jones; elsewhere is the "Repeal of Reason" brand; and Haverhill has its "Social Democracy."

All of these various elements, every one who is suffering from any malady from dyspensia to myddlebaddelness.

from dyspepsia to muddleheadedness, thinks he is a Socialist. He will pro-claim it from the housetops. It is fashionable nowadays.

No two of them can be found who think that Socialism stands for the same thing. Each of them thinks that Socialism represents his own private idea; each of them is dominated by some fed which he is dominated by some fad which he, she or it thinks some fad which he, she or it thinks should form the basis of the structure which is to be. All of them think that they, and they alone, are the axis around which revolves the Social Revolution. They are all so "broad" that the Socialist Labor Party has no charms for them. They dodge it as the night owl dodges the first appearance of the morning's light:—"it is too narrow" for them. This conglomeration—the Debs Democracy—with which I here have to deal racy—with which I here have to deal, has a somewhat interesting history.

History of the Debsites.

For some time prior to February, 1897, the dominant spirits in the genus Haverhill were members of the then Section Haverhill, S. L. P. All of a sudden, shortly after F. G. R. Gordon, of "Different Tactics" notoriety, then of Man-chester, N. H., now associate editor of the "Repeal of Reason," left the S. L. P. lest he be kicked out, this brigade left also. They had discovered that the S. L. P. could not be manipulated to their L. P. could not be manipulated to their liking, so they started out in search of a "short cut" to Socialism, a sort of a Northwest Passage to the Co-operative Commonwealth. After a few weeks spent in looking for a resting place, they joined hands with the "New Jerusalem" Debs Democrary of colonization fame; when that went on the rocks, afterwards to be revamped and half-soled, the Hayerhill contingent occupied front seats at the opening.

We are now facing the State election of 1898. Under the official designation of "Democratic Social Nomination Papers," the Haverhill brigade entered the campaign of '98, where they succeeded in electing Carey and Scates. Scates was elected on the strength of a strike among the street railway men which he participated in losing. Carey was elected from a stronghold of Republi-canism through the manipulation of the Democrats who went over almost to a man, the Democratic candidate only receiving 55 votes out of a Democratic strength of at least 275, which this same Democrat received the year before.
On the strength of these successes the Debsists entered the municipal contest which came off a month later, and which resulted in the election of their candidate Chase for Mayor, together with 3 Aldermen of a possible 7, 3 Coun-cilmen out of 14.

Debsites and Labor Fakirs Join Hands.

No sooner were the candidates of Debsomania in the field, than they be-gan to claim everything in sight. They Debsomania in the field, than they began to claim everything in sight. They made up with the "High Dues" Labor Fakir Tobir and his local representative, who used their pull with the union men in the interest of the Debs ticket. The manufacturers got scared at the brag and bluster which was being made and went to taking "straw" votes in the factories, where the Tobin element still held out; these shops always favored Chase. It so happened that the Reheld out; these snops always lavored Chase. It so happened that the Republicans were running a candidate whom many of his own party were only to anxious to knife. The Democratic candidate was doomed anyhow; so to make the Republican defeat certain some one nominated a "Prohib," who polled votes enough to let Chase in.

This brings us to January 1, 1899.
The distinguishing mark of the Debsite is that his argument is always ambiguous. When the local tribe found that they had elected a Mayor, they cobbled worse than ever. Space forbids a recital here of their sugaring jobs at about this time. Suffice it to say at about this time. Sinke it to say that they at once patched up a freaty with the middle class. Chase, the first "Socialist" Mayor, was the lion of the hour. He was the invited guest everywhere, from a wake down to the Boston Boot and Shoe Club. When these "Socialists" are talking to the working these they are a radical as Mazinis. class they are as radical as Mazzinis; but when they get before the Boston Boot and Shoe Club. or like organizations, they sail a different course and defend the "Glasgow Plan." The thought uppermost in their minds at all imes is how to catch votes. However ignorant they may be upon other things, they do know one thing—that is, that if they don't win their life is short.

Debaites Fuse With Bryanites.

Dominated by that thought their reer has been one constant wobble, the result of which was that when the State campaign came to an end on No-vember 7 last, and the result known, it disclosed the fact that THE DEBS DEdisclosed the fact that THE BERS DE-MOCRACY AND THE BRYAN DEMOCRACY WERE PRACTICALLY ONE, and in more ways than one:—Porter, the Debs candi-date for Governor, received nearly twice as many votes as did Paine, the Bryan as many votes as did Paine, the Bryan candidate, while the Republicans held their own, as did the S. L. P. While the S. D. P. nearly doubled their vote for Governor, they lost one representative. Scates, who was defeated. Carey was re-elected, the Republicans alone opposing him, the Democrats, with the same candidate as in '98, claimed that THEY FORGOT TO FILE THEIR NOMINATION CER-

We are now on the verge of the mu-nicipal election of 1899, an election which contains much food for thought valuable to the extent that therein may be discovered the real middle class Bryanistic character of the S. D. P. The Debsites entered the municipal contest with a full ticket, headed by Chase, the present Mayor. The S. L. P. placed in the field a full ticket in Ward 5, and with a Mayoralty candidate, also candidates for Aldermen in Wards 1, 5, 6 | Debsites the loss of their candidate; and 7. The Republican and Democratic heelers got together in a cellar and made a "slate," which was afterward ratified by the city committees of both old parties, and went on the official ballot as a fusion or "citizens" move-

The Debsites immediately began to The Debsites immediately began to howl about the fusion made in a "cellar," but neither they nor their opponents said one word about the "cellar" deal in which the now Debsites participated in February, '97, when they sought to ground the currents of the Social Revolution, when they (with their "invited guests") intrigued against the S. L. P., and the next night caused the surrender of the charter of the then Section Hayerhill. Perhaps the Debsites Section Haverhill. Perhaps the Debsites thought that was one of their "divine

No sooner was the fusion candidate nominated, than began the cry of "Americanism vs. Socialism!" The heelers of the citizens movement at once began to arraign the Debsites as "Socialists." From the start these crooks used the S. L. P. municipal programme, arguing against it, on the ground of "Economy," and charging the Debsites with being committed to it,

The Debaites Lay Curbstones.

The Debsites met these "allegations" by showing how many more feet of cob-ble gutters and curbstones had been laid during the administration of Chase than ever before in the same time, and at the same time set up a loud howl which they had used before, "Cheaper Gas." Why they wanted anything cheaper than the gas they were using is a mystery, but they did; they used this slogan for all the water subit was worth, and had the matter sub-mitted to the Gas Commission,—where it is now resting peacefully.

The Republicans, when they entered into the fusion with the Democrats, intentionally or otherwise, overlooked an extremely important particular, which was that there was nothing for them to fuse with worthy of consideration. It will be remembered that at the State election the Bryan Democracy had swallowed the Debs Democracy, and called itself "Social Democracy." So when in the city election the Dems tried to deliver the "goods," they found them in the possession of their former owners, the Debsites, as per invoice rendered. One other matter that is of more than passing moment is the question of the abolition of grade crossings. For many years there has gone on in this city an years there has gone on in this city an intermittent agitation for the abolition of certain grade crossings, which are a nuisance to life and limb. In 1896 the S. L. P. made, as one of the "immediate demands" in its platform the abolition of these crossings. The Dems, Reps, and Prohibs came forward and said, "We, too, want them death-traps abolished." The Democratic candidate won out on that issue, which was made a out on that issue, which was made a foot-ball in local politics, and has been used as such ever since by every skate who had otherwise reached the end of his tether.

Grade Crossings and Social Revolution. Not that grade crossings should not e abolished; not that; but, like municbe alcolished; not that; but, like municipal ownership, it can be used as a capitalist scheme; that is what happened before, and it happened again this year to the extent that in Ward 5, which is the chief beneficiary, a ward which is as the chief beneficiary, a ward which is as yet largely undeveloped, which contains many capitalists as well as a large working class population, a ward which will be in the near future the home of the large Jactories without hardly an exception, in this ward the capitalists voted for Chase. Notable amongst the "class-conscious" votes which came to the S. D. P. from this source was the one cast for them by that yeteran sandone cast for them by that veteran sand-bagger of the working class, William M. Chick of the firm of Chick Bros., who were the fathers of the "contract" which figured so conspicuously in the great shoe-workers' strike of 1895.

Locally this man is regarded as the "non plus ultra" amongst the skinners of labor; he is a skinner from Skinners-ville, born and brought up at the job.

No doubt, he voted for the S. D. P. candidates because of the fact that they had made the question of the abolition of grade crossings one of the prom-inent demands of their platform, and as a large real estate owner and manufache would be benefited But the question arises, all things considered, had the S. D. P. been the bona stder Party of the Revolution, had they stood firmly and uncompromisingly against Mr. Chick at all other points against Mr. Chick at all other points would be have voted for them? He knew one thing which all capitalists know, and that is that the Socialist Labor Party, and it alone is the only foe they have to fear; that all others, however loudly they may declaim against "clanging factory gates," how-ever much they may point at the in-iquities of capitalism by offering in evidence their "blighted boyhood,"—they at best are but "reformers," and capi-talism has nothing to fear from that to resume. The grade ings' matter contributed largely to the election of Chase and his colleagues this year; the Chick vote typefies many an ardent supporter of the Debs Democracy in Haverhill.

In the race for votes, nothing was left in the race for votes, nothing was left undone to "get there" by the Debsites. The literature which they circulated was of all varieties, and to suit any taste from the middle-class cobble gutter and cheap gas arguments to some which dealt with "Socialism and the which dealt with "Socialism and the home." The best picture of this crew which has yet been drawn to my attention is by a local S. L. P. man who puts

Nor do they trust their tongues alone, Rut speak a language of their own; Convey a libel in a frown, And wink with a reputation down.

The "Cellar" deal and the well-known middle-class nature of the S. D. P. caused the downfall of the "Citizens" candidate for mayor, the Debsites elec-ting Chase with three aldermen, three councilmen, and all school-committeemen. The presence of the S. L. P. can-didate for alderman in Ward 4 cost the had he been elected it would have given them the majority in the upper board.

During the entire campaign the "Citizens" and Debsites alike conducted a sort of bargain-counter or "land-office" sale. Each of them held forth with brass bands, and an audience intoxicated by inches at the other fellows, or ed by jokes at the other fellows' ex-pense. The Debs speakers never went beyond the bounds of a "middle-of-theroad" populist injecting just enough of the Socialist argument to catch the workingman made desperate by the rob-workingman made desperate by the robbery of capitalism, made gullible by his connection for many years with "pure and simple" labor fakirs.

The speakers of the "Citizens" movement howled loud and long against Socialism. Socialism was what they feared; they told the working class so, but religiously abstained from telling the working class what they really meant by Socialism. It is true that they fear Socialism, but Socialism and Debsism are quite different things.

Debsism vs. Socialism.

In all the beating of drums and tin-kling of cymbals indulged in by these rivals of capitalism in a campaign that was, perhaps, the hottest ever waged in this city, the Socialist Labor Party held its own and gained. Gained one vote over last year; gained in the es-timation of workingmen who noted the difference between the honest and undifference between the honest and uncompromising attitude of the S. L. P.

It has all passed into history. Some time when the working class of Haver-hill regain their normal condition; when they see their chance which they have given to the S. D. P. and which it would not, if it could, avail itself of; when they stop to think how that chance was used; when that is done, and the memory of what the S. L. P. has taught and told them, then they will realize that to be free the working class must build not on REFORM but on REFORM but on REFORM but on REFORM but on ROBERT CONTROL THE CONTROL OF T wage slaves of Haverhill, Massachusetts, or of the world. A Party which, when invested with the power of government, will not waste its time to chloroform the working class with middle-class municipal ownership schemes, chemer gas rates for manufactured. cheaper gas rates for manufacturers and small traders, etc., but will use that power to weld into one irresistible phalanx the working class for the pur-pose of abolishing the last and meanest forms of slavery—the capitalist system of wage slavery. of wage slavery.

Socialist Leaflets

To the Smaller Sections of the Socialist Labor Party:

While it is true that the great battles for the Socialist Republic must be fought in the centres of capitalism, still when the tocsin sounds and the phalanxes forward march, the scattered forces throughout the length and breadth of the United States will have their duties to perform. Every village and hamlet will have its group of guards for the outposts. The time to drill the guards is NOW, and the WAY to drill them is by distributing Socialist leaflets.

MACKAY.

IMPEACH McKINLEY!

The capitalist press of the country, of all shades of capitalism-Democratic as well as Republican. Silver as well as Gold-Bug, Protection as well as Free Trade,-has, during the last two weeks. been editorializing and reportorializing at a wondrous rate on the subject of "contraband of war," apropos of the eizure of certain American cargoes by British men-of-war. These articles are written in such a way that, the more of them the public reads, the less is it able to understand, the subject:-and that is the purpose of the writers; and deep is the meaning thereof.

The subject of "contraband of war" is not the tangled subject that it is attempted to make it appear: least of all is it tangled in the present instance. It is plain, easy to understand under all circumstances; and especially plain is it in this case.

'Contraband of war" is the name given to goods in transit, the acquisition of which would strengthen the fighting arm of a belligerent. It follows from this simple and unquestionably correct definition, that, in order to determine whether an article in transit is "contraband of war," the first thing to ascertain is whether the article is consigned to a belligerent or not. If it is, even then the article may not fall within the category of "contraband of war"; gold bangles for women, toys for children, consigned to a belligerent, would, self-evidently, not be articles of a nature to strengthen the belligerent's fighting arm; on the other hand, the otherwise innocent articles of food might, under given conditions. fully fall within the category of "contraband of war," inasmuch as they might be used to sustain the fighting arm of a belligerent. Clear enough, in all these cases, very delicate and fine questions of fact, covering a wide range of military tactics and social conditions, might arise, giving ample scope to discussion; and the seizure of such goods by one of the belligerents would be justified, subject to subsequent adjudications. But it is equally clear that no such questions or discussions can at all arise if the articles in question are not consigned to a belligerent. Cannon balls, for instance, are unquestionable articles of warfare, the possession of which adds material power to military operations; yet cannon balls, shipped by one neutral to another, can under no circumstances be construed to be "contraband of war": the seizure of such goods by one of the belligerents is an unqualified act of piracy-unless tolerated by the neutral from whose shore it is shipped and by the neutral to whose shore it is consigned; and in such case, both such nations strip themselves of neutrality, and rank themselves as belligerent ailies of the belligerent that makes the seizure.

These being the irrefutable principles, what are the facts in the case? England and the Transvaal are just now belligerents. Pending this war, three vessels laden with American provisions, left the neutral port of New York, consigned to the neutral port of Lorenzo Marquez, in Delagoa Bay, a Portuguese possession, and were seized by British men-of-war on the allegation that, as Delagoa Bay borders on the Transvaal, the belligerent Transvaal might, could or would provision itself on that Portuguese territory.

The fact that both Lorenzo Marquez, the destination of the goods, and New York, the place of shipment, are neutral port, throws the goods without further discussion, out of the category of "contraband of war"; the further fact that both the McKinley Administration and the Portuguese Government winked at the seizure, have, in fact, under cover of "inquiring," justified them, is tantamount to a declaration of war by both against the Transvaal, a declaration of war under conditions, at that, that place the United States and Portugal in a subaltern position in the ranks of the belligerent England.

And these are the simple facts and principles which the variegated capitalist press is, in chorus, trying the scuttlefish game on, by seeking to confuse the public mind with the aid of labored dissertations, together with finespun theories and quotations from treaties and books on international law, on what is, what is not, and what might, could or would be "contraband of war,"-but never the essential points that alone would clarify the whole question.

We are not here concerned with Portugal: nevertheless, virtually dependent of England as Portugal is, this country's ranking itself alongside of Portugal as a British subaltern ally may serve to help illumine the situation.

The United States can declare war only by action of Congress; Congress has not uttered a word. By the action of McKinley alone, the nation becomes a belligerent, and a belligerent lackey, at that; and yet Congress is silent.

The capitalist class of America, with its gold and its silver-bug heiresses intermarried with the rowdy British nobility, is just now exemplifying its Benedict Arnold character. Its Republican Executive sells out the country, and its Democratic Congressmen sit silently by emphasizing their silence by rhodomontade speeches in favor of "the embattled farmers of the Transvaal, struggling for freedom," yet not once uttering the one word that fits the occasion:

IMPEACH MCKINLEY!

"The Story of the Bull Pen"-remarkable in itself for the picture it drawstogether with the article "Financial"also remarkable for the picture it presents-and both found in this issue, are, in fact, supplemental. They outline in clear strokes that feature of Capital that marks it at its height a destructive monster that carries ruin, death, woe into every home.

That standard capitalist concern of the country-the Standard Oil Monopoly -typical of what capitalism ripens into, is found to-day stretching one arm out into the Far West, smiting Labor and conjuring rapine in Idaho, and, at the same time, stretching the other arm outinto New York, convulsing the stock exchange and carrying ruin into the ranks of the small fry of would-be large capitalist sharks. Nor is this all. The monster turns up equipped cap-a-pie with all the power of government. At its beck, the military forces of the nation rush to introduce slaughter in one place, while the Treasury of the nation steps up obedient to the monster's needs to ensure its success in ruining minor capitalists in another.

The two are a pen-picture of Capitalist power and crime.

On Thursday, the 11th instant, the hearing will be held before the Attorney-General of New York, on the application of Section New York, S. L. P., to dissolve the treasonable, police-spy conspiracy, known in the city as the "Volkszeitung Corporation." Of course, rid the working class of a vile adversary. In this instance, however, the police-spy concern is a flagrant violator of the very corporation laws that itself started legal prolaws that itself started legal proceedings on, intending to injure the Party; while, on the other hand, the proceedings now institution, the party and of which ted by the Party, and of which the present is only a starter, are planted upon unquestionable proprietary rights. which the Party takes a stand on, and which the Attorney-General is sworn to

THE PROLETARIAN FAMILY.

A Warning to the Riotous Capitalist Class of the Twentieth Century.

The "missionless novel" is purely a product of these later days of Capitalism. Formerly a novelist was always a person who had a message to convey to the world, and conveyed that message in the garb of fiction in order that his words might edge their way into prejudiced minds. To-day we have, a host of parasitic "authors" who openly announce, as did F. Marion Crawford some time ago, that they write novels for the rich for no other purpose than to in this way get their fingers on the money that the rich happen to have temporarily in their possession. And it is a pleasure to turn from the vaporings that ooze from the average present-day novelist to ore of the old-time school with a teaching on his lips. Such an author was Eugène Sue, and in "The Carpenter of Nazareth" he has utilized the materialist portion of the life of "The Carpenter" to weave into thrilling romance the class antagonisms that made life a burden to the Roman "Common people" two thousand years ago.

The character of the novel cannot better be epitomized than by giving the "Eugène Sue wrote in French a monumental work: 'The Mysteries of the People: or the History of a Proletarian Family.' It is a 'work of fiction,' yet it is the best universal history extant; better than any work avowedly on history, it graphically traces the special features of the several systems of class rule as they have succeeded each other from epoch to epoch, together with the nature of the struggle between the contending classes. The 'Law.' 'Order,' 'Patriotism' and 'Religion' that each successive tyrant class, despite its change of form, hysterically sought refuge in to justify its criminal existence whenever threatened; the various economic causes of the oppression of the toilers; the mistakes incurred by these in their struggles for redress; the varying fortunes of the conflict—all these social dramas are therein repro-duced in a majestic series of historic novels, covering leading and successive episodes in the history of the race. "'The Carpenter of Nazareth' is one of these historic novels. It has a singular fitness to modern times in one im-

'The Carpenter of Nazareth' is pathetic page from history that holds the mirror up to the Capitalist Class its orators, pulpiteers, politicians, lawyers, together with all its other menials of high and low degree—and, by the reflexion cast, enlightens and

The American capitalist class has outstripped its European cousins in all departments of capitalist chicanery-religious hypocrisy as a means to acquire earthly gains among others. That missionaries are frequently only "drummers" in disguise is now well known. The Des Moines, Ia., "Daily News" now tells this tale, plain and brazen:

"It frequently has been stated that it pays to send missionaries abroad even from a commercial standpoint. This is as to Korea. In that country, as in Africa and other countries, the mis-sionary has blazed the way for com-

"Arbetaren," the Swedish organ of the S. L. P., tells this excellent story of how the guns of a prohibitionist objector to the Socialist Labor Party were spiked:

THE SUMMIT STRIKE.

All the Forces of Reaction Band Themselves Against the S. T. & L. A.

[Report of Gen. Sec'y to the G. E. B.]

In submitting this report of the strike of the Broad Silk Weavers of Summit, N. J., I shall endeavor to show the causes which led up to the trouble, the part which the Alliance has taken in the same, and the elements that interfered and were the means by which another record can be added to that already long list of defeats that the wage-workers have suffered in their struggles with the Capitalist class.

The employees of the Summit Silk Mills are composed of six different nationalities; not having any training, so to speak, in the work of organization, they were suspicious of one another. This was the state the weavers were in when the first reduction was made last May. Hence, they accepted the same. The firm, hearing no protest, and seeing that nothing was being done to unite the weavers, gave another reduction in July. This was submitted to, as in the first instance. On Oct. 2d the third reduction was made, and a shop organization was set up. On Oct. 4th, the shop committee waited on the firm and demanded the old prices. The demands were refused, and all the weavers walked out of the mills. The firm, having just completed a new building, had a number of changes to make in their plant, and, as business was slow, closed the mill.

This was the state of the trouble when Comrade Carvalho, a silk weaver, called at the office and requested me to send an organizer to Summit, and explained the aims and objects of the Alliance to the strikers, whereupon they decided to apply for a charter, and were organized and atached to D. A. ', of Newark, N. J. On leaving them that day I advised them to make no demonstration that would give the firm the least pretext for calling on the authorities for protection. At the meeting of D. A. 4 on Nov. 26th, their delegates were absent, and when I called their attention to this fact later, they said they had forgotten to send delegates there.

The firm, having kept the mills closed for two months, and, thinking that by that time whatever little funds the strikers might have had must be exhausted, sent for a committee of the strikers and told them that if they would go to work they would return to them part of the reductions, and if they did not accept this proposition they could consider themselves discharged, the firm would engage new help, and all of those who lived in the Company's houses would have to move. This did not, as the company thought it would, weaken the strikers; the dispossess warrants were served, and the strikers moved to other quarters. The firm then advertised for new help.

On Dec. 4th, the first lot of scabs were brought in, and the wage workers of Summit experienced their second lesson in Capitalistic persecution. When the scabs arrived at the depot, they were received by the firm and a guard of honor, consisting of the police force of the city. A line was at once formed, and, fianked on all sides, the scabs began their march to the mills. The strikers and their sympathizers tried to persuade the scabs to join them. The firm, not wishing their cattle interfered with, commanded the police to prevent any one from interfering with their help. In obedience to their masters, the police pushed the wage workers aside and threatened to arrest them if they the strikers and their friends to become indigrant and make a demonstration. that gave the authorities the opportunity they were looking for. The alarm was immediately sounded, calling all fire wardens and special officers of the city to the mills. The scene which followed will long be remembered in Summit. A riot ensued; stones were thrown, clubs used and revolvers fired, and the whole town thrown into a fever of excitement. After the scabs were safely housed in the mills, warrants were issued for about 30 of the strikers, and when they were brought before the Judge, were fined from $5 to $50.

One of the strikers, who had been fined $50, had the same reduced to $30. and was told by the Judge that if he would go to work in the mills, or leave the city, the fine would be remitted.

On Dec. 10th the delegates of the Summit Local attended the meeting of D. A. 4, and the District, after hearing their report of the strike, decided to assist them both morally and financially. and issued an appeal for aid, and requested the G. E. B. to endorse the same Mass meetings were called in Summit to explain the side of the strikers and denounce the authorities for the silk weavers there the trouble and persecution which their fellow craftsmen were undergoing at the hands of the Capitalists of Summit.

On Monday, Dec. 11th, there were 22 scabs working in the mills. By request of the Local, I called on the firm, and succeeded in bringing about a meeting between the firm and a committee of the strikers, with a view-to adjusting the trouble. The firm then offered the following:

1st—To raise the price on two different jobs % cent per yard

2d-To restore 11/2 cents of a 3 cent reduction. To speed up the looms and use heavier silk, and if the weavers could not make as much as they did efore the reduction under these ditions, better arrangements would be made later. 3d-All the strikers to get their old places back again.

4th—The Union to be recognized through a shop committee

5th-The scabs to be allowed to main, but they would be put in a differ-ent part of the mills.

This proposition was submitted to the strikers and was rejected. A counter proposition was drawn up by the strikers, and when the same was sumitted to the firm, they (the firm) stated it demanded higher wages than was ever paid before, and they refused to have anything further to do with the strikers.

The mass meeting in Summit was well attended, and was addressed by Comrade Carless and myself. The remarks were well received, and created an agi-tation which will bear good fruit in the future for our movement in general.

The mass meeting in Paterson v well attended, and the remarks of the ispeakers were well received there also, and the sympahty of the audience was with the Summit strikers.

In the above I have shown you the cause of the strike, the part the Alliance took in the same, and the prospects of a settlement of the trouble, had outsiders not interfered, and had the stri-kers been honest to themselves and to the organization which they had joined. But, they were not.

I have stated that the strikers were organized into the Alliance by their own request, on Nov. 16th. Imagine my surprise when I was told by their leader, Dick Fowler, on the night of the Paterson mass meeting that, four days after they had been organized, they had voted to withdraw from the Alliance. This is the story he told me. An Anarchist from Paterson had come to the strikers' meeting on Nov. 20th, and had given them $100, and told them to with-draw from the Alliance and join the Paterson Union: if they did not do this. he told them they would get no furthar assistance, and that the Alliance could do nothing for them. This statement was backed up by the Kangaroo reporter of the New York "Volkszeitung," who went among the German member and advised them to get out of the Alliance, and who printed scurrilous ar-ticles in the "Volkszeitung," belittling and denouncing the work done by the S.

Another element that tried to interfere was the S. D. P., in the persons of the unsavorily notorious James Allman and Joseph Barondess. These worthies vished to addrses the strikers (provided they [the strikers] would hire a hall for them) on the great benefits of pure and simple unionism, and incidentally, to denounce the S. T. & L. A. But the strikers refused to have anything to do with them; they claimed that there was already too much outside interference The Kangaroo reporter, who told the German strikers not to accept the pro-position of the firm, saw that the mills were filling up, and the strike was in a fair way to be lost. The Germans saw this also, and were beginning to think that his advice was not as good as they thought at first. They now saw that it would have been better to accept the proposition which the Alliance officers had succeeded in getting from the firm, than to lose the strike altogether. But they went to a Kangaroo reporter and told him this. He told them that there was no cause to worry, the strike was not lost. That he would at once see the officers of the C. L. F., of New York, which has a membership of 200,000 (?) and get this "big organization" to assist them morally and financially.

The next morning I reported to the meeting of the strikers just what their leaders had told me, and was informed that it was all true, and they said that they now saw their mistake. They also admitted that if they had followed the advice given them when they were or-ganized, their strike would have been settled in a satisfactory manner, for the time being at least, and they could have maintained their organization.

After this meeting, the followers of the S. D. P., Kangaroos and Anarchists, who had refused the proposition that the Alliance officers advised them to accept, saw that, through their own actions, the strike was broken. A number of them returned to work that day. In conclusion, I will say that the most of the money which was raised for the strikers has been spent in lawyers' fees, been used to directly relieve the distress among the strikres.

The above should be a lesson to all wage workers. The Summit weavers are victims of the "Volkszeitung" and its allies. Those who can return to work, do so at the boss's terms; but we hope that the lseson that this strike has taught them will bear good fruit, should they again be compelled to resist the encroachments of the employer. WM. L. BROWER, Sec. of the S. T. & L. A.

The chief physical needs of man are three-food shelter, and raiment.

Of food we can to-day produce an enlimited supply; and, as we progress, facts not only disprove the Malthusian doctrine, that "population naturally tends to increase faster than the power m produce subsistence," but prove inversely that, taking the world as a whole, "the power to produce subsisgence increases faster than popula-There are, it is true, some countries of small extent, densely inhabited, where the soil, however productive, cannot be made to yield a sufficiency of food for its people. Such is Belgium, for instance, where the density of population has reached the apparently large fgure of 485 to the square mile. But the existence of such countries, like that of large cities, is made possible by the mechanism of exchange, through which the surplus production of coal here, or of cloth there, is readily bartered for the surplus of food produced elsewhere. Therefore, these exceptions—more imaginary than real, since they exist on political lines only—confirm our propoion. Even in Great Britain, we are sured by the highest authorities that assured by the highest to sustain all its here's land enough to sustain all its population if applied to the production of food and cultivated to the height of its capacity. "But Great Britain," under capitalist management, "prefers to make cloth and build ships; to practise make cloth and duting sings to game preserves; to grow mutton in Australia; fence in the mountain parks of Colorado and Wyoming for beef production, and establish great granaries in Dakota."

establish great granaries in Dakota."

As to raiment, in the present condition of manufacturing industry, the possibilities of production are not more limited than in the matter of food. The carcity of raw material could alone curtail its supply. But what are the facts? Wool, flax cotton, and other textiles are grown in abundance, and their production might be multiplied indefinitely. Even to-day there is an enormous waste. As much flax as is grown in Russia is burned on the ground in our Western States, where it is cultivated for the seed only. Our is cultivated for the seed only. Our wool product increased sixfold in twenty-five years, and it is generally admit-ted that the repeal of the Customs duty on foreign wool, by stimulating "to excess" its production in foreign countries, would very soon result in doubling that of Mexico, South America, and Australia. From which it is seen that abundance, not scarcity, is deemed under our present system the danger of the time, even to the extent of prerenting it by legislation.

As to shelter, its possibilities are ore infinite still than those of food ad raiment. There is room, to be sure, on this continent for one on this continent for one dwelling house to each family. MILLIONS of acres of virgin forest are every year futhlessly burned down by the Proxeen. And where is the end of stone, or of clay, or of any material which enters into the construction of a building? In their transformation and transcretation pothing is required but labor. pertation nothing is required but labor, the very surplus of which constitutes the problem of the age.

Why is it, then, that in such a world and at a time when human ingenuity has enslaved the forces of nature, men have to go hungry, ill-clad and home-

This question, we know, has become common-place from its frequency, and sounds declamatory to those who will act answer it. But millions of people are asking it to-day, and the thunder of discontent which fills the air cannot be mistaken for the ravings of dema-

"that I, who can raise more wheat in a year than I can consume in my life-time, am perforce without bread?" "Why is it." asks the factory operative, "that I, who can weave more cloth in a day than I can ever wear in years, am shivering in rags?" "Why is it," asks the mason, "that I, who can build palaces, have no roof over my head?"

We must answer: Poverty cannot be instified by Mailthein sophistry. Nor justified by Malthusian sophistry. Nor shall it be perpetuated under freedom. In a civilization so fully equipped with the instruments of wealth, no one need pauper who can work.

work is the natural law, and the natural right also. Access to land, access, also, to the instruments of process, also, to the instruments of production through which natural forces are used, such is to-day the demand of land and machinery. I say: for in the present state of industry they cannot be separated. Not only is the machine as necessary to the mechanic as the and is to the ploughman, but, in this age of mechanical progress, the time is fast coming when the land will be of no more use without the most powerful agricultural implements, than the raw Broducts of land itself can be to-day without the steam-engine and the gi

It is already so, in fact, on large areas of this continent. Four hundred laborers in Dakota, harnessed to the most improved implements and driven by a task-master with the whip of hunger predicts. produce as many "ushels of cereals a do five thousant, hard-working reach peasants in the rich plains of seauce and Brie. Not only throughout the great wheat-growing regions of the Northwest and on the "bonanza farms" & California but in the older States of Bast is machinery used on the land to such an extent as to produce upon the agricultural population effects in every respect similar to those of the factory system upon the mechanical and manufacturing occupations. The and manufacturing occupations. The mail farmer is driven out by competi-order drops into the ranks of the wage orkers, and finally swells the army of the unemployed.

Take, for instance, the New England takes, whose rocky and uneven soil on not admit of the use of machinery the same extent as in more favored rest, 1860-1880, the area of improved land increased nearly 1,000,000 acres, but the number of farmers decreased 23,000, whereas the number of farm laborers increased 24,000.

Again, take the State of New York, whose central plateaus are well adapted to the use of machinery. We find that the same period the area of improved land increased nearly 3,490,000 acres, but the number of farmers actually decreased 10,000, whereas the number of farm laborers increased 13,-

Mark that in New York, as in the New England States, despite the in-crease in the area improved, the land did not sustain a greater agricultural population in 1880 than in 1860, at least to any appreciable extent: but a com-paratively large number of farmers had disappeared, and had been supplanted by a corresponding number of farm laborous

Imagine, for a moment, in our highly Imagine, for a moment, in our highly developed system of production and exchange, a farmer in Dakota, with no other implement than a spade, and a spinner in Massachusetts, with no other machine than the distaff of her great grandmother: Will either of them earn his salt? Will they live as well as their ancestors did with those same primitive tools? Of course not. And why? Simtools? Of course not. And why? Simply because in the days of their ancestors the product of the spade exchanged for the product of the distaff, whereas in our days, the product of the spade is too insignificant to be accounted of any value in exchange for the product of the power-loom, and the product of the distaff is likewise too insignificant to be accounted of any value in exchange for the product of the steam plew.

Undoubtedly, in the chronological order of requirements, land was the first; for the primitive man, for the savage, and even for the masses of the people up to a comparatively recent epoch, it was, indeed, the only requirement. To-day, however, thanks to invention and commerce, machinery has become another requirement. It is of no importance, except historically, that this came last, or whence it came. It is sufficient economically that both exist and are indispensable to a state of in-dustrial civilization. When two things are indispensable to produce a certain result, it were idle to ask which of the two is most necessary.

We thus see at a glance how mistaken those are who demand free access to only one of the two requirements. Granting that land is the foundation of the productive fabric, and machinery the first story above ground, through which everything must pass before reaching the higher floor, where dis-tribution takes place, it is still evident that free access to the foundation only gives us no access at all to the finished product in the top story, except on such conditions as the capitalistic machinist may deem fit to impose for the right of way through his floor.

As for me, I can no more conceive, logically, of a system in which land would belong to society and machinery to individuals than of a system in which land would belong to individuals and machinery to society. But it is in per-fect harmony with a system of private ownership of land-that is, of Nature itself - that the machinery through which the forces of that Nature are used, either to obtain raw materials from the earth, or to work them into finished products, should also be private rty. In this system, of course, individuals own land and some machinery, or more or less of each, according to circumstances. But this is merely a convenient division of functions among members of the same class —the class of those who "have." And this class is very truly mankind by divine right: all such trash as you and I, who "have not." being mere cattle in the eyes of the Lord. True, by the law of gravitation, we belong to the planet; but these who own the planet-land but those who own the planet-land, machinery, and all-own us.

Now, if it is plain to you, as it is plain to me, that the nationalization of land without the nationalization of the land and its products are made available would not lessen the abject 'dependence of labor upon private cap-ital, how much plainer must it be that the so-called single land tax scheme can afford no relief whatever to the working class. This scheme, as you probably know, was first brought out in the last century by a school of French econo-mists known in history as the Physiomists known in history as the Physio-ciats. It was revived some fifty years ago by John Stuart Mill in his "Prin-ciples of Political Economy," and was subsequently advocated by Herbert Spencer in his "Social Statics." All those writers, however, presented it simply as a more equitable method of taystion, calculated to improve the optaxation, calculated to improve the op-portunities of capital, by lightening that portion of the public burden which commerce and manufacturing industry had to bear. True, upon the assumption that in the present system of production the interests of capital and labor are identical, or, at least, reciprocal, they contended that in so far as commerce and manufacture would be directly en-couraged by the removal of taxes upon their profits, the laboring class would be indirectly benefited also; in other words, that a portion of the increased profits of capital would go to labor in the form of increased wages. We now know what to think of this assumption. But it remained for Henry George to contend that the single land-tax would contend that the single land-tax would actually make land the "property of the people in common," and, according to this new miracle worker, by a mere transfer of burdens from the shoulders of one category of capitalists upon the shoulders of another category of capitalists, the shackles of labor would magically fall to the ground.

I cannot undertake to review here the single land tax theory in its various as pects, and the George movement in its various phases. For the purpose of this lecture it is enough to say that, taking into consideration the discontent of the working class, the extensive organiza-tion of Labor, the Irish question, and all other circumstances eminently favorable to such a movement. Henry George could never have produced the commo-tion he did as the recognized leader of tion he did as the recognized leader of it had he not constantly proclaimed that "land was of right the property of the people in common." To-day his false theory of taxation is dead beyond resurrection, but the eternal truth upon which he ventured to rest it is deeply rooted in the popular mind.

Nor was it then the first time that this great truth, with its power of elec-trifying the disinherited, had been proclaimed in America. A rapid glance backward will prove instructive. In backward will prove instructive. In 1852 a new party, small in numbers, strong in purpose, appeared in the field of American politics. On its banner was inscribed: "Free soil, free speech, free labor, free men." Its platform de-clared: 1, that "the government has no more nower to make a slave than to more power to make a slave than to make a king": 2, that, "as the use of the scil is indispensable to life, the right of all men to the soil is as sacred as the right to life itself"; 3, that "the pub-lic domain should not be sold to individuals nor granted to corporations, but should be held as a sacred trust for the people." Unfortunately the Free Soilers did not stop there, but, with a lack of consistency which politicians are apt to display in their eagerness to gain public support by concessions to individual selfishness, they broke the force of their third principle by the nullifying proviso, that the public lands "should be granted in limited quantities, free of cost, to landless settlers."
They did not see, nor did they want to see, that it was no better to give land away to individuals than to sell it, and that by granting the public domain to the landless of their time they denying it to the landless of the future

This Free Soil Party was shortlived, ut its influence on the destinies of the country was incalculable. Of the three declarations just quoted the first led, nine years later, to the greatest civil war of modern times and the final abolition of chattel slavery; the second is a live issue of the present day; the third, with its unfortunate proviso, eventu-ated in the Homestead Law, which shows a conception of the right of man to land far more limited htan that en-tertained by the Free Soilers.

In the first place, this law, intended on its face to give land in small quan-tities to the landless provided they should, by the improvement and use of it, benefit not themselves alone but the community at large, finally gives it to them absolutely and unconditionally. In the second place it ignored the cardinal principle of the Free Soilers, that the public lands should not be sold to individuals nor granted to corporations; it contains no provision against such special sales or grants.

The people, always short-sighted, could no more realize the immense value of their vast domain than imagine the possibility of its exhaustion. Capi-tal, always far-sighted, immediately perceived its opportunity and deter-mined to improve it mined to improve it.

And so it happened that in the ten And so it happened that in the ten-years which followed the passage of the Homestead law, only 220,000 people availed themselves of its provisions to the extent of 25,000,000 acres, whereas five corporations, by bribery on a scale of unprecedented magnitude in the history of nations, obtained free gifts from Congress to the amount of 181,000,000

In 1872 the national sentiment rebelled at last against the creation of corporate empires within the republic. A halt was called. Railway potentates must for a time be satisfied with the plunder they had heretofore secured. Its value was officially estimated in 1883 at the ridiculously small figure of $391,-000,000. Considering the rapid advance of land values along the subsidized lines, the discovery of untold mineral wealth throughout the vast domain alienated to them, the growth of cities on tracts which they own or control, it is safe to say that the actual value of the original grants, exclusive of im-provements, will soon have to be com-puted in billions of dollars.

But capital, checked in one direction, started in another. The Homestead Law was apparently intended to supplant the Pre-emption Act, which was never repealed. This, with the Desert Land Act and the Timber Culture Law, was found a most convenient instru-ment of land grabbing. In 1883 every acre of purely arable land, with the exception of a few undesirable tracts, had been monopolized by domestic and for-eign speculators, while the commanding positions in the so-called "desert region" had also been secured by them. There they stand, like the robber barons of the middle ages, ready to swoop down upon what remains of our once "inexhaustible" public domain. And they will soon get it. Then the landless, penniless also, driven from the field by the steam plow, driven from the factory by the labor-saving contri-vances, driven from the roads and the streets by the shotgun and the baton, will find his lot a hard one indeed. He will much resemble the poor, degraded white people of the South that Fitzhugh, of Virginia-that bold leader of Southern thought—proposed to enslave for their own salvation. Then a mod-ern philosopher, representing, like Fitzhugh, the "educated classes" of his time and country, will exclaim, as he did: "Slavery, black or white, is right and necessary. Two hundred years of lib-erty have made white laborers a pauper banditta. Free society has failed, and that which is not free must be substi-tuted."

Aye, all that must come to pass, if we

Perchance, however, we may not per-mit it. Whatever legislators and officials may do under a government satu-rated with the corruption of our eco-nomic system, the tendency of public nomic system, the tendency of public opinion is already now sufficiently ap-parent. When the people will see clear-ly what is their own—and thousands see it to-day who will, I have no doubt, soon organize to demand it—then restitution organize to demand it then restricted shall have to be made.

Until then, of course, we must expect that the government in all its branches will be impregnated with the stench of bribery; that men, who can by their votes, transfer immense wealth and privileges from their rightful owners to the things will demand their share of rich thieves, will demand their share of the plunder; that other men, having in charge the administration of our executive departments, will for a similar consideration deliver what the first have voted away, and that, sinking to the level of the surrounding immorality, a befouled bench will complacently white-wash all those turpitudes and eagerly confirm all those spoliations!

Debating Socialism in West Superior.

To THE PEOPLE.—The debate between Comrade Kriz and Joe Konkel, the Editor of the "Clarion," that was to come up at the Steel Plant, as reported in THE PEOPLE of Dec. 17. took place at the Agan Hall under the auspices of Section W. Superior.

Comrade Kriz referred to the census reports taken from 1890 to 1890 as to the proportion of the population and the wealth owned by the capitalist, middle and laboring classes. Then he passed on to the class rule. He showed how during the feudal system, when land was the dominant factor in production, the class that owned the land owned also society; just as at the present era, the capitalist class being in control of the tools and machinery, without which we are denied access to nature, is also in control of society. He concluded pointedly that the only way to remove the existing evils was to wrest the means of production and distribution from the class that now usurps them and use them collectively. He ilkewise pointed out the inevitableness of the Socialism. The material for which is furnished by modern society, the conrade showed was no more a dream, a Utopia, as Mr. Konkel asserted, but a practical conception. The spectre of feat that is penetrating through the ranks of our opponents does not rise in their midst, because they consider Socialism to be impracticable, but because it might work and make them work, too.

Mr. Konkel suggested the impossibility of the laboring class enjoying the full fruit of its labor, owing to the large aggregation of capital necessary in improvements, as machinery, from rails, ties, etc., which the laborers cannot and must not consume: therefore, he thought, he would prefer income tax to socialism. (I must confess that neither I nor the other comrades comprehend what he was driving at.) To this our comrade answered sarcastically: "The idea of a savage encumbering his body with all of his property—whether it consists of steel, iron or gold and silver!" Admitted that capital will remain invested in improv vested in improvements, he pointed out that such improvements would not, as now, be the property of private individuals whereby they would be enabled to lead the life of parasites upon the working class, but such improvements being accessible to the workers, operated for use, not for private profit, would be tantamount to so much property held by the workers.

ated for use, not for private profit, would be tantamount to so much property held by the workers.

As to the income tax, he said that the xystem was now practically in practice, only in a one-sided way: the capitalists were taking the laborers' income by keeping from them three-fourths of what they produced, and would continue to do so until the laboring class got control of the government and carried out this system of taxation by confiscating all the wealth that was robbed from it. And, as Socialists believed in doing away with waste of labor, Socialism would set free to work a great number of sples and other capitalist menials who are now in favor of the capitalists and the present system of "income tax."

Mr. Konkel was waterlogged by our comrade's cannonade. When it was his turn he wept woefully for the "poor widow" and "orphan" and even a "great portion of the laboring and middle classes," whose property the outrageous Socialists intend to "confiscate."

Comrade Kriz closed the debate, reassuring the audience that the Socialists are not so toolish as to meddle with things that are of little or no value in production. However, by the time the Socialists got control, there would not be much property left in the hands of the middle and laboring classes; the capitalists would have gobbled it all up.

When a standing vote was taken, the audience rose as a body for the S. L. P. with the exception of two, who voted for income tax, silver and a whole mash of confusion. The audience was estimated over 400. The straightout Socialism of the S. L. P. once more proved itself the most winning and practical thing for the masses.

Address to the Fifth Ward, Chicago

Address to the Fifth Ward, Chicago.

To THE PEOPLE,—In 1894 the Socialists of Chicago deemed it wise to unite forces with the Populist party and thus make "headway" or Socialism "more rapid." The effect upon the movement was pointed out in advance by a few of the stalwarts here and by nearly all of our Eastern comrades, who had gone through many similar experiences, proving that none but an uncompromising attitude can and will serve the cause of Socialism.

All these pleas and warnings were in vain. The advocates of "broadness" and "union of forces" had their way. The result was what had been foretoid: instead of clearing the minds of the workers, it made them more confused.

lorces had their way. The result was what had been foretoid: Instead of clearing the minds of the workers, it made them more confused.

The only good realized was that the millitant Socialists became firm-set against all appeals to "broadness." union of forces." etc. So it came that in 1896, the Fifth Ward Branch of the S. L. P. did not heed the plea for broadness, repeated that year by the "radical Populists," who placed in nomination Ed. Conors as aldermanic candidate. The claim of this gentleman's "friendship for the working class" was based on his holding an honorary membership card in the Plumbers' Union (he is a boss plumber now), and last not least on his declaration, "I am a Socialist, too."

The members of the Fifth Ward, S. L. P. branch, were not to be taken in by such broad assertions: they knew that Ed. Conors was but one of the many of "the get there" stripe. For a confirmation of this we had not long to wait. Just as soon as he found out (election returns) that the Populists could not land him in the desired place, he took another step in "broadness" and "union of forces." Broadness" this time consisted in joining the Republican party; "union of forces was to consist in his former constituency getting out of bus uess on its own line and unifying itself with the Reps. Needless to say that the Republicans received him with open arms, they were badly in need of such a "friend to organized labor." The Ward had gone for years Democratic: a bunco steerer was needed to drive the unthinking workers into the Republican camp. With this object in view the Republican politicians nominated him in 1886 for Alderman—and he got elected, but, mind you, not to serve the people, oh no, to serve the Republican party. Just watch:

All hopes entertained by the workingmen that he would do a little something anyhow for them came to naught. He did absolutely nothing for the downtroden. He proved just as bad, if not worse, than his predecessors.

This is an object lesson to studs. It is the of "union of forces," to wit, the schemers "get there," the dupes "get left." As long as workingmen will neglect to do their own thinking and can be caught with taffy, so long will they be used as they are at present by the capitalists and their hench-men.

C. B. S. WORCESTER, MASS.—You misapprehend the significance in history of the "Free Thinkers." Bob Ingersoil and his fellow Atheists of the present generation can in no way be named in the same breath with Voltaire and the French Encyclopedists, except to contrast the two, showing the modern crew to be false imitators.

Voltaire, together with the freethinkers of his time, were the usherers in of a revolution—the capitalist or anti-feudal revolution—the capitalist or anti-feudal revolution do not understand what their forerunners had done. Thus we see the Voltairians inspired by a feeling of humanity, inevitable to their revolutionary attitude; while the Ingersolians appear as the upholders of the present system, and correspondingly inhuman. Voltairianism is a monumental feature in history: Ingersolianism is a ridiculous caricature. The former is a historic manifestation that marks a great epoch and deserves study; the latter is a clown manifestation, deserving only passing notice.

S. F. D., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Numerous are the instances in which the New Zealand "Hon. Minister of Labour" tries to run down other countries to which immigration is flowing, as stated in last week's editorial. Here is one: A five-line space at the bottom of its 926th page is filled, simply filled, with the following item, which has no connection with the chapter that closed just above, or the one that opens at the head of the next page: "In New York a woman was discovered disguised as a man showlling snow with a gang of street labourers. The story is all right and true enough; yet strangely out of place in the unexpected corner where it occurs, and, connected with other instances, suggestive of the purpose.

A. R. E., ST. LOUIS. MO.—Don't make yourself the victim of a phrase. "Not men, but principles" is a wise saw, but like all others, may be rendered ridiculous; and you are doing your best to do so. What would become of principles if not enforced by men? A cannon ball is first class to knock an enemy down with: yet, do you imagine that the Bogrs, for instance, would go wild with delight over a cannon ball located in your St. Louis, thousands of miles away from their reach, where it cannot be utilized by them? The best of principles if not upheld by proper men are as useless to the purpose as that cannon ball in St. Louis would be to the Boers to-day.

"CURIOUS." HOLYOKE, MASS.—Your question, What definite course should the Socialist Legislator pursue in the matter of corporate franchise generally? proceeds from the idea that a definite answer could be given; and that idea in turn proceeds from a mental position that ignores the fact that Legislative conduct is to Platform Declarations of Principles what rigid scientific teaching in a Medical College is to a Medical Clinic, or what the science of navigation, taught ashore, is to practical navigation on the seas. In a Medical College, the fundamental principles are taught in all their scientific purity and rigidity; in the clinic these principles are applied subject to the thousand and one modifications made imperative by modifying circumstances. In the schools on navigation the naked principles are taught: at sea, the course of the navigator is affected by the currents, the winds, the ice-bergs, the derelicis, etc., that he encounters. So with the Socialist Legislator. A hard and fast course cannot be laid down before him. His platform must furnish him with the neverto-be-lost-sight-of loadstar to direct his course by: but what eractly that course will be depends upon too many contingencies to be foreseen. P. papers outside of this city: the Chicago "Workers' Call" and the San Francisco "Class Struggle"; they both went over to the "Volkszeitung" and were speedly joined by a third paper in this city that pirated the name of the Party's organ—THN PEOPLE. Within three months from that date all three died. You may occasionally see a hysterical copy of the three; but that does not affect the fact that they are dead; chickens, when their heads are cut off, often rush around for a while with unwonted vigor, but spasms of death before they drop down for good and all. So with the present "issues" of the three papers in question.

The fact that, at the same occasion, the other half of the middle class, in order to save their "little bank deposits" and their "insurances," bent under the crack of the whip of the fold flugs, deserted the Bryan party that their class interests had set up, and slavishly obeyed the order of their industrial oppressors to vote for McKinkey—that fact disposes of your claim about the "anti-slavishness" of that class.

By B. F. KEINARD, Phoenixville, Pa.

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., Dec. 19.-The great annual powow of the A. F. of L. medicine men is on again in Detroit.

Observing the wild claims of A. F. of L. membership reaching as high as 1,500,000, and such claims having been repeatedly made in the past by Gompers & Co., on occasions when there was not much chance of being brought to book, I purpose to puncture this bubble once and for all, and show some of the methods of this concern, in a way no "bluff" can answer.

This article will show:

I.—That the A. F. of L., judged by its own convention reports, contains but a quarter of a million members against Gompers & Co.'s claims, made for years million and a million and a half.

That much of even that apparent quarter of a million is known to Gompers & Co. to be bogus and afforded special protection by them.

As to the Quarter of a Million.

Taking the latest report published up to this writing, that of the Kansas City 98 Convention, let us begin by ascer taining the membership as indicated by the votes in convention allotted to the affiliated organizations. These votes (some of which had no delegates present to cast them) amounted altogether to 170, from which, however, must be educted 24 (3 being cast by "fraternal" delegates, and 21 coming from the State and city central bodies, and represent-ing no additional membership), leaving 2,546 votes representative of the rank and file. Each vote is supposed to re-present 100 members (Constitution, Art. IV.). multiplying which number by 2,546, we get 254,600 as the total A. F. of L. membership, in place of Sammy's million or million and a half.

Again. It is said "money talks" therefore, let us get the utterance of the 1898 financial report on the question of membership. This shows a total per capita tax for 1898 of $12,705.31.

In analyzing this, it must be remembered that there are FOUR DIFFERENT rates of per capita which converge to produce this total (viz., 1/c per member monthly from locals attached to nationals and internationals, 2c. from unattached locals, and a $10 annual tax from State federations and city and cen-tral labor bodies, with $10 extra when represented in convention—(See Consti-tution for 1898, Art. XI.) The "Go" gang very carefully omit an itemized statement, for reasons that are self-evident. Even if this total were made up entirely from ½,c. tax—the most favorable view for Gompers—it would indicate a membership of only 317,633 quite a little way off from a million. But when we test it with the four rates combined, the membership shrivels to merely 241,152, admitting even then that the total tax in question contains no money paid in by politicians, capitalists and fakirs on bogus organizations!

Take a look at it. Take a look at it.

First, the moneys paid in by the State and city, purely central bodies, (at the two rates, $10 each annually and $10 extra if represented in convention), come mainly from membership that is already once accounted for under the 1/2c, and 2c, rates. The whole amount contributed by such central bodies and deducted from the total of all four sources for the year gives a remainder representing, with sufficient approxi-macy, the 1/2c, and 2c, rates, the only rates properly indicative of member-ship. The number of such central bodies in 1898, according to Gompers own report, was 92; of these 21 were represented in convention, making their total dues for that year $1,130. Subtracting this amount from 12,705,31 gives $11,575.31 as the total derived from the 1/1, c. and 2c. taxes.

Next we want the proportions in which this last sum is divided between the two rates. No trouble about that. According to Gompers' own figures, there were in 1898, 10,500 locals attached to nationals and internationals (they pay '/,c.), and 424 unattached locals (they pay 2c.), or about 24 times as many of the former class as of the latter. This is their relative numerical strength. But, inasmuch as the attached locals pay only '/, as much dues per member as the unattached, their total dues are only four times the total of the unattached. Dividing $11,575.31 according to tached. Dividing $11.570.31 according to this ratio, we get $9,260.25 as the total collected at ¹/₁c. monthly and $2,315.06 collected at the 2c. rate, from which there appears a "grand" total of only 241,152 as the entire membership of the

"great" A. F. of La!

And then I make no allowance for the money paid in upon the paper organiza-tions, a classic example of which will

A word may here be added relative to A word may here be added relative to the reported increase of per capita from $12,705.31 in 1898, to $21,407.11 in 1899, a gain of $8,701.80, and the reported in-crease in membership to the extent of 141,390 (36,500 of which is asserted to be new membership in the federal and purely local unions chartered direct by the A. F. of L.)

The fraud of these figures is revealed by observing that such 36,500 member-ship of unattached locals (only one-quarter of the total new membership) quarter of the total new membership) would itself, if bona fide, pay—at 5 cents per member, the '99 rate for such unions—$21,900, or more than ALL THE NEW AND OLD members in 1899 combined. As a matter of fact, one-half, if not more, of the reported increase of dues is made up by the increased dues on central bodies (not representative of membership nor otherwise represented) and the increase from two to five cents a month that would be paid by the old unattached locals.

"Now what I want is facts."—Boz. | ship increased in '99, less than three times as fast as the unattached. This emphasizes how the Federation is falling out of touch with the great fundamental occupations of the day, and is more and more driven to conceal its under organizations called "federal labor unions," etc., containing odds and ends of occupations, business men, capitalists, politicians, and names on paper,—becoming steadily one single or-ganization of direct, first-charter-issue, instead of a federation of separate or-ganizations. As a matter of fact, of the dues paid by the new unions in '99, fivewas paid by these unattached

Take the first on the list of A. F. of L. affiliations, the "American Agents' Association (int'l)," Chas. H. Sidener, Coyington, Ky., "president." This concern, which has for years been allowed large representation in A. F. of L. conventions, and which, according to "President" Sidener in the "Cincinnati Post" of Sept. 19, 1899, has 350,000 members (!), consists, as a matter of fact, of sim-ply Sidener, his wife, an "official organ," and an unlimited supply of crookedness. Sidener is the "president"; his wife, forging a man's name, acts as "Secre-tary-Treasurer," and the "head-quar-ters" has had to "kangaroo" five or more times in four years.

A Sidener "convention" would be termed in scientific language a "honey-

In 1897 it consisted of two men, Side-ner and Garrity, a "pal." Many persons will swear to this.

In 1898, according even to Sidener himself, no convention at all was held. In 1899 a "convention" was held at Muncie, Ind., at which, in spite of Sidener's extravagant claims, there were present only 17 "delegates," as verified by my Muncie correspondent. Of these 12 were Muncie business men, according to Sidener's own publications; the other five were Sidener and "pals" from Covington and Indianapolis (within easy reach of Muncie). The convention exhibited, among others, the following interesting and partly original features, as deduced from Sidener's own "convention" publications:

Three days occupied in transacting fifteen to thirty minutes' total "busi-

The nominations for "offices" and Sidener's own "election" as "president" were given out to the "Cincinnati Post" by Sidener BEFORE the convention took

Mr. Sidener's '99 "convention souvenir" is noteworthy of simultaneously representing the Muncie convention to be both the sixth and the third "international convention." It also gives the date of the first local as organized in August, 1894, while his constitution purports to have been adopted June, 1894 (two months before there was any local), and the "Great Seal" gives the date of organization as June 19, 1892 (or more than two years before there was any local or constitution). It takes a good liar to keep track of his own lies. The "Great Seal," I may remark, is used sparingly and with admirable discrimination.

The "A. A. A." claims to have over forty locals. On April 4, 1899, the Cin-cinnati Central Labor Council (just across Ohio from Covington, Sidener's "head-quarters"), recorded on its minutes that, after exhaustive investigation into Sidener's alleged 43 locals, but one, a small body of fakirs, existed at Indianapolis. A similar conclusion was reached by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., thro' its detectives, when they investigated the "A. A. A." at the time Sidener tried to "sand-bag" them with a "bayeout" also by my own perwith a "boycott"; also by my own per-sonal investigations and extensive correspondence. Sidener is so crooked in his dealings that he has been driven out of city after city,—Findlay, Piqua and Hamilton, in Ohio, and Louisville, Ky. Among his rascalities in Louisville, he unloaded up-on the Broom-makers' Union a cut of their label he had had forged, and 115,-000 counterfelt labels printed in a "rat" shop, charged the Union double the contract price for these bogus articles, and then compelled the Union to pay for both over again, as he skipped out without paying the platemaker and printer. In Covington he has advertised "scab" goods, made "scab" places "fair" for a cash consideration, organized "unions," composed of capitalists and politicians. used his "official organ" in favor of the C. & O. R. R. Co., and in the fall cam-paign of 1898, in Covington, sold his paper by exclusive contract, to the Re-publicans, and at the same time secretly took money from the Democrats, as he had to admit in court. Mr. Sidener, by the way, says he believes in an organ-ization of the "broadest character."

These and other charges are based on numerous documents, affidavits, exhibits and witnesses, and Mr. Sidener is invited at any time to still further establish them by bringing suit for libel.

That Gompers & Co. have for years known of Sidener's crookedness and the bogusness of his organizations appears ogusness of his organizations appears from the following:

from the following:

1.—When arrangements were made for a committee from the Canvassers' Protective Association of Cincinnati to meet Gompers in 1896, at Indianapolis, and expose the Sidener organization, Gompers escaped the interview by the old dodge of "sick at his hotel." Later, Combe (spokesman of the said committee) sent Gompers written charges over ever by the '99 report, is the rapid approximation of the total yearly growth of "unattached unions" to that of unions attached to national and international bodies: the "attached union" memberering Sidener's crooked record in Hamilton which had come under Combe's personal observation; also touching on Sidener's record in Louisville. Gom-pers never did anything further than merely to acknowledge the receipt of Combe's letter.

2.—Sidener's record in Louisville was brought before Gompers in 1897, at the Nashville ('97) convention by James Mc-Gill (Kentucky State organizer for A. F. and President Louisville C. L. U. that had previously expelled Sidener for getting money under false pre-tences). Mr. Gill says the A. F. of L. has known about Sidener ever since and he cannot understand why they pay no attention to the matter!!!

3.—A letter of protest, giving the facts about Sidener and his "A. A. A.," was sent from Covington to the A. F. of L. '98 convention, in Kansas City, Gar-rity (the "A. A. A." intended delegate), hearing the letter read before it was sent, decided he had better not show up. and he did not (see convention report). Nevertheless no attention was paid to the protest, and the "A. A. A." was allowed representation in said convention. Shortly prior to this same convention, sweeping charges in writing were made direct to Gompers by John A. Blake, President Cincinnati Metal Polishers, and by him repeated and added to about every fortnight for a period of several months. Beyond one letter of acknowl-edgment, Gompers never paid any attention to them.

4 .- The crookedness of Sidener and the swindle of all his three organiza-tions (the "A. A. A.," the Kenton & Campbell Counties T. & L. A., and the Covington Federal Labor League) were thoroughly exposed and emphatically brought before Gompers TWICE OFFI-CIALLY IN WRITING by the Cincinnati Central Labor Council, in January and April, 1899, the latter time with the most comprehensive charges and the amplest proofs, entirely unrebutted by Sidener. These charges-developed upon the occasion of Sidener's application for charter for his F. L. L. and T. & L. A., by the Cinn. C. L. C. in the course of an investigation devolving upon it according to the constitution and custom, as being the nearest central labor union—not only did Gompers utterly ignore, but he ruthlessly trod them under foot, slapped the C. L. C. in the face, and violated the constitution by not rener's two other bogus organizations, altho the charges and protest against them were never lifted; even to this day (in fact, the C. L. C.'s delegate to the Detroit convention, having been instructed to protest Sidener's A. A. A. credentials, and ascertain how it was 8,000 Unionists were turned down in favor of one fakir and his few followers.)

As to the first of these two latter Sidener organizations (the F. L. L.), the C. L. C. showed that said organization, outside of a few "white-washed scabs" and men belonging in other organiza-tions, was composed of business men and politicians, among them some of the very biggest politicians and capi-talists in Covington and Cincinnati (list can be furnished).

As to the second (the T. & L. A.), the C. L. C. gave as its reason for refusing endorsement that it was controlled by men of shady reputations, chief among them, Sidener (its secretary, and editor and publisher of its "official organ"), who had been driven, on account of his crookedness, out of city after city, and the 43 alleged locals, of whose American Agents' Association has been found, after exhaustive investigation, to be nonexistent, with the exception of a small of fakirs in Indianapolis. matter was officially communicated to Gompers, with the proofs, and request that any commission Sidener held from the A. F. of L. be revoked, and the C. L. C. officially notified of such action. (See minutes of April 4th of Cincinnati C. L. C. in official organ, "Cincinnati Chroni-cle" of April 7th, 1899, and "Cincinnati Building Trades Journal," April—10th, 1899; also minutes of April 11th, 1899.)

Not only did Gompers, as above noted, entirely disregard the C. L. C. and stand by Sidener to the extent of giving him charters for two more fraudulent or-ganizations in addition to the charter already held for the bogus "A. A. A.," but he still further emphasized his deter-mination to stand by Sidener at all hazards by beating down and refusing a charter to a bona fide organization, the application for which, regularly en-dorsed, was at the time in his hands, but which organization Gompers and and destroy Sidener's bogus affairs. This was the Covington Federal Labor Union, organized by John A. Blake, President Cincinnati Metal Polishers, and regularly endorsed by the Cincinnati C. L. C., at the same time it refused endorsement to Sidener's "league." Neithe Sidener nor Gompers could allow such an organization to be chartered. Side-'business" would be destroyed, and Gompers needed Sidener in his "business." Sidener, therefore,—following the voluntary advice of Gompers to do so—applied for a charter for his T. & L. A. (up to this time without charter for his the state of the s for about two years), Gompers in the meantime holding up the Blake appli-cation, in order to give the T. & L. A. time to get a charter and wear out the Blake organization by delay, so that the T. & L. A., under guise of being the nearest central labor body, could grant endorsement to Sidener's "league," and thereby shut out the Blake organization, if it had not been already worn out by delay. Sidener's application, however, was protested by the Cincinnati C. L. C., and thereupon, Gompers cut the Gordian knot by ignoring the C. L. C., and issuing the charter. The Blake organiza-tion had in the meantime withdrawn in disgust after four months' wait, forced upon them without the shadow of an excuse. In the action here described Gompers was not only actuated by the desire to save Sidener, but very probably also by the fact contained in Sidener's recent statement in Covington that GOMPERS DARE NOT REVOKE HIS CHARTER on account of Sidener's knowledge of crooked work in A. F. of L. conventions.
As to what will have been done at the Detroit convention, where several par-ties were to protest Sidener, I may not be able to tell exactly, but I can surmise pretty nearly, from the fact that Side-ner's T. & L. A. decided to send no delegate, and that Sidener, who was to represent his own A. A. dared not show up. "Sammy" had a "serious bicycle accident" just before the convention, and was unable to get there until after the matter of credentials had been concluded for another year. This points to a shelving of the matter upon the pretext that absence of some of the parties to the controversy make it im-possible to reach a definite decision. Sammy's "bicycle accident," by the way to people who doubt whether Sammy can ride fast enough to produce an acci dent, and coming so that he could not reach the convention until after the credential matters had been disposed of, but yet in time for the election of offi-cers, looks like what the Greeks would call a "kuriosus kodinkidinki."

The foregoing analysis unquestion-ably demonstrates the weakness and the corruption of the A. F. of L. in Gompers' hands. What is the reply to such proofs? Simply the only reply such a guilty concern can make, evasion, avoidance, confession—"you are attack-ing organized labor"—"organized labor" in this instance, conceding Gompers' own statements to be correct, represents not more than 5 per cent, of the 29,000,-000 wage-workers of this country today; and, taking the figures developed by my analysis, too generous to him, that 'organized labor' represents, as a matter of fact, searcely more than one wageworker in every hundred.

Yet we are told we must not get in the way of the A. F. of L., but must organize those trades and callings "not yet organized!"

We will do so; we will organize them all, and soon, with the superb mobility and tremendous intensity of the Socialist Labor Movement.

We shall have a hand to grasp the world with, And a foot to stamp it flat."

What Socialism is Not.

Extract of Address Delivered by James Mortensen of Section Lincoln, Nebr., Before the Section, Dec. 10, 1899.

Some people seem to have a fixed idea that the Socialists have a ready-made. cut-and-dried system of society, which will be put in operation so-soon as the S. L. P. gets into power. They seem to credit us with almost supernatural powers, thinking us able to "overturn civilization," a civilization which, to our knowledge, history has taken 6,000 years to build up, and no doubt many more thousands of years have elapsed before a man could be found with ribs flexible enough from which could be made a suitable and progressive companion to him. Nay, nay; such is not

While we claim to be revolutionists in the true sense of the word, I would have it understood that the revolution we talk of is neither "Scarlet" nor "Crimson" in hue; it is colored by the sweat of the human brow; labor added to labor; invention added to invention, evol-ving from one thing into another; from this other thing into something better; and so forth until a complete revolution has been brought about. To illustrate:

Imagine you see before you the face of a clock; the minute-hand pointing at 12. Slowly and slowly it moves; min-ute by minute; until an hour, a complete revolution, has been made. Now, let us again look at the face of the clock. To the right of 12 is the word "Capitalism," immediately to the left is the word "So-cialism." The evolutionary hand of cialism." The evolutionary hand of progress moves slowly and surely away from "Capitalism," till at last it reaches Socialism." In the beginning of its journey, it seems to move away from "Socialism," yet it is truly constructive in its path; further and further away it moves; on and on it moves, until a point is reached, when the destructive ele-ments begin to dominate over the constructive elements. Then it gets nearer to "Socialism"; opportunities are grow-ing less, combinations are being formed, want and fear of want are staring the people in the face; they are dissatisfied, they think there is something wrong with the clock and want to have it re paired, so they try the different kinds of politicians. The Republicans have a whack at it, and it does not help any. Still the hand of evolution moves, and then they try the Democrats. No better. Some even think that if they could move the hand back to Jefferson's time. that would help; but the hand still moves forward. Others think the clock needs oiling, and they want to put more money into circulation; but oil or no oil, the hand moves on. Others know not, and care less, what is the matter. A very few only will listen to the sound reasonings of scientific Socialism, which is honest enough to tell them that the clock, which is human society, is an organism, and unless we understand the mechanism of the organism, political tinkering will do no good, for the hand of evolution is going to move on and on until the unavoidable will be reached. If it be not Socialism, it will surely be a crash.

A good many, who have acquired a little knowledge of sociology, think that Socialism will be a state of society where all will be equal in the sense of monotonously of one kind. For that reason, they are opposed to Socialism. It is not true. The S. L. P. platform does not say so. We may as well try to raise all the wheat of the world in one field. It has been said that there are not two kernel of sand of exactly the same likeness, nor two blades of grass much less of human beings. I shall even go so far as to say that if all the Socialists of the world were to give a definition as to what Socialism would be in the year of 2000, there would be as many different definitions as there are Socialists. It is human nature for each individual to follow those lines to which his particular individuality is adapted, and the Socialist does not propose to change human nature; on the contrary, we propose, by giving free ac-cess to the means of production to afford each and all an equal opportunity to develop his own individuality.

OMMENTARIES ON THE PLATFORM OF THE GERMAN LABOR PARTY.

Labor and Wealth.

1. "Labor is the source of all wealth and of all civilization, AND SINCE useful labor is possible only in and through society, the product of labor belongs, unabridged and in equal right, to all the members of society."

FIRST PART OF THE PARAGRAPH: "Labor is the source of all wealth and of all civilization."

Labor is NOT THE SOURCE of all wealth. NATURE is just as much the source of use-values (and these, no doubt, form the material elements of wealth) as labor, which is itself only the utterance of a natural force, human labor power. The above phrase is to be found in every whild a supervision of the state child's primer and is correct in so far as it is assumed that labor starts out equipped with the requisite materials and means.

But a Socialist platform should not let such middle class phrases pass, and permit, by silence, the conditions that alone give sense thereto to be sup-pressed. And in so far as man star is alone give sense thereto to be sup-pressed. And in so far as man star Is towards Nature, towards the source of all the means and objects of labor in the relation of proprietor; in so far as he treats Nature as belonging to him, his fabor does become the source of use-values hence also of wealth. The canivalues, hence also of wealth. The capitalists have very good reasons for imputing to labor SUPERNATURAL CRE-ATIVE POWERS. If labor is a requirement of nature, it follows that the man who possesses no property but his labor power must, under all conditions of society and civilization, be the slave of those other men who have made themselves the possessors of the material conditions for local them. conditions for labor. He can work only with their permission, hence live only with their permission.

But let us take the sentence as it runs, or rather limps. What should we have expected as the conclusion? Plainly Since labor is the source of all wealth, no one in society can acquire wealth except as a product of labor. Therefore, if he does not work himself, he lives upon the labor of others, and also acquires his share of civilization at the expense of other people's labor."

Instead of this another sentence is

Instead of this, another sentence is attached by means of the phrase "AND SINCE," in order to draw a conclusion from this latter sentence, and not from the former.

SECOND PART OF THE PARAGRAPH "Useful labor is possible only in and through society."

According to the first proposition labor was the source of all wealth and labor was the source of all wealth and civilization; hence no society was possible without labor. Now we learn, on the contrary, that no "useful" labor is possible without society.

It would have been as sensible to say that only in society can useless, and even publicly injurious labor become a branch of industry, that only in society can men live in idleness, etc., etc.—in short, to copy the whole of Rous--in short, to copy the whole of Rous-

And what is "useful" labor? Plainly only the labor that produces the desired serviceable effect. A savage—and man is a savage after he has ceased to be an ape—a savage who kills an animal with a stone, who gathers fruits, etc., does "useful" labor.

THIRDLY: THE CONCLUSION: "And since useful labor is possible only in and through society,—the product of labor belongs unabridged, in equal right, to all the members of society."

A beautiful conclusion! If useful labor is possible only in and through society, then the product of labor belongs to society—and to the individual laborer only so much as is not necessary for the maintenance of the "prerequisite" of labor: Society.

Indeed, this has been the regular claim made by the champions of each succeeding social system. First come the claims of the government and all that hangs thereby, since it is the social organ for the maintenance of the social order; next come the claims of the various sorts of private property, for the various sorts of private property are the foundations of society, etc. It is plain, such hollow phrases can be turned and twisted at will.

The first and the second part of the paragraph can have any sensible con-"Labor can become the source of wealth and civilization only as social labor," or, what amounts to the same thing, "only in and through society." This proposition is indisputably correct for even if isolated labor (its material condition presupposed) can create use-values, yet it can produce neither wealth nor civilization. But just as indisputable is this other

'In proportion as labor is being de veloped socially, and thus becomes the source of wealth and civilization, are also developed poverty and degradation on the side of the laborer, wealth and ivilization on the side of the non-

This is the law of all history up till now. Therefore, instead of taking about "labor" in general and "society" in general, it should have been clearly pointed out how, under present capitalist society, the conditions, material and otherwise, are at last produced, which enable and, indeed, compel the laborers to break down that social doom.

But, in fact, the entire paragraph—faulty both in style and contents—ap-pears here only in order to inscribe the Lassallian catchword of the "un-abridged products of labor" as the abridged products of labor" as the watchword on the flag of the Party. I will come back later to the "product of labor," the "equal right," etc., as the same thing recurs in somewhat different

2. "In present society the means of labor are the monopoly of the capitalist class. The dependence of the working class, flowing from this, is the cause of misery and servitude in all forms."

This proposition is borrowed from the Constitution of the International, but in a "improved" version, which makes it an "improved" version, which makes it

In present society the means of labor are the monopoly of the landlords (the monopoly of land forms even the basis of the monopoly of capital) AND of the capitalists. In the passage referred to the Constitution of the International mentions neither the one nor the other class of monopolists. It speaks of "THE MONOPOLY IN THE MEANS OF LABOR, THAT IS, IN THE SOURCES OF LIFE." The addition, "Sources of LIFE." sufficiently shows that the soil is included under the means of labor.

The "improvement" was made, because Lassalle, for reasons now generally known, attacked the capitalist class only, not the landlords. In England the capitalist is in most cases not even the owner of the soil on which his factory stands.

Distribution and Justice

3. "The emancipation of labor de-mands the elevation of the means of labor to the common property of society and the co-operative regulation of the total labor of society together with a just distribution of the product of

By "elevation of the means of labor to common property" is probably meant their "transformation into common property." But this only in passing.

What is just distribution"?
Do not the capitalists maintain that the distribution now prevailing is "just"? And, in fact, is it not the only "just" distribution on the basis of the present mode of production? Are economic relations regulated by theories of law or do not the legal relations, on the contrary, arise out of the economic re-lations? Do not the Utopian Socialists also entertain the most variegated notions of what constitutes a "just" distribution?

In order to know what the phrase "just distribution" means here, we must regard this paragraph in connection with the first. This paragraph assumes a state of society in which "the means of labor are common property, and the total social labor is regulated co-operatively"; from the first paragraph we learn that "the product of labor belongs to all the members of society, un-abridged and in equal right."

abridged and in equal right."
"To all the members of society?"
Even to those who do not work? What, then, becomes of "the unabridged product of labor"? Only to the working members of society? What becomes, then, of "the equal right" of all the members of society?

If we take the term "product of labor" to mean the whole value of the product. then the co-operative product of labor is the TOTAL SOCIAL PRODUCT. From this is to be deducted!

First: The proportion required for the replacement of the means of production used up.

SECONDLY: An additional portion for the expansion of production.

Thirdly: A reserve and insurance fund against mischance, disturbances through the forces of nature, etc.

These deductions from the "unabridged product of labor" are an economic necessity, and their magnitude has to be determined according to the existing means and forces, in part by probability calculations, but in no way can they be calculated from the idea of justice.

There remains the other portion of the total product, destined to serve as means of consumption.

Before this can be distributed among the individuals, there are again to be deducted from it:

FIRST: THE GENERAL ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES THAT DO NOT FORM A PART OF PRODUCTION. This portion is from the outset very considerably reduced in comparison with present society, and diminishes in the same measure in which the new society develops.

Secondly: That Portion which is DESTINED FOR THE SATISFACTION OF COMMON WANTS, such as schools, provision for the protection of the public

This portion is, from the very outset, considerably larger than in present so-ciety and increases in the same measure in which the new society develops.

THIRDLY: FUNDS FOR THOSE UNABLE

THERDLY: FUNDS FOR THOSE UNABLE
TO WORK, etc., in short for what now belongs to so-called public charity.

Only now do we come to that "distribution" which the platform, under Lassallian influence, stupidly has alone in view, namely, that portion of the means of consumption which is distribted among the individual producers of uted among the individual producers of the community.

The "unabridged product of labor" has in our hands changed to an "abridged" one, although what escapes the producer as a private individual, directly or indirectly benefits him as a member of society.

Within the co-operative society, based on the common ownership of the means of production, the producers do not exchange their products; just as little does the labor expended on the products appear here as THE VALUE of these products, as a material quality possessed by them, since now, in contra-distinction from capitalist society, the individual labor forms a constituent part of the total labor not indirectly, but directly.

What we are dealing with here is a communist society, not as it has DE-VELOPED on its own basis, but, on the contrary, as it is just issuing out of capitalist society; hence, a society that still retains, in every respect, economic, moral and intellectual, the birthmarks of the old society from whose womb it is issuing. Accordingly, the individual producer gets back—after the deductions—exactly as much as he gives to it. What he has given to it is his individual share of labor. The social labor day consists of the sum of individual labor hours; the individual labor time of the single producer is the fraction of the social labor day supplied by him, his share of it. He receives from the community a check showing that he has done so much labor (after deducting his labor due to the common fund), and with this check he draws from the common store as much of the means of consumption as costs an equal amount of labor. The same quantity of labor that he has given to society in one form, he receives back in another form.

Evidently, there prevails here the same principle that to-day regulates the exchange of commodities, inasmuch it is an exchange of equivalents. Sub-stance and form have changed, because under the changed conditions no one can give anything except his labor, and because, on the other hand, nothing can go over into the possession of in-dividuals, except individual means of consumption. But so far as the dis-tribution of the latter among the in-dividual consumers is concerned, the came principle prevails as in the exchange of commodity-equivalents; an equal quantity of labor in one form is exchanged for an equal quantity of labor in another form.

Hence, EQUAL RIGHT is here still CAPI-TALIST RIGHT, although principle and practice are no longer in conflict with each other, as is the case with regard to the exchange of commodities, where an exchange in equivalents exists only in THE AVERAGE, not for the individual Notwithstanding this progress, the EQUAL RIGHT is still tainted with a capi-talist limitation. The right of the producers is Proportional to their con-tribution of labor; the equality consists in this that the right is measured by an EQUAL STANDARD: labor.

However, one person is physically or intellectually superior to the other, furnishes, therefore, more labor in the same time, or can work during a longer time; and in order to serve as a measure, labor must be determined according to duration or intensity, otherwise it would cease to serve as a standard. This EQUAL right is unequal right for unequal labor. It does not recognize class distinctions, for every one is only a laborer like everybody else; but it tacitly recognizes unequal individual endowment, and, hence, efficiency, as natural privileges. It is, therefore, in its Substance, a right of inequality, Like all right. According to its nature, right can consist only in the application of a common standard, but plication of a common standard; but the unequal individuals (and they would not be individuals if they were not un-equal) can be measured according to a common standard only in so far as they are brought under the same point of view, are regarded from a PARTICU-AR side only. For example, in the given instance they are regarded ONLY AS LABORERS; we see nothing more in them, we disregard everything else. Moreover, one laborer is married, the other is not married; one has more chil-dren than the other, etc., etc. Hence, with equal distribution of labor and, therefore, equal shares in the social consumption-fund, the one receives actually more than the other, the one is richer than the other, etc. In order to avoid all these shortcomings, right would have to be not equal, but unequal.

But these shortcomings are unavoidable in the first phase of communist society, as it has just issued from capitalist society after long travail. Right can never be superior to the economic development and the stage of civilization conditioned thereby.

In the higher phase of communist society, after the enslaving subordination of the individual under the division of labor has disappeared, and with it also the opposition between manual and also the opposition between manual and intellectual labor; after labor has become not only a means of life, but also the highest want in life; when, with the development of all the faculties of the individual, the productive forces have correspondingly increased, and all the springs of social wealth flow more abundantly—only then may the limited horizon of capitalist right be left behind abundantly—only then may the limited horizon of capitalist right be left behind entirely, and society inscribe on its banners: "From everyone according to his faculties, to everyone according to his needs!" I went rather extensively into the "unabridged product of labor," "the equal right" and "the just distribution." in order to show how mischievous it is on the one hand to attempt to folst upon our Party, as axioms, notions that at one time had a meaning, but have now become mere antiquated fustian; and, on the other hand, to persent the realistic concention, which has vert the realistic conception, which has been so painfully impressed on the Party, but has now struck root in it. with the ideological flummery of justice, etc., which is so current among the Democrats and the French Utopians.

Aside from the above, it was alto-gether a mistake to make much of the -called DISTRIBUTION, and to lay on this the chief emphasis.

The distribution of the means of consumption is but the result of the distribution of the factors of production. But the distribution of the latter is a characteristic of the very mode of production. For example, the capitalist mode of production rests on this that the material factors of production are allotted to the non-workers in the form allotted to the non-workers in the form of capital and landed property, while the mass of the people are owners only of the personal factor of production: labor-power. Given such a distribution of the elements of production, there results automatically the present distribution of the means of consumption. Given the common ownership of the material factors of production, there follows in the same way a distribution follows in the same way a distribution of the means of consumption different from the present. Utoplan Socialism (and from it, again, a section of the Democracy) followed the capitalist economists in regarding and treating distribution as independent of production, and hence represented Socialism as turning chiefly around the question tion, and hence represented socialisms as turning chiefly around the question of distribution. After the true relationship has long been made clear, why again this backward step?

WAGES AND VALUE OF LABOR-POWER.

The Iron Law of Wages,

"Starting from these principles, the German Labor Party aims with all law-ful means to establish the free State and—the Socialist society; to abolish the wage system with the iron LAW of wages—and—of exploitation in every form; to remove all social and political inequality." inequality.'

Of the "free" State I will speak later. Of the Tree State I will speak letSo the German Labor Party must henceforth believe in Lassalle's "Iron law of wages"! And in order that it may not be passed over unnoticed, you commit the absurdity to speak of the may not be passed over diministent years commit the absurdity to speak of the "abolition of the wage-system" (it should read: "system of wage-labor") with the "iron law of wages." If I abolish wage-labor, I, of course, abolish also its laws, be they made of iron or of sponge. But Lassalle's warfare against wage-labor turns almost entirely around this so-called law. Hence, in order to prove that the Lassallian sect has triumphed, the "wage-system" must be abolished "with the iron law of wages," and not without it.

It is well known that of the "iron law of wages" nothing belongs to Lassalle but the word "iron," borrowed from Goethe's "eternal, iron, great laws." The word iron is the shibboleth by which the faithful recognize one an other. But if I take the law with Lassalle's label, and therefore in his sense,

I must also take it with his demonstra-tion. And what is this? As Lange showed, shortly after Lassalle's death, showed, shortly after Lassalle's death, it is the Malthusian theory of population (preached by Lange himself). But if this theory is correct, then I can not abolish the law, even if I abolish wage-labor a hundred times, since in that case the law controls not only the system of wage-labor, but every social system whatsoever. Relying on this very law the economists have proven for the past fifty years and more that Socialism cannot abolish nature-imposed misery, but can only generalize it, distribute it simultaneously over the whole body of society! whole body of society!

But all this is not the main thing. DISREGARDING ENTIRELY the FALSE Las-sallian conception of the law, the truly revolting retrogression consists in this:

Since Lassalle's death the scientific Since Lassalies again the scientine knowledge has made its way in our Party that wages are not what they SEEM, namely, the VALUE OF PRICE Of LABOR, but only a disguised form for the VALUE OF PRICE OF LABOR-POWER. Thereby the whole capitalist theory of wages, hitherto prevailing, together with all the criticisms hitherto directed against it was once and for all over. against it, was once and for all over-thrown, and the fact clearly established that the laborer is only permitted to work for his living, i.e. to live, so long as he works a certain time gratis for the capitalist (hence also for those who share the surplus-value with the latter); that the pivot around which the entire capitalist system of production turns, is to increase the unpaid labor either by lengthening the working day, or by developing the productive powers of labor, or by straining the laborer to more intense exertion, etc., etc.; that, therefore, the system of wage-labor is a system of slavery, which tem of slavery, which, moreover, grows harder in proportion as the productive powers of labor are developed in society, no matter whether the laborer's pay is better or worse. And now, after this conception has become more and more accepted in our Party you turn back accepted in our Party, you turn back to the dogmas of Lassalle, although you must know that Lassalle DID NOT KNOW what wages are, but followed the capitalist economists in taking the appearance for the essence.

It is just as if in a movement of slaves who have at last penetrated the mystery of slavery, and risen in rebel-lion, a slave, imbued with superannu-ated notions, would inscribe in the pro-gramme of the rebellion: "Slavery must be abolished, because under the system of slavery the slaves' food can never exceed a certain low maximum."

Is not the mere fact that the representatives of our Party were capable of committing such a monstrous outrage against the correct understanding prevailing among the rank and file of the Party, enough to show with what . . . frivolity . . . they went at the drawingup this programme!

Instead of the vague phrase at the conclusion of the paragraph: "to remove all social and political inequality," it should have been said htat with the abolition of all class distinctions all social and political inequality springing from them will disappear of its own ac

The State.

According to II the German Labor Party aims at "the free State." "Free State"—what does that mean?

To free the STATE is by no means the aim of the workingmen who have emancipated themselves from what has been called "the subject's limited intelligence." The state is almost as "free" in the German Empire as in Russia. Liberty consists in this, that the State is transformed from an organ superior to cociety into one subporting superior to society into one subordinate to it; and even now State institutions are more or less free in proportion as they limit the "freedom of the State."

The German Labor Party shows-at least, if it adopts this platform—that its Socialist ideas are not even skindeep; since, instead of treating exist-ing society (and this applies to every future society) as the BASIS of the existing State (or of any future State in case of a future society), it, on the contrary, treats the State as having independent existence with an intellectual, moral, free or unfree basis of its own

The thing is made worse by the reckless misapplication of the words "PRES-ENT STATE," "PRESENT SOCIETY," and the still more reckless misconception of the nature of that State to which the demands of this platform are addressed! "Present society" is the capitalist soclety, existing in all civilized countries, more or less free from feudal alloy, more or less modified through the peculiar historical development of each country, more or less highly developed. The "present State," on the other hand, changes the boundary line of each country. It is different in the Prussocountry. It is different in the Prusso-German Empire from Switzerland; dif-ferent in England from the United "THE present State" is, therefore, a fiction.

In spite, however, of their manifold differences of form, the different States of the different civilized countries have this in common that all of them stand on the basis of modern capitalist so-ciety, though its capitalistic develop-ment be more or less advanced. Hence, they also have certain essential characteristics in common. In reference to these one may speak of the present "State institution" as distinguished from that of the future in which its present roots, capitalist society, will have decayed. What, then, is the change which the institution of the State will undergo in a communistic society? In other words, what social function, analogous to the present functions of the State, will remain there? This question can be answered only by proceeding scientifically; the problem is not brought one fleat learn recent its solution by a thousand leap nearer its solution by a thousand combinations of the word "people" with the word "State."

Between the capitalist and the com-munist systems of society lies the period of the revolutionary transformation of the one into the other. To this cor responds a political transition period, whose State institution can be nothing else but THE REVOLUTIONARY DICTATORSHIP OF THE PROLETABLAT.

What the platform demands applies neither to the transition State nor to be fully state of the company of the company of the following state of the following neither to the transition State nor to the future State organization of Com-munist Society.

Its political demands contain nothing but the old democratic litany that the whole world knows: "universal suf-frage," "direct legislation," "adminis-tration of justice by the people," "arm-ing of the nation," etc. They are a mere echo of the middle-class People's Party, of the League for Freedom and Peace; they are, all of them, demands that, so far as they are not of an exaggerated, phantastic conception, are REALIZED NOW. Only the State in which they belong is not situated within the boundary lines of the German Empire, but in Switzerland, the United States, etc. This sort of "Future State" is present State, though existing outside the limits of the German Empire.

But one thing has been forgotten.

But one thing has been forgotten. Since the German Labor Party expressly declares that it is acting "within the present national State," hence its State, the Prusso-German Empire—most of its demands were otherwise absurd, since one demands only what he has not gotthen it should not have forgotten the main thing, namely: that all these fine dainties rest on the recognition of the so-called sovereignty of the people, hence that they are in place only in a DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC.

But since you are not in a position (and wisely so, for the circumstances impose caution) to demand the democratic republic, as the French labor programmes did during the reigns of Louis Philippe and Louis Napoleon, then you should not resort to the . . . subterfuge of demanding things that have a meaning only in a democratic republic, from a State that is nothing else than a mili-tary despotism adorned with parliamen-tary forms alloyed with feudalism, influenced by the capitalist class, bureau-cratically constructed and police-pro-

Even the vulgar Democracy, which sees the millennium in the democratic republic and has no inkling of the fact that the class struggle is to be definitely fought out under this final form of State organization of capitalist society even that vulgar Democracy overtons. —even that vulgar Democracy overtops mountain-high the democratism that keeps within the limits of what the police permits and logic forbids.

You clearly show that you certainly You clearly show that you certainly mean by "State" nothing else but the government machine, i. e., the State in so far as it constitutes a distinct organism, differentiated from society through the division of labor, when you use the words: "The German Labor Party demands as THE ECONOMIC FOUNDATION OF THE STATE: a single progressive income tax, etc." Taxes are the foundation of the governmental mathe foundation of the governmental ma-chinery and of nothing else. In that "future State" which we find existing in Switzerland, this demand is quite realized. An income tax presupposes the different sources of income of the different social classes, hence capitalist society. society. It is, therefore, not at all strange that the financial reformers of Liverpool—capitalists, with Gladstone's brother at their head—make the same demand as this platform.

DIXI ET SALVAVI ANIMAM MEAM.

"Welcome to God's Poor."

Eighteen hundred miserable wrecks. representing the flotsam and jetsam of humanity, were fed in Madison Square Garden on Christmas Day. The Salva-tion Army was there with its blare and trumpet to dole out the portions.

Around the building, com.iortably seated in the boxes, were those who had perhaps contributed to the fund that provided this enormous dinner. They fulfilled the old Bible saying that "where your treasure is there will your heart be also," and these people not only brought their hearts but their beautiful bodies also, and their faces were wreathed in smiles and their eyes filled with tears as they gazed upon the filled with tears as they gazed upon the scene. It could not have been a happy occasion to any one who looked upon these men and women, ravenous as hungry animals, tearful and timid, many of them faint with the gnawing empti-ness of their stomachs. To any witness with a ray of intelligence in his make-up it must have occurred that on all the days of the coming year these people would have only the memory of this one "square" meal; that they would continue to live starved and stunted lives, and that this army of eighteen hundred souls would be re-inforced by hundreds more, as the weaker ones dropped from the ranks into nameless

Can it be that any of the capitalists who read the mottoes on the wall, "Wel-come to God's Poor," "Whosoever Will Let Him Come," and others just as sweet and inviting, felt not the mockery of the words? Can it be that any of them did not realize that all these miserable objects, all these dwarfed specimens of humanity, were creations of the capitalist system, of which they were pillars, the system for which they were working and voting to perpetuate?

"The Salvation Army means well," some folks say—but that day in Madison Square Garden, and on all other days and occasions they pat the capitalists back and hold out their hands for more "salve" to cover up the sores and wounds they (the capitalists) have made by their grindstones of commercialism and guns of their allies in the government. At the same time these soldiers of the Salvation Army tell the givers of the "Balm of Gilead" that they will win a soft place in heaven for their generosity on earth. Of course, it is a comfort for them to know that they will not have to roast in the next world when they have been having such a soft time on the cushions of earth.

The incident which is here records was repeated in all the cities of Christendom on Christmas Day, and Must mean something to the men and women of our country who are not capitalists. What more terrible climax can be reached? What can be more moving than such a spectacle? Will the entire force of working men and working women look on coldly and impassively? Will they quietly await the inevitable storms that will sweep them all into just such drift wood? How much longer will these giaring contrasts need to be brought home to them before they will see the truth?

Even in the very consciousne such events men will still shut their eyes to the strong light of contrasts, and claim that they are satisfied with and claim that they are satisfied with our system. The only comfort we can take when the bitterness of realisation comes over us of these terrible conditions that exist in the "progress of the civilization of the twentieth century" is the fact that there is a revolutionary tendency growing, that is already crystallized into organization. That the Socialist Labor Party has not only caught the true revolutionary spirit, but that it is ready to apply its scientific remedies to the diseases of society.

VICTOR LEWIS.

SOCIALIST LITERATI

We are often asked what books we would recommend for those who wish to study Socialism. Below we have prepared two lists of such books. List No. 1 should be read in the order given. Follow this up with List No. 2, and then you will know what Socialism is.

ALL OF THESE BOOKS ARE PUBLISHED BY THE NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE SOCIALIST LABOR PARTY.

LIST NO. I. The six books on this list will be sent to any address for 25 cents.

What Means This Strike.

By DANIEL DELEON. Paper, 5 cents. "What Means this Strike?" is an address delivered before the striking textile workers of New Bedford, Massachusetts. It is the best thing extant with which to begin the study of Socialism. The whole range of capitalist production is examined and analyzed in the light of Socialist Science.

Reform or Revolution. By DANIEL DELEON. Paper, 5 cents.

An address delivered at Boston under the auspices of the People's Union. The keynote of the address is to show the difference between Reform and Revolution, and to demonstrate that the working class can get nothing out of reforms.

Socialism.

By W. S. McClure. Paper, 5 cents.

A comprehensive exposition of Capitalist Society, its contradictions, its brutality, and its approaching demolition. The author scientifically demonstrates the inevitableness of Socialism. This book will silence those who admit the desirability but deny the possibility of the Socialist Republic.

Territorial Expansion.

By Lucien Sanial. Paper, 5 cents. By LUCIEN SANIAL. Faper, 5 cents.
"Territorial expansion" was written to show what a trustworthy guide the Socialist conception of history is in tracing the causes of the rush for territorial expansion by modern capitalist nations in general and the United States in particular. In the words of the author "They must expand abroad or burst." The attempt of the American capitalists to subjugate the Philippines is treated from the Socialist point of view. And "surplus value" is clearly explained.

By Lucien Sanial. Paper, 5 cents.

It is the favorite assertion of capitalist political economists and politicians that the Working Class pay the taxes. It is, on the contrary, a terse statement of the Socialist Labor Party that the Working Class pay no taxes. The pamphlet "Taxation" has been written by Lucien Sanial, under the direction of the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Labor Party, to demonstrate that the Socialist position is impregnable.

The Middle Class.

German Trade Unionism. By Lucien Sanial. Paper 5 cents.

By Lucien Sanal. Paper 5 cents.

This book is a most valuable one to all who would intelligently grasp the "Trust Problem." It is replete with facts to prove the correctness of the position of the Socialist Labor Party that the Trust is but another step of Capitalism toward its own grave dug by its own forces. The man who wishes facts on the "Trust" should not be without this book. It is the only book published that treats the Trust from the point of view of the Working Class, and it is likewise the only book that brings the data down to date. There are also interesting monographs on "The Origin, Rise and Decline of the Middle Class," and on "German Trade Unionism."

LIST NO. 2. The six books on this list will be sent to any address for 25 cents.

The Capit list Class.

By KANL KAUTSKY. Adapted to America.

Paper, 5 cents. A clear-cut discussion of Capitalism as it affects the Working Class. The book is an admirable antidote for the "political economy" of the average college professor. The chapters on "Ground Rent" and "Taxation" are valuable on the Single Tax fallacy.

The Proletariat. By KARL KAUTSKY. Adapted to America. Paper, 5 cenfs.

"The Proletariat" should be read after "The Capitalist Class." The history and growth of the Working Class and the effect of Capitalist Production on the Working Class are vividly portrayed. The chapter on "The Educated Proletariat" is highly instructive.

The Class Strug le.

By Karl Kautsky. Adapted to America. Paper, 5 cents

The struggle for supremacy between the Working Class and the Capitalist Class becomes more marked and acute as Capitalist Production develops. "The Class Struggle" is a comprehensive description of the nature of the contest and its probable outcome. The book is the complement of the two preceding

The Co-Operative Commonwealth

By Karl Kautsky. Adapted to America.

Paper, 5 cents.

About the first thing a man wishes to know after he realizes that Capitalism cannot last, is: "What is going to be put in its place"." This book is an arsenal of facts as to the broad lines on which the Socialist Republic will appear, and it is the only work in English that gives a scientific treatment on the subject. The chapter on "The 'Plan' of the Cooperative Commonwealth" will be very instructive to those who wish the specifications of the future social organization. This book should be read in connection with the three preceding ones. The four, taken together, are known as the "Kautsky Pamphlets." KARL KAUTSEY. Adapted to America.

The Religion of Capital. By Paul Lafangue. Adapted to America.

Paper, 5 cents.

"The Religion of Capital" is a very instructive satire on the characteristics and crimes of the Capitalist Class. The political economy of the Capitalists, with their apologies for their robberies and their murders, is given in language that is cogent with power.

Tragic Pages: A Study of the Labor Fakir.

Tragic Pages: A Study of the Labor Fakir. By Thomas A. Hicker. Paper, 5 cents. The Socialist Labor Party asserts that trade unions that support at the ballot box the capitalist political parties are either conscious or unconscious enemies of the Working Class, and that "labor leaders" of the Samuel Gomport these parties, are double-dyed rascals in particular and murderers of the Working Class to export these parties, are double-dyed, rascals in particular and murderers of the Working Class in general. These "labor leaders" are the union that they "lead" are called "pure and simple" unions. And if one wishes cumulative evance of the rascality of the fakirs, one has but to read "Tragic Pages." Mr. Hickey takes the United Mine Workers Union as a type takes the United Mine Workers Union as a specially the history of its strikes, shows that the "iminers lie naked in the storm, while their labor fakir leaders reveil in debauch and riot for the favor of a brothel mistress."

A Call.

To the Sections of the Soc. Labor Party.

Comrades: In accordance with Art. IV, Section 1, of the Party constitution, you are hereby called upon to make nominations for the place where the national convention of the Socialist Labor Party for 1900 is to be held. The nominations made must be reported to the undersigned on or before January 31, 1900, and will then be submitted to the referendum vote of the members. Organizers of Sections will please see to it that this call is read at the next regular meeting of their respective Sections and that the nominations made are promptly reported at headquarters. The Section being the unit of organization, each Section can nominate but one city. There is no need of reporting the vote cast, the simple report that the Section places in nomination a certain city being By order of the National Executive

ILLINOIS.

BELLEVILLE, ILL.—Section Belleville has the pleasure to announce another increase in the S. L. P. vote this year. At a special election held in the First Ward our candidate received 62 votes out of a total of 367. Last Spring we received 34 out of total of 460 votes. We ought to feel proud of this increase, but we are not satisfied and will not be until we land our candidates in public offices, where they will legislate in our interest and against Capitalist interests. Section Believille has learned that for class-conactous action by the working class they must be educated by class-conactous for class-conscious action by the working class-they must be educated by class-conscious literature, and we will push that class of reading matter alone.

SOCIALIST LABOR PARTY

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

PLATFORM.

The Socialist Labor party of the United States, in Convention assembled, re-asserts the inalienable right of all men to life, liberty, and the pursuit of

Note that the founders of the American republic, we hold that the purpose of government is to secure every citizen in the enjoyment of this right; but in the light of our social conditions we hold, furthermore, that no such right can be exercised under a system of economic inequality, essentially destructive of life of liberty and of hannings.

be exercised under a system of economic inequality, essentially destructive of life, of liberty and of happiness.

With the founders of this republic, we hold that the true theory of politics is that the machinery of government must be owned and controlled by the whole people; but in the light of our industrial development we hold, furthermore, that the true theory of economics is that the machinery of production was till aware to the people in common.

more, that the true theory of economics is that the machinery of production must likewise belong to the people in common.

To the obvious fact that our despotic system of economics is the direct opposite of our democratic system of politics, can plainly be traced the existence of a privileged class, the corruption of government by that class, the alienation of public property, public franchises and public functions to that class, and the abject dependence of the mightiest of nations upon that class.

Again, through the perversion of democracy to the ends of plutocracy, labor is robbed of the wealth which it alone produces, is denied the means of self-employment, and, by compulsory idleness in wage slavery, is even deprived of the necessaries of life.

Human power and natural forces are thus wasted, that the plutocracy may rule.

Ignorance and misery, with all their concomitant evils, are perpetuated

Ignorance and misery, with all their concomitant evils, are perpetuated that the people may be kept in bondage.

Science and invention are diverted from their humane purpose to the enslavement of women and children.

Against such a system the Socialist Labor party once more enters its protest. Once more it reiterates its fundamental declaration that private property in the natural sources of production and in the instruments of labor is the obvious cause of all economic servitude and political dependence.

The time is fast coming, however, when in the natural course of social

The time is fast coming, however, when in the natural course of social evolution, this system, through the destructive action of its failures and crises on the one hand, and the constructive tendencies of its trusts and other capitalistic combinations on the other hand, shall have worked out its own downfail. We, therefore, call upon the wage workers of the United States, and

We, therefore, call upon the wage workers of the United States, and upon all other honest citizens, to organize under the banner of the Socialist Labor party into a class-conscious body, aware of its rights and determined to conquer them by taking possession of the public powers; so that, held together by an indomitable spirit of solidarity under the most trying conditions of the present class struggle, we may put a summary end to that barbarous struggle by the abolition of classes, the restoration of the land and of all the means of production, transportation and distribution to the people as a collective body, and the substitution of the Co-operative Commonwealth for the present state of planless production, industrial war and social disorder; a commonwealth in which every worker shall have the free exercise and full benefit of his faculties, multiplied by all the modern factors of civilization.

Resolutions.

With a view to immediate improvement in the condition of labor we, present the following demands:

1. Reduction in the hours of labor in proportion to the progress of production.

2. The United States to obtain possession of the mines, railreads, canals, telegraphs, telephones and all other means of public transportation and communication; the employees to operate the same co-operatively under control of the Federal Government and to elect their own superior officers, but no employee shall be discharged for political reasons.

3. The municipalities to obtain possession of the local railroads, ferries, water works, gas works, electric plants and all industries requiring municipal franchises; the employees to operate the same co-operatively under control of the municipal administration and to elect their own superior officers, but no employee shall be discharged for political reasons.

4. The public lands to be declared inalienable Revocation of all land grants to corporations or individuals, the conditions of which have not been compiled with. production.
