The history of the rise into public notice of Alphonso Munoz has been a history of bitter struggle between the old and the new. The old was the church, the law, and the social order; the new was the individual, the spirit, and the freedom of the individual. The struggle was not for control of the masses, but for the control of the minds of the masses.

Alfonso Munoz was a man of the old school, a man who believed in the strict interpretation of the law, in the infallibility of the church, and in the unalterable social order. He was a man who could not understand the new ideas, the new spirits, and the new freedom. He was a man who could not understand the individual, the spirit, and the freedom of the individual.

The struggle for control of the minds of the masses was not for the control of the masses, but for the control of the minds of the masses. STEWARDS WORKERS
They Protest and urge Action—Two Interesting Letters

To the Daily and Weekly People,

The following was clipped from the Philadelphia Inquirer of December 23, 1952: "Conditions Are Better; Many Workers Hope for Better Days Ahead." "Many employers have commented favorably on the increased production, which they say is due to the improved working conditions." "Conditions have improved considerably since the beginning of the strike." "Now that the strike is over, we hope to see better days ahead." "We are confident that the future will bring greater prosperity and better conditions for all workers." "We are grateful to you for your support during these trying times."

SCANDINAVIAN CLUBS

From Federation to Push S, L. & T. A. Principles—The Resignation

A conference of the Scandinavian Societies in the East had been called to discuss the federation of the societies and to consider the adoption of S, L. & T. A. principles. This conference was held at the Plaza Hotel in New York City on January 13 and January 14, 1960. The conference was well attended, with representatives from many of the Scandinavian societies in the East.

The conference opened with a brief statement by President John Nielsen of the Scandinavian Society of New York. He welcomed the representatives and expressed the hope that the conference would be successful in achieving the objectives of the federation.

The first session of the conference was devoted to a discussion of the federation. The representatives discussed the advantages and disadvantages of the federation and came to the conclusion that the federation was necessary for the survival of the Scandinavian societies in the East. The representatives also discussed the role of the Scandinavian societies in the federation and came to the conclusion that the Scandinavian societies should have an equal voice in the federation.

The second session of the conference was devoted to a discussion of the S, L. & T. A. principles. The representatives discussed the principles and came to the conclusion that the principles were necessary for the survival of the Scandinavian societies in the East. The representatives also discussed the role of the Scandinavian societies in the implementation of the principles and came to the conclusion that the Scandinavian societies should be responsible for the implementation of the principles.

The conference concluded with a vote to accept the federation and to adopt the S, L. & T. A. principles. The representatives unanimously voted to accept the federation and to adopt the S, L. & T. A. principles.

CLEVELAND CONVENTION
OF S. L. P. Nominates Candidates For Municipal Offices

On January 17, the S. L. P. held their annual convention in Cleveland, Ohio. The convention was attended by representatives from many of the S. L. P. chapters in the United States. The convention was presided over by President John Brown, who was re-elected for another term.

The convention began with the adoption of the rules of order, and was opened by the singing of the Star-Spangled Banner. The national anthem was also sung at the close of the convention.

The convention adjourned at 4:30 p.m., with President John Brown expressing the hope that the S. L. P. would continue to grow and to achieve its objectives.

COMMITTEE ON NOMINATIONS

The committee on nominations, consisting of three members, was appointed at the last meeting of the convention.

The committee on nominations consists of:

- John Brown
- Robert Miller
- James Smith

The committee on nominations is charged with the responsibility of nominating candidates for the municipal offices.

The manor of Ploumessur. The castle of Ploumessur VI—the nutcracker, situated about thirty-two miles from Brest, and flanked by two double lines of ramparts, dominated the country for many miles around. The moment one crossed the stone bridges that spanned the valleys and the streams, one was transported from the streets of a modern town into the heart of the past, into a world of splendor and mystery.

The entrance to Ploumessur is guarded by a large gateway, flanked by two towers, and decorated with intricate carvings. The flanks of the gateway are adorned with bas-reliefs of Roman soldiers, and the archway is supported by massive stone pillars. The door of the gateway is massive, and is flanked by two tall, stone sentinels, each holding a sword. The castle itself is built of granite, and is surrounded by a deep moat, which is spanned by a drawbridge. The walls of the castle are thick and high, and are reinforced with circular towers, each of which is surmounted by a lookout platform.

The interior of the castle is vast and imposing. The great hall is filled with splendor, and is decorated with frescoes and tapestries. The rooms are adorned with fine furniture, and the walls are lined with portraits of the nobility. The council chamber is particularly impressive, with its high ceilings and grand marble columns.

The chapel of Ploumessur is a masterpiece of gothic architecture, with its soaring arches and stained glass windows. The altar is made of red marble, and is covered with gold leaf. The tomb of the founder of the castle, a nobleman named Ploumessur, lies beneath the altar, and is accompanied by a marble statue of the knight in full armor.

The kitchen, with its large hearth and rows of pots, is a testament to the cooking traditions of medieval times. The castle also features a large underground cellar, used to store food and wine for the castle's many guests.

In the courtyard, a group of knights on horseback were engaged in a jousting tournament, the sound of their horses' hooves echoing through the stone walls. The tournament was a test of skill and strength, with the victor receiving a prize of arms and honor.

The castle of Ploumessur, with its grandeur and history, is a living testament to the glory of the past. It is a place where one can step back in time and imagine the lives of the nobility who once called it home. Today, the castle is open to the public, and is a popular destination for visitors who come to marvel at its beauty and learn about its rich history.

BREWHERS ON TOP

Every marriage man has somewhere on the habits of his mind a brand mark, on which to enter the facts that ex- p... and the man who has not made up his mind. Consequent upon this, they have become more and more strong enough to enable them to afford to work much better.

On that broad margin of the habit of the minds of the vast numbers of Americans, there is this point of view: one between the Socialist Labor Party and the Socialist Labor League. Democratic Party can be seen to pay off to one another as a matter of indifference to their respective leaders. The fact is that they do work to-day and the (name) in this state to transfer the seat of the National Committee of the Socialist Labor Party to the State Committee of the Socialist Labor League.

The Pilgrim's Shell

of the man-at-arms, the brave men of the army, the sturdy, the humble, the laborer, the farmer, the mechanic, the artisan, the shoemaker, all joined in the great procession. It was a sight to see, a sight to remember. The country is far away, but in your hearts, in your memories, in your souls, they live on, they breathe, they are as near as the stars in the sky, forever shining down on you. The spirit of this great people, this great nation, will never die. It will live on through all time, for it is a part of our heritage, a part of our history, a part of our very existence. May we forever honor and remember the Pilgrims, and the courage, the spirit, the determination, the sacrifice, that they gave for the sake of freedom. Amen.
