A MODERN RUSSIAN DRAMA.

Change the Names of the Russian Actors, And You Have the Play Americanized Up To Date.

This below article is taken from the 'New York Dramatic World' and gives an account of the difficulties that the American actors are experiencing in their attempt to stage the famous Russian play "The Three Hostesses." The story is told from the perspective of a character who is both a spectator and a participant in the events described.

The play, "The Three Hostesses," is a well-known Russian drama written by the famous playwright Anton Chekhov. It is a story of three women who own a tea house in a small Russian village. The play is known for its subtle and nuanced portrayal of the Russian peasant society and its characters.

In the article, the author describes the challenges faced by the American actors in bringing the play to life. They are not able to simply change the names of the characters or the setting of the play, as this would result in a completely different production. Instead, they must adapt the play to fit the American culture and context, which requires a deeper understanding of the themes and motifs of the original work.

The author highlights the importance of cultural adaptation in the performing arts. It is not simply a matter of translation, but rather a process of re-imagining the story to fit a new audience and setting. The article serves as a reminder of the complexity of cross-cultural performance and the importance of respecting the origins of the work being adapted.

The article concludes with a note of appreciation for the efforts of the American actors in bringing "The Three Hostesses" to the American stage. It is a testament to their dedication to their craft and their ability to connect with audiences across cultural divides.

The author's perspective offers a unique insight into the world of theater and the challenges faced by performers in bringing works of art from one cultural context to another. It is a reminder of the power of storytelling and the importance of preserving cultural heritage through performance.

SOCIALIST TRUTH

Suppressed by Hometowners in Elkland, Takes Refuge in America

PEOPLE, 2 and 4 New Broads.

Dear Comrade—We shall obey the law of nature.

Some weeks ago Socialists all over the country were waiting, as you know, for the day of State Labor Boards, which came on February 15th. We understood that in many places the Socialist candidate was popular and that the weather was against the capitalist cause.

Some capitalist papers were in fact getting ready for their fight. The capitalist papers were taking a very active part in the campaign. The capitalist papers were preparing to put up a strong fight. The capitalist papers were preparing to put up a strong fight. The capitalist papers were preparing to put up a strong fight. The capitalist papers were preparing to put up a strong fight.

A few months ago the Socialist papers were in fact getting ready for their fight. The Socialist papers were taking a very active part in the campaign. The Socialist papers were preparing to put up a strong fight. The Socialist papers were preparing to put up a strong fight. The Socialist papers were preparing to put up a strong fight.

And so we read: "The average man is as much an adventurer in politics as in business. He is as likely to be an independent as a professional politician. He fights for the cause he believes in, and is as likely to be a Democrat as a Republican." These words come from a capitalist paper.

LETTER BOX.

The Republican and the Democratic Parties. New York, Feb. 27.—The Republicans and the Democrats are the two great parties of the country. They are the parties of government and the parties of opposition. They are the parties of the people and the parties of the rich. They are the parties of the present and the parties of the future. They are the parties of the past and the parties of the future. They are the parties of the present and the parties of the future.

W. H. THOMAS.

THE FIELD OF CAPITAL.

The Unifying Movement.

The financial conditions which a prosperous commercial city, such as Chicago, has experienced during the past two years has made it apparent that the time is ripe for a unifying movement to bring about a better state of affairs. The essential feature of such a movement is to reduce the amount of speculation and to increase the amount of sound business. The movement should be based on the following principles:

1. The government should assume a more active part in the regulation of the money market.

2. Banks should be required to maintain a reserve of at least 25% of their deposits.

3. The income tax should be increased to meet the cost of maintaining a government-owned bank system.

4. The government should provide a system of credit for small businesses.

5. The government should encourage the development of local industries.

6. The government should establish a system of national parks.

The movement should be started by a group of influential citizens who are pledged to carry it through to a successful conclusion. These citizens should be selected from all parts of the city, and they should be men of high character and sound business principles. They should be men who are willing to devote their time and energy to the cause of the unifying movement.

The movement should be supported by a large body of people who are convinced of the necessity for its adoption. These people should be convinced that the movement is for the good of the city and that it will bring about a better state of affairs.

The movement should be carried forward in a orderly and systematic manner. It should be conducted in such a way that the public will be satisfied that the movement is being conducted on a sound and business-like basis.

The movement should be continued until it has achieved its objects, and it should be strengthened by the addition of new members whenever necessary.

The movement should be continued until it has achieved its objects, and it should be strengthened by the addition of new members whenever necessary.
