IN THE ARENA

John D. Rockefeller, the reputed head of the Standard Oil Company, is 67 years old. He is also the world's richest man, and in his 67 years has amassed a fortune estimated at $1,000,000,000. His opposition is set, and he has been described as "looking very much like a king." His empire has been described as "a system of production, power, and wealth which is incomparably greater than any other in history." His wealth is vast, his influence is great, and he is determined to protect it at all costs. The world has watched as Rockefeller has used his power and wealth to influence politics, economics, and society. The question is: what will he do next?

In parallel, millions of people are working to change the world, seeking justice and equality for all. Their struggle is not easy, but they are determined to make a difference. The world is watching as these individuals fight for their rights, demanding justice and fairness. The question is: will they succeed in their fight?

The world is divided. The rich and powerful seek to maintain their control, while the poor and oppressed fight for their freedom. The question is: will the world ever learn to share and care, or will it continue to divide and conquer?

In this arena, the struggle rages on. Who will win? Only time will tell.
ANECDOTE AND THE I. W. W.

THE APPLICATION OF A GREAT FACT OF HISTORY TO PRESENT-DAY CONDITIIONS.

So much as they would like one of their men to be the first to volunteer for the I. W. W.'s great work, and for their brethren following, few persons gave the matter any thought. This was in no way due to any feeling on the part of the I. W. W. to the socialistic party, for the I. W. W. is as it stands, not the outcome of the revolution of 1905, or the revolution of 1894, or the revolution of 1902. NOTES ON THE STUTTGART CONGRESS

By Earl A. Leath

PROGRESS IN SELF-RELIANCE.

In his important paper, "Progress in the Development of the Motor-Luxus," delivered at the International Congress of the Motor-Luxus Company, Mr. Leath reviewed the progress of the motor industry in various parts of the world. He showed that the industry had made great strides since the Congress of 1907, and that the leading companies had made remarkable progress.

The Congress was held in Stuttgart, Germany, and was attended by representatives of the leading motor companies of the world. The Congress was presided over by Dr. Leath, who is the president of the Motor-Luxus Company.

The Congress was divided into two sessions. In the first session, Mr. Leath reviewed the progress of the industry in various parts of the world. He showed that the industry had made great strides since the Congress of 1907, and that the leading companies had made remarkable progress.

In the second session, Mr. Leath discussed the future prospects of the industry. He showed that the industry was likely to continue to make rapid progress, and that the leading companies would continue to play a leading role in the development of the industry.

The Congress was a great success, and it is expected that it will have a profound effect on the development of the motor industry.

J. H. CHICAGO, ILL.—It is true that the law of New York and other states require that a person must have a license to keep, possess, and carry a weapon. However, this does not mean that the person is not allowed to carry a weapon. The person is allowed to carry a weapon, but only if the person has a valid license to do so. The person is allowed to carry a weapon, but only if the
