CRAFT THAT FAILED.

EMPLOYED BY M. R. TRAFTON IN CHICAGO.

THE CHICANA OF THE JAPAN DEPRESSED STREET Car driver was the subject of a recent meeting of the Chicago Labor Party. The driver said that he had been unemployed for six months and was forced to work as a street car driver for M. R. Trafton in Chicago. The meeting was attended by about 50 people who discussed the driver's working conditions and the need for better working opportunities.

The meeting was held in the Chicago Labor Party hall, which is located on 24th Avenue and 35th Street. The hall is used for meetings, discussions, and social events. The room was filled with people who listened to the driver's story and shared their concerns about their own working conditions.

The driver said that he had been working as a street car driver for M. R. Trafton for six months and that he was forced to work for eight hours a day. He said that he was paid $2.50 a day and that he had to work on the weekends. He said that he was not allowed to take breaks and that he was forced to work in the heat of the sun.

The meeting was led by the Chicago Labor Party's John Smith, who said that he was concerned about the driver's working conditions and the need for better working opportunities. He said that the Labor Party was working to improve the working conditions of all workers and that they would be doing a lot more to help the driver.

The meeting ended with a vote of support for the driver and a plan to organize a campaign to improve his working conditions. The Labor Party members agreed to work with the driver to get better working conditions for him and other workers.

The meeting was a success and the Labor Party members were able to organize a campaign to improve the working conditions of the street car driver. They were able to get support from other workers and were able to make some progress in improving the driver's working conditions.

WEEKLY PEOPLE, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1901.

News from the Field of Labor.

During the week ending September 14, the news from the Field of Labor in the old style trade unions was unusually active. In many places, the lounging members of the Board of Trade were summoned to attend a meeting of the local committee. The officers of the union were instructed to call a meeting of the members of the union to discuss the latest developments in the strike. The members were asked to consider the proposed strike, and whether they should participate in it.

News from the Field of Capital.

The shooting of President McKinley has been made the topic of many discussions in the newspapers. Many people are concerned about the possibility of civil war if the assassination is not a success. The national government is being prepared to handle such a situation.

Arbuthnot, N. J. Sept. 15.

While the wealth of the country is vast, there is a growing concern about the distribution of wealth. The income tax is being debated as a means of addressing this issue.

Ross County, Ohio.

The local branch of the National Labor Union has been renamed the National Labor Association. The new name is intended to reflect the broader scope of the union's activities.

New York, Sept. 17.

The labor movement is facing a new challenge with the rise of the new industrial unions. These unions are formed by workers who are not organized in the traditional craft unions.

THE SOCIALIST LABOR PARTY: Aims and History

The Socialist Labor Party has a long and complex history, with its origins dating back to the 19th century. It was founded by a group of American Socialists who were influenced by the ideas of Karl Marx and the early labor movement. The party was active in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, with a peak in the 1910s and 1920s. It was instrumental in the development of labor unions and the fight for workers' rights. The party was known for its radical stance on various issues, including free speech, peace, and workers' rights. However, the party's influence waned in the mid-20th century, and it largely dissolved in the 1950s. Despite this, its legacy lives on through its contributions to the development of socialist thought and its role in shaping American labor and political history.
The HISTORY OF A KANG

BEING AN ACCOUNT OF HIS RISE, FALL AND VARIOUS JUMPS.

A usual Friday night meeting of the Socialist League in Jersey City—"the member of that class of the community known to our German comrades as "spice-burners.""

Mr. Kranz, an observer of the activities here, was present, and when he was introduced as "Mr. Kranz," he received a short speech from the platform by Mr. Kiss, the Socialist League's delegate to the American Social Democratic party convention. The speech was made without a platform, and was delivered in a room at the hotel where the convention was held.

The speaker began by saying that it was a pleasure to be present in such a gathering, and then proceeded to give an account of the proceedings of the convention so far as they related to the Socialist League. He remarked that the delegates from different parts of the country had met together to discuss the affairs of the League, and that they had agreed to adopt certain resolutions which were to be carried out.

The speaker then turned to the question of organizing the League in the city of New York, and said that it was his intention to make the city a centre of activity, and that he hoped to see the League growing rapidly in numbers and influence. He concluded by expressing his hope that the delegates would carry out the resolutions adopted at the convention, and that the League would make rapid progress.

The following resolutions were then read and adopted:

1. That the League be organized in the city of New York, and that the membership be increased.
2. That the League be made the centre of activity of the socialist movement in the city.
3. That the League be made the centre of activity of the socialist movement in the country.

After the resolutions were adopted, the meeting broke up, and the delegates proceeded to their various homes.

The following is a list of the resolutions as adopted:

1. That the League be organized in the city of New York, and that the membership be increased.
2. That the League be made the centre of activity of the socialist movement in the city.
3. That the League be made the centre of activity of the socialist movement in the country.

THE SOCIALIST ALMANAC.

The monograph of Italy and Spain is now in press, and will be published in the near future. It will be a valuable contribution to the study of these countries, and will be greatly appreciated by all who are interested in the social and political movements in these lands.

THE DAILY PEOPLE.

The attention of all workmen is called to the Daily People. It was published in 1868, and has been issued continuously ever since. It is the property of the Socialist Labor Party, and is the organ of the International Working Men's Association.

OWNED BY WORKMEN, EDITED BY WORKMEN, SUPPORTED BY WORKMEN.

The editors of the Daily People are determined to carry on their work in the interest of the working class, and to make it a valuable and useful organ for the working people. They are supported by the workers, and are opposed to all forms of oppression and exploitation.

THE SOCIALIST REPUBLIC,

a republic in which all men shall hold their property in common, and shall be equal in all respects. The Socialist Republic is a state of harmony and prosperity, where all men shall live in peace and contentment. It is a land of plenty, where all shall have the means of living. The Socialists believe that the Socialist Republic is the only way to achieve a perfect society, and are working for its realization.

GO TO WORK OR STARVE.

Deep workmen and all other honest citizens should read the Daily People, and be united in the cause of the working class. The Daily People is the organ of the Socialist Labor Party, and is the only newspaper that is truly in the interest of the working people. It is the voice of the working class, and is supported by the workers.

FINDAL TEST OF STRENGTH.

The test of a man's strength is to be found in the way he stands up to the difficulties of life. The test of a man's character is to be found in the way he meets the trials of life. The test of a man's patriotism is to be found in the way he supports his country. The test of a man's place in the world is to be found in the way he stands up to the difficulties of life. The test of a man's courage is to be found in the way he meets the trials of life. The test of a man's patriotism is to be found in the way he supports his country.
