The Trend Coolieward

By Eugene S. Blackman

The report states that 20,000,000 of the population of China are employed in the coolie trade. Of these, 80 per cent are engaged in the coolie trade, 20 per cent in the rural industries, and the remainder in the industrial centers. The coolie industry is divided into three main classes: the coolie laborers, the coolie contractors, and the coolie merchants. The coolie laborers are employed on the plantations, in the mines, and in the factories. The coolie contractors are engaged in the transportation of goods and materials. The coolie merchants are engaged in the wholesale and retail trade of goods. The coolie laborers are the most numerous class, and are employed in the coolie trade on the plantations and in the mines. The coolie contractors are engaged in the transportation of goods and materials. The coolie merchants are engaged in the wholesale and retail trade of goods.

WEEKLY PEOPLE, SATURDAY, JUNE 23, 1894

 groomed with a cloth duster, his tie with a bow, and his coat with a lapel, he was a picture of the man who in a few minutes would be shouting at the people on the sidewalks. His hat was a neat little cap, his face had a thoughtful expression, and his eyes were bright.

"Good morning, gentlemen," he said in a quiet voice. "I am a simple man, and I have a simple idea. I believe in the people, and I believe in the power of the people." He paused, as if to let his words sink in. "I believe that if we work together, we can overcome any obstacle."

The crowd around him listened with rapt attention. "I want to ask you a question," he continued. "What are we fighting for? What is it that we are trying to achieve? Is it money? Power? Prestige? No, it is something more. We are fighting for a better world, for a world where every person has the right to a fair share of the resources."

The audience nodded in agreement. "We are fighting for justice," the man said. "Justice for the poor, justice for the working class. We must stand up for our rights and we must fight for what we believe in."

"And we will do it," he declared, "with the help of the people. Together we can change the world." His voice grew stronger as he spoke. "We will stand together, we will work together, and we will win."

The crowd cheered, and the man beamed with satisfaction. "Thank you," he said. "Thank you for listening to me."

And with that, he turned and walked away, leaving the crowd in a state of excitement and anticipation. The man had spoken, and the people had listened. And together, they would change the world.
CORRESPONDENCE

AS TO THE INTERNATIONAL UNION.

To The Editor, "Weekly People"—

I have been urgently requested by the members of the Chicago Local of the International Workmen's Association to write to you and tell you of the condition of affairs in that city. The I. W. W. in Chicago is in a strong condition. The movement is being steadily advanced by the Social Democratic Party. It is the duty of the American Socialists to encourage workers in every way possible to further the cause of Social Democracy. I, therefore, place myself at your disposal and ask you to print what I have to say.

We had a good deal of business in the week, and the members of the Business Department are working well.

The class war.

We must now consider the class war. It is the battle of the masses against the rich in whatever form they may present themselves. It is the battle of the common man against the millionaire. It is the battle of the working man against the capitalist. It is the battle of the people against the few. It is the battle of the public against the private. It is the battle of the poor against the rich. It is the battle of the weak against the strong. It is the battle of the underdog against the mighty.
