WHITHER ARE WE DRIFTING?

NOTES AND COMMENTS BY MITCHELL M. SHAYN, STUDENT OF THE ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY.

Our modern society evolved gradually, from an agrarian to an industrial, from an economy based on the land and labor to one based on goods and services. The conditions of life and work have changed significantly, evolving from the subsistence economy to the market economy. With the advent of industrialization, workers moved from the rural to the urban areas, and the workforce expanded rapidly. The conditions of life and work have changed significantly, evolving from the subsistence economy to the market economy.

We are in the process of experiencing a profound transformation of our society and economy. The industrial revolution has transformed our world, and we are still in the process of adapting to these changes. The economy has shifted from one based on agriculture to one based on industry, and this shift has had significant implications for the way we live and work.
