"MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP,

PLATFORM OF THE SOCIALIST LABOR PARTY OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, ADOPTED
SEPTEMBER 9, 1905.

In present society, Labor, mental and physical, is ruled by a class of Capitalists, who are the owners of the means of production, and who, as such, control the apparatus of national authority. These Capitalists, as a group, produce all wealth. They own all Capital, trust and control. C. L. M., and naturalization of the natural resources and materials of the world. They control the whole wealth of the world, and therefore own all wealth, because they are the owners of the means of production. That the means of production are owned by the world, and not individually owned by wealthholders, is a fact of history, and a fact of science. The industrial system, as it is now organized, is irrevocably fixed, and is based upon the principles of Capitalism, the ownership of the means of production. The capitalist, as a class, is the landlord of the world. He is the owner of the land, the water, the roads, the air, and the sea. He is the owner of the resources of the world. He is the owner of the raw materials of the world. He is the owner of the labor of the world. He is the owner of the products of the world. He is the owner of the wealth of the world. He is the owner of the world. He is the owner of the human race. He is the owner of the world.
He is the owner of the world. He is the

MEUNIER’S ART

IT'S POPULARIZING CHARACTER EXHIBITED BY MANY WRITERS IN LAMPS

CONSTANCE MEUNIER, the Belgian writer, who died in Brussels recently, has done for the industrial worker something which few have done, namely, that which, more than any other, is the distinctive characteristic of the writer of the new generation of socialists — the revealing of the mysteries of the workshop. She has done this in a manner that is both clear and forceful, and she has done it with such a persuasive power that she has won the hearts of those who were formerly hostile to the cause of labor.

In her work, Meunier has been a true apostle of socialism, and her writings have been a powerful instrument in the hands of the working class. She has shown that socialism is not a vague and abstract theory, but a practical and concrete reality, which can be achieved only through the organized labor movement.

In her most recent work, Meunier has given an account of the conditions of life in the factories of Belgium. She has described the terrible working conditions, the long hours of labor, and the low wages paid to the workers. She has shown that the only way to improve these conditions is through the organization of the workers into trade unions, and the struggle for better wages and working conditions.

Meunier’s writings have been widely read, and her works have been translated into many languages. She has been a leader in the socialist movement, and her influence has been felt not only in Belgium, but also in other countries.

BANKRUPTCY KATZ’S TOUR

DANBURY, CONN.

EVENTS THAT ARE CASTING THEIR SHADOWS AHEAD.

A.J. Katz and the Members of the American Bankruptcy Conference, which includes all members of Trade Council of America, are meeting here to consider the future of the nation’s banking system. For the first time in the history of the conference, all the representatives were present at once, and the discussions were frank and open. The conference was attended by representatives of all the major banks in the country, and the issues discussed were of the utmost importance.

To the 76 members of the conference, the word “bankruptcy” was not a foreign concept. They had all seen its effects firsthand, and they knew the damage it could cause to the economy. The conference was an opportunity for them to discuss the best ways to prevent future bankruptcies and to help those who are already in financial trouble.

Robert J. McNamara, the keynote speaker, emphasized the importance of early intervention. “Bankruptcy is not a cure-all,” he said. “It is a last resort. We must work to prevent it from happening in the first place.”

The conference ended with a call to action. “We cannot afford to let bankruptcy happen,” McNamara said. “We must work together to ensure that it never happens again.”
LOCKS, EARLY MORNING: "Reading a newspaper, I could not help noticing the similarity in the language used to describe the problems of the world and those of the individual. It's as though the world is a microcosm of the human condition." —London Times

NEWS FROM THE WATERFRONT

The news from the waterfront is that the Industrial Workers of the World has called a strike, affecting all workers on the waterfront. The strike is expected to last for several days, and all work is halted until further notice. The workers are demanding better wages and working conditions, and the company is opposed to the strike. This is a major conflict between labor and management, and it is expected to be resolved through negotiations or by force of law.

ARTICLES OF CONFEDERATION

AS TO THE ARTICLES OF CONFEDERATION

Newark, September 19th, 1843.

The Federal Convention of 1787 established the Articles of Confederation, which was the first constitution of the United States. The Articles of Confederation were intended to create a loose federation of states, with each state retaining much of its sovereignty. The Articles were ultimately replaced by the Constitution of 1789, which created a stronger central government.

LETTER-BOX

THE LION'S DEN

New York, September 19th, 1843.

To the Editor, "The Lion's Den":

I am writing to express my support for the strike by the Industrial Workers of the World. I believe that workers should have the right to organize and demand better wages and working conditions. The company is wrong to oppose the strike, and I urge them to negotiate with the workers to find a resolution.
