STENOGRAPHERS REPORT OF THE CHICAGO CONVENTION
JUNE 27-18, 1905

REASONS FOR THE MANIFESTO

According to the report of the Congress on Rules and Order of Business, a number of the delegates present on the convention of the Industrial Workers of the World, the time on Thursday, June 26, after the regular order of business had been completed, and the report of the stenographers and other matters were presented. A delegation of Delegates and Delegates, addressing the National Convention, closed the session with a high and inspiring oration in the evening.

We are here because we want the trade union movement to be real and effective, and we are not here to refuse it. We are therefore not here to refuse the trade union movement. We are here to make it real. We are here to make it effective. We are here to make it strong. We are here to make it progressive.

The trade union movement is to-day under the control of the American Federation of Labor. If the American Federation of Labor were the only labor organization in this country, the trade union movement would be the only organization in this country. If there were no American Federation of Labor, the trade union movement would be the only organization in this country.

The American Federation of Labor has numbers, but the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor has power. The executive committee of the American Federation of Labor has power because it has numbers. The executive committee of the American Federation of Labor has power because it has numbers.

On Boston Common

As the rain continued during the middle of the afternoon, the crowd, consisting of thousands of people, gathered around the Boston Common. The weather was gray and overcast, but the mood was one of determination.

But such a little thing as incident weather does not deter the militant Sociologist in his campaign of education. The work of the Boston Common is making a record-breaking hit for the Socialist League.

Nevertheless, the fact that the weather was unpleasant did not prevent the crowd from growing as the sun set. The people in the crowd were determined to spread the message of Socialism, even if they had to stand in the rain.

The vigil continued until late at night, with speeches made by prominent figures in the Socialist League. The crowd remained united, despite the unfavorable weather conditions.

The Boston Common remains a symbol of the resilience and determination of the Socialist League in the face of adversity. It serves as a reminder that even in the most difficult of circumstances, the fight for a better world can continue.

More Impressions of the Chicago Convention

To New York, in 1890, I. L. Judson sent a message to the Labor Union leaders: "We shall not make the men happy. But each of you, in his own way, must do the best he can for the men."

In 1901, I. L. Judson, the President of the Chicago Convention, wrote a letter to the delegates:

"I have been reading through the resolutions presented at the convention, and I must say that I am greatly impressed by the splendid spirit with which the delegates have approached their work."

Throughout the convention, there was a strong sense of unity and purpose. The delegates worked tirelessly to address the challenges faced by working people.

The convention was a turning point in the history of the labor movement. It marked the beginning of a new era of activism and solidarity.

The delegates, united in their commitment to the cause of workers' rights, made the necessary changes to the constitution of the American Federation of Labor, ensuring its continued growth and influence.

The Chicago Convention was a testament to the power of collective action and the necessity of working together towards a common goal.

FEAR DISCUSSION.

"Socialism" Do Not Wish to Be REPUBLICAN.

Pittsburgh, July 30.—The following report of editors will explain themselves.

"Pittsburgh Post, July 30.—Our readers will doubtless be interested in the fact that the Pittsburgh Republican has published an article, which states that the Socialists have requested a meeting under the auspices of the Republican party. We are, therefore, publishing the following report of the meeting, which was held on the afternoon of July 29, in the rooms of the Republican club.

"Socialists were invited to the meeting by the Republican party, but the Socialists declined to accept the invitation. The meeting was called to order by the Republican chairman, who read a resolution expressing the desire of the Republican party to promote peace and understanding between the two parties. The resolution was then referred to a committee of five, consisting of Mr. J. A. Bessey, Mr. W. H. Fisher, Mr. J. W. Hertz, Mr. W. H. Johnson, and Mr. J. A. Brown.

"The committee reported favorably on the resolution, and the meeting adjourned without further action.

INDUSTRIAL UNIONISM.

"As seen by a "Socialist" Party Member—Its Relation to the Socialist Movement.

"The Socialist Labor Party members have always looked to labor unions as the best means of promoting the cause of labor. They have always been active in organizing labor unions, and have been successful in promoting the cause of labor in this country.

"But the Socialist Labor Party members are not satisfied with the results of their efforts. They believe that the labor unions must be organized on a larger scale, and that the Socialist Labor Party must take an active part in the work of organizing the labor unions.

"The Socialist Labor Party members are now working to organize the labor unions on a larger scale, and they are making good progress. They are now working to organize the labor unions in the cities of the United States, and they are making good progress.

VEAL IN NEW ENGLAND.

"Veal in New England, Another Good Day for Market.

"For the second day in succession, veal in New England sold in wholesale markets at a lower price than yesterday. This is the second day in succession that veal has sold below the price of yesterday. The price of veal is now lower than it was a year ago.

BOOK LIST.

"Labor Songs and Whistle Music.

"Listed below are some of the labor songs and whistle music that are now popular among the workers in the United States. These songs and music are sung at meetings, in the factories, and on the streets.
