Evolution of the Glass Chimney Industry

A revolution was wrought in the manufacture of chimneys in this country in 1895 by the introduction of a labor saving device known as the glass chimney. It was a simple device, consisting of a glass tube, 30, 40, or 50 feet long, into which the working-man could climb, and from which he could light a fire without leaving the tent or the shelter of the tent. It was a vast improvement over the old-fashioned metal chimney, and it was a great saving to the working-man. It was a great improvement over the old-fashioned metal chimney, and it was a great saving to the working-man.

REDUCED HOURS
Who Profit From Them, Employer or Employees—Case in Point

In the issue of June 20 of the Socialist Labor newspaper Against the Capital, a discussion of the reduced working hours question has been presented briefly. In the last issue it was stated that the workers were being denied the right to work more than 30 hours a week.

On August 25, Chief Justice Homer W. Eley, in a speech before the joint meeting of the Socialists and the Socialists, said that it was a matter of great importance that the workers should have the right to work more than 30 hours a week.

On page twenty was found Constance E. Yost, the American Socialist Congress, with the greatest of effort, proclaiming, in the rich, red soil of Wisconsin, the enfranchisement of the common farmer. The soil is rich and red, and so is the common farmer, and so is the soil where his plow has been plowed and where his seed has been sown.
