SPANISH WORKERS OUT AT PEREZ & COMPANY.

It looks like a repetition of the War of 1898. The Perez & Company, of New York, have been on strike for some time, the workmen having walked out to demand higher wages and better working conditions. The management, however, refused to give in, and a strike ensued.

The Perez & Company, which is one of the largest manufacturers of cigars in the United States, is situated in the heart of the city, and has a large force of workmen. The workmen, who are mostly Spanish, have been on strike for several weeks, and the company has been forced to shut down its operations.

On the other hand, the company has been trying to get the workmen to return to work by offering higher wages and better working conditions. However, the workmen have been very firm and have refused to return to work until their demands are met.

The strike has caused a great deal of inconvenience to the company, as it has been forced to stop production. The workmen, however, are determined to stick to their demands and will not return to work until they are satisfied.

THE FIGHT OF THE SAILORS.

The sailors on board the USS Constitution, which is now anchored in the harbor of Boston, have been on strike for several weeks, demanding better wages and working conditions.

The company, however, has refused to meet their demands, and the sailors have been forced to remain on strike until their demands are met.

THE CRUSADE FOR LABOR.

The American Federation of Labor has been holding a crusade for labor in the United States, demanding better wages and working conditions for all workers.

WAGES-SHARES-WARNINGS.

The shifts of prosperity, persistently insufficient, in the face of a marked reversion of the laboring classes, have been set forth in the form of a number of warnings addressed to employers and employees alike. In a recent issue of the Weekly People, an editorial writer pointed out that the wages system is not only insufficient, but that it is also insufficient in its present form. The writer went on to say that the wages system is inadequate because it fails to provide for the proper sharing of the fruits of labor, and that it is inadequate because it fails to provide for the proper distribution of the laboring classes. The writer then went on to say that the wages system is inadequate because it fails to provide for the proper sharing of the fruits of labor, and that it is inadequate because it fails to provide for the proper distribution of the laboring classes.

CORRESPONDENCE

We are interested in the correspondence on page 4 of the Minneapolis Tribune, February 15, 1902, regarding the American Federation of Labor. The letter writer, Mr. J. B. Anderson, discusses the need for unity among labor organizations and the importance of cooperating with other unions to achieve common goals.

The letter begins:

"Dear Sir,

I am writing to express my support of the proposal made by the American Federation of Labor for a conference among all the labor unions in the country. I believe that unity among labor organizations is essential if we are to achieve our common goals.

Sincerely,

J. B. Anderson"

The letter is concise and direct, highlighting the importance of unity among labor unions. It is a typical example of the type of correspondence that might appear in a newspaper of the early 20th century, discussing labor issues and the need for solidarity among workers.
