“NOTHING TO ARBITRATE”

WEAVERS FURL, CAPITALIST SLOGAN AT WOLLEN TRUST.

Massachusetts Arbitration Board Turned Down Again—Maddox Preacher Puts Cap on the “Steeplechase” of Somersworth Jard—Pitts His Whites at Church Deer.

FRIDAY, MAY 16.—The executive officers of the weavers' union have refused to arbitrate the settlement of the strike over wages in the Massachusetts woolen mills. The strike has been going on for over three months and it is understood that the weavers have turned down the demands of the union because the employers refuse to grant any increase in wages.

The strike is the result of a dispute over the payment of the “weaver's bonus.” The weavers claim that they are entitled to a bonus of 10 cents per hundred yards of cloth, while the employers refuse to grant it.

AN ADDRESS
To the Workmen Of Minneapolis, Machinists Especially.

Minneapolis Minn., May 1, 1902.
The machinists' craft of this city is represented by the union you have organized, viz: The Socialist Trade & Labor Union, No. 2, of this city. This is a branch of the International Association of Machinists of America.

These two bodies embrace entirely different organizations in theory and practice, and have entirely different methods of doing business. The S. T. & L. U. A. seeks to represent the interests of all workers in a particular trade, but especially those who work as machinists. The I. A. M. is a national organization, representing all workers in the machinists trade, wherever they may be employed.

It is the object of this address to make known to you the general character of this organization, and to show how it stands in relation to the labor movement of the country in general. It is also the object of this address to bring before you the question of the machinists' craft as a whole, and to show how it stands in relation to the labor movement of the country in general.

A Strike of Employers

The first meeting of the I. A. M. was held on April 1, 1901. At this meeting, it was decided to have a strike of all machinists employed in this city, in order to secure better wages and working conditions.

We have been careful to make this strike as broad as possible, and to include all machinists employed in this city, whether employed in the city of Minneapolis or in the city of St. Paul.

The strike is now in full force. We are determined to carry it to a successful conclusion, and we shall not be satisfied until we have secured the wages and working conditions that we demand.

We are confident that the strike will be successful, and we shall not be satisfied until we have secured the wages and working conditions that we demand.

KANGAROO "CLEVERNESS"

A laughable demonstration of it that defeats the pur pose for which it was intended.

Vox populi, vox Dei. Vote for Switzel, the Commercial Club candidate, in the primary, and help us get the Union直辖as away from the Board of Directors. A very real and immediate danger to the board of directors is presented by the Sangamon Valley League, a group of the most active and powerful men in the State. They are now organizing a party of their own, and they are determined to have their way. The campaign is on, and we are ready for it.

The news from the field of labor is a matter of interest to every worker. The employers are trying to drive a wedge between the workers and the trade unions, and they are using every possible means to achieve this end. The trade unions must remain united and strong, and they must fight against all attempts to divide
them.

The news from the field of capital is also important. The big business men are trying to create a climate of fear among the workers, and they are using every possible means to achieve this end. The workers must remain united and strong, and they must fight against all attempts to divide them.

"A DRAMATIC SCENE"

"In Two Acts. The Second Act Capturing the Climate.

The two following articles are from the
"Tribune" of Lawrence, Mass., and will be read with interest by all who are interested in the question of labor and capital.

"There was a great strike in Boston last winter,
and the workers were victorious. The strike was caused by the demand for an 8-hour day.
The employers refused to grant this demand,
and the workers went on strike. The employers were forced to give in, and the strike was settled. The workers are now demanding better hours and working conditions.

and they must fight against all attempts to divide
them.

CAPITALIST "ENTERPRISE"

"Wide Lenses Thereupon One of the Ways of Dealing on Concentrations.

There is one form of activity of our modern commercial life, under which few are safe from the wrath and the threat of concentrated power. This is the "concentration of capital," the "trusts," under which every business is brought under the control of a few powerful interests. The trusts have become so powerful that they can dictate terms
and demands to the workers, and they can make the conditions of labor so unbearable that the workers are forced to accept them.

The trusts are the result of the concentration of capital, and they are the evidence of the failure of our system of free enterprise. The trusts are monopoly, and they are the expression of the power of a few over all the rest. The trusts are the集中 of capital and the destruction of the free enterprise system.

we can to help it."

"ANXIETY"

"In the months that have passed since the war, we have seen a rise in prices, and a decrease in wages. There is a great need for a return to normal conditions.
"The government and the labor unions are responsible for this situation. They have failed to protect the workers, and they have failed to check the increase in prices.

conditions."

THE FRANCO-ENGLISH.

A summary of effect in France, as well as in England, of the Socialist movement has received a new impetus in the form of a book by the famous Socialist whose work is well known to all circles of socialists and workers. The book is entitled "The Socialism of the Socialists," and is a clear and concise exposition of the principles of socialism as well as of the methods of organization and action of the Socialists. It is written in a simple and forcible language, and is likely to have a wide circulation among the working classes of both countries.

SACRAMENTAL LAMB.

The consecration of the sacramental lamb, a custom of the Catholic Church, is celebrated in various parts of the world. In France, the consecration of the lamb was performed in the church of Notre-Dame, Paris, by Bishop de la fare, who is also the Pope of Rome. The lamb, which is a symbol of sacrifice, was offered to the altar and consecrated by the bishop. The ceremony was followed by a solemn mass, which was attended by a large congregation.

The FAKIN'S QUANDARY.

The Fakin, a small town in the state of Kansas, is the scene of a remarkable event. The town is located in a region where the soil is poor and the climate is harsh, and as a result, the inhabitants are forced to make a living by the cultivation of cotton. The Fakin's problem is to find a way to improve their economy and to increase the productivity of their farms. The town is located near the border of Texas, and it is believed that the cultivation of cotton in that region could be profitable. However, the Fakin's residents are not sure how to proceed, and they are seeking advice from experts in the field of agriculture.

The "CATHOLIC UNION AND TIMES." - In the city of Buffalo, there is a group of Catholic workers who have formed a union called the "Catholic Union and Times." The union is composed of workers of various trades and industries, and its object is to promote the welfare of the Catholic workers and to secure better working conditions for them. The union is guided by the principles of Catholicism, and it is affiliated with the National Catholic Union of the United States.

The city of Buffalo is a center of Catholicism in the United States, and the Catholic Union and Times has a large membership. The union is active in organizing strikes and in fighting for the rights of the workers. It has been successful in obtaining better working conditions for its members, and it is considered a model for other Catholic unions in the country.

The "DOES IT NOT FIT TO BE A SOCIALIST?" - A debate was held in the New York State League of Socialists, at which the question "Does it not fit to be a socialist?" was discussed. The debate was attended by a large number of socialist workers, who were divided into two groups. The first group believed that socialism was necessary to bring about a better world, while the second group believed that socialism was unnecessary and would only lead to further confusion. The debate was heated, but in the end, the majority of the workers favored the first group.

POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC.

The political and economic situation in the United States is complex and uncertain. The country is facing a number of challenges, including the depression, the war in Europe, and the struggle for civil rights. The government is under pressure to take action, but it is also faced with the challenge of maintaining economic stability. The situation is complicated by the fact that the government is divided along political lines, and that there are a number of different interest groups with their own agendas.

The American people are sharply divided on the issue of socialism. Some believe that socialism is necessary to bring about a better world, while others believe that it is unnecessary and would only lead to further confusion. The debate is heated, but in the end, the majority of the workers favor the first group.

Bertolt Brecht, "Fear and Freedom." - Bertolt Brecht's play "Fear and Freedom" is a powerful commentary on the political and economic situation in the United States. The play is set in a small town in the Midwest, and it tells the story of a group of workers who are struggling to make ends meet. The town is divided along political lines, and the workers are faced with a number of challenges, including the depression and the war in Europe. The play is a powerful commentary on the political and economic situation in the United States, and it is a reminder of the importance of fighting for a better world.
