WELL FOR CANADA.

In THE WELFARE traveller in Canada during his vacation recently spent a portion of his time in the company of a number of Englishmen who were in his company, and who were all of them apparently well satisfied with the country. They spoke highly of the scenery, the climate, and the people, and said that it was a land of opportunity and progress.

In the course of our conversation we asked them what they thought of the Canadian government, and they said that it was one of the best in the world. They also said that the people were very friendly and hospitable, and that they would recommend Canada to anyone who was considering a visit to the country.

We then asked them if they had any suggestions to make for the improvement of the country, and they said that they thought it would be well to have more education and better roads. They also said that the government should do more to promote the development of the resources of the country.

We thanked them for their advice and left them. We then continued our journey to Toronto, where we were to meet our steamer for home. We arrived in Toronto late in the afternoon, and we found that our steamer was not due until the next day. We decided to go to a hotel and wait for the steamer to arrive.

The hotel was very nice, and we were very comfortable. We spent the night there, and the next day we took the steamer home.
