To the S. T. L. A.

First—What should be the attitude of the brothers of the S. T. L. A. towards the recent resolutions of the International concerning the attitude of the S. T. L. A. and other unions towards the international? Should the S. T. L. A. bow to the decisions of the International or stand on its own feet and not conform to the wishes of the International? It seems to me that the S. T. L. A. is in a position to decide whether it shall be an independent union, or whether it shall be an obedient daughter of the International. If the S. T. L. A. wishes to remain independent, it should refuse to conform to the resolutions of the International. If the S. T. L. A. wishes to be an obedient daughter of the International, it should conform to the resolutions of the International.

The resolutions of the International do not take into consideration the local conditions of the S. T. L. A. It is necessary for the S. T. L. A. to consider its own conditions and to decide whether it shall be an independent union or an obedient daughter of the International.

LOUISIANA DIRTY OIL

CORRESPONDENCE

To the Editor of THE WORKER:

I am writing to you today to express my concern about the situation in the oil industry in Louisiana. The oil industry is one of the most important industries in the state, and it plays a crucial role in the state's economy. However, the oil industry has been facing several challenges in recent years, including environmental concerns and a decrease in oil prices.

I believe that the government should take action to address these challenges and ensure the long-term sustainability of the oil industry in Louisiana. The government should invest in research and development to find new and more environmentally friendly ways to extract and use oil. Additionally, the government should work with the oil industry to ensure that safety standards are met and that the industry operates in an environmentally responsible manner.

The Work That Tallies

One of the most significant achievements of the S. T. L. A. in the current year is its successful completion of the work that tallies. This project involved the collection and analysis of data from various sources to provide a comprehensive overview of the union's activities and achievements.

The work that tallies was completed in a timely and efficient manner, thanks to the dedication and hard work of the union's members. The results of the work that tallies will be used to guide future decisions and to develop strategies for further growth and development.

Yours sincerely,

The Illusive Trademark

To the Editor of THE WORKER:

I am writing to you today to express my concern about the issue of the illusive trademark. The trademark is an important aspect of the identity and reputation of the union, and it is crucial that we take steps to ensure that it is protected.

I urge the union to take immediate action to address this issue. This may include filing for a trademark with the appropriate authorities, as well as taking legal action against any individuals or organizations that may be infringing on the trademark.

Yours sincerely,
