Militaryism and The Workers

"With the formation of the American Rising (Phillip's Labor Party) it was held that the purpose of government is to protect the interests of a society which is in a state of war and in a constant struggle for survival. The workers to consider is, in what measure a military force as so created appear to serve the purpose of the state. In that life, liberty and happiness which we talk about, and which is the enjoyment of the workers, is it not the workers who are to be considered? Does a military force serve the purpose of the state? Is it not a matter of concern for the workers to consider?"

"If war is a means of securing the survival of a state, and the state is a means of securing the survival of a society, then the workers must consider the implications of these ideas."
The CAUSE OF THE INDUSTRIAL TURMOIL.

The great amount of industrial turmoil that prevails in this country has reached the proportions of a national crisis. The intelligence of all classes of men has been deeply stirred by this, and in many instances has been made to realize that there is something wrong with our social system. The cause of this unrest is to be found in the conditions of labor. There are many factors that contribute to it, but the main cause is the exploitation of the laborer by the employer. The employer tends to exploit the laborer in two ways. First, by paying him a wage that is insufficient to cover his costs of living, and second, by denying him the rights and privileges that are essential to a just and equitable society.

There are many who believe that the solution to this problem lies in the establishment of a socialist state. Others believe that it lies in the establishment of a capitalist state. But the truth is, that the solution lies in the establishment of a state that is neither socialist nor capitalist, but something in between.

The system of capitalism is one in which the employer exploits the laborer in order to make a profit. The system of socialism is one in which the state exploits the laborer in order to make a profit. Both systems are inherently flawed and need to be replaced with a more just and equitable system.

The solution to this problem is to establish a new system of economy, one in which the laborer is the master and the employer is the servant. This system would be based on the principles of cooperation and solidarity, and would seek to ensure that every man is treated fairly and justly.

The time has come for us to stand up and demand that our rights be respected. We must demand that our wages be increased, our working conditions be improved, and our rights be protected. We must demand that our lives be improved, and that our future be secured.

We are the workers of this country, and we will not be exploited any longer. We are the owners of this country, and we will not be oppressed any longer. We are the people of this country, and we will not be ignored any longer.

We demand that our voices be heard, and that our rights be respected. We demand that our lives be improved, and that our future be secured. We demand that our country be led by men and women who will put the needs of the people before the profits of the few. We demand that a new system of economy be established, one in which every man is treated fairly and justly.

We are the workers of this country, and we will not be exploited any longer. We are the owners of this country, and we will not be oppressed any longer. We are the people of this country, and we will not be ignored any longer.

We demand that our voices be heard, and that our rights be respected. We demand that our lives be improved, and that our future be secured. We demand that a new system of economy be established, one in which every man is treated fairly and justly.
RACE CONFLICTS

Two of the most prominent and far-reaching race conflicts in the United States today are the riot in Chicago, sponsored by the Negroes, and the race outbreak in New York City, sponsored by the whites. The former is being handled with caution and restraint by the police and the authorities, while the latter is being met with force and severity.

Chicago Riots

The Chicago riots, in which Negroes and whites have been fighting for several days, have reached a climax. The police have been compelled to use force to maintain order, and the National Guard has been called out. The causes of the riots are复杂的, but the main issue appears to be the struggle for racial equality.

New York Riots

The New York riots, which started last week, have involved thousands of people. The police have been using force to put down the disturbance, and there have been several deaths. The rioters, who are mainly Negroes, demand full citizenship rights and an end to discrimination.

Both conflicts involve complex issues of race, poverty, and social inequality. The authorities are trying to handle them with a mix of restraint and firmness, but the outcomes are uncertain.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT NOTES

July 1, 1932 - The Daily People, a national weekly magazine, is on the market. The magazine is aimed at reaching a wide audience with articles on current events, politics, and culture.

The Daily People's editorial policy is to provide a platform for diverse voices and perspectives. The magazine is committed to promoting social and political change through informed discourse.

The first issue includes articles on the ongoing race conflicts, economic developments, and cultural trends. The magazine is published weekly and distributed nationwide.

If you are interested in subscribing to The Daily People or learning more about the magazine, please visit our website at dailypeople.com.