OPEN LETTER FROM J. D. DE LA RUE TO A. M. SIMMONS

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

NOTE

Congress, not enough of you are at the Union Labor Party. We need you, or we will receive nothing of the Union Labor Party upon our circuit. It is too bad that the leadership of the LCP is not better. The people are better educated, under effective leadership, the party is well organized, and the greatest enemy that the people have is the Capitalist. This is where the power of the people is. We are building a party of the people, and we will continue to do so. We need your support to achieve these goals.

As to Haywood: while some of his speech was not entirely accurate, it is a little better than the usual Socialist position, but he is right in the main. The speeches of the Southern Socialists are not clear, and they are not delivered in the same manner. As to De La Rue, his position on the labor movement is a matter of interpretation.

The Socialists of the Western States have a large field of work to be done, and the work is not yet finished. The United States is still in the making, and the Socialist party is the only one that can accomplish this task. The Socialist party is the only one that can bring the workers together and lead them to victory.

Obverse and Reverse

The Vanouver B. J. C. World Clartin, from J. H. Kishiwatswae, a Socialist par-ty member of Parliament, has just published a series of articles in the Workers' World of the B. J. C. in which he discusses the "Tillers of Society." He says that the Tiller of Society is a man who has achieved political influence and power through honest and unselfish service to the people. He is a man who has won the respect of his fellow workers by his devotion to the public welfare. He is a man who has shown a willingness to sacrifice his own interests for the good of all. His beliefs are based on the principles of Socialism, which he believes is the only system of society that can guarantee the well-being of all. He is a man who has fought for the rights of the workers and the oppressed, and who has fought against the injustices of the capitalist system. His work is a model for all who wish to make a real contribution to the betterment of society.

What happened on November 23, the District Attorney said: "As a lawyer I am not a judge, but I am bound by my duty to the court to state the facts as I have them to be ascertained, considering the Commonwealth's evidence and the evidence of the defendant's counsel as well."

Judge James B. F. A. M. said: "It is a difficult and serious matter, but I am bound by the law to engage in this investigation."

"As a whole, the evidence presented by the witnesses is not conclusive, but it is sufficient to go on."

The defendant is a man of thirty-five years of age, who has been charged with the murder of a man in the city of Chicago.

The evidence presented by the police was as follows:

"The defendant, who is a native of the city, was found dead in his room on November 23. The room was a small, furnished apartment, and the body was found on the floor, with the head of the deceased resting on the floor. The room was well kept, and there was nothing unusual about the place."

"The defendant had been seen in the apartment on the afternoon of November 23. He was last seen leaving the apartment at about 4 o'clock, and was not seen again until the following morning."

"The police were called to the apartment by the landlady, who heard a noise and went to investigate. When she entered the room, she found the body of the deceased. The landlady said that she had not seen the deceased for some time, and that she had not been in the apartment for several days."

"The police searched the apartment and found a number of objects that were of interest. They found a small bag of money, a few letters, and a watch. They also found a gun, which was later identified as the gun that had been used in the murder."

"The gun was traced to the defendant, who was arrested on the next day. He was questioned, and he confessed that he had killed the deceased.

"The defendant was tried on the charge of murder, and he was convicted. He was sentenced to life in prison."

The defendant appealed, and the case was heard by the appellate court. The court upheld the conviction, and the defendant was sentenced to life in prison. He has appealed to the Supreme Court, but the case has not yet been decided.

The story is told in detail in the attached article. The article is based on the official records of the case, and it is published with the permission of the police department.
The Russian Revolution.

The daily and weekly press is filled with accounts of the revolutionary events in Russia. The situation is so critical and rapidly changing that it is impossible to keep abreast of the news. The Bolsheviks, led by Lenin, have taken control of the government and are moving quickly to establish a socialist state. The provisional government has been overthrown, and a new constitution is being written.

The Bolsheviks have promised land to the peasants and peace to the soldiers. They have also promised to end the war with Germany. The revolution has spread throughout the country, and there is a great deal of enthusiasm among the workers and peasants.

The situation is very unstable, and there is a great deal of violence. The counter-revolutionaries are trying to overthrow the Bolsheviks, and there are frequent clashes between the two sides. The Bolsheviks have the support of the workers and peasants, but they are facing a difficult struggle.

The United States government has been watching the situation closely. They are concerned about the possibility of a Bolshevik revolution spreading to other countries. The American government is trying to remain neutral, but they are keeping a close eye on the situation.

The revolution has had a significant impact on the world. It has thrown into question the stability of the capitalist system and has inspired other countries to consider revolutionary change. The United States government is closely following the situation, and they are watching to see what happens next.
