BROTHERS' FALL OUT

LOUISVILLE MINERS JARRED BY COMPANY

Five Per Cent, Reduction Doesn't Last Very Long, They Decide on Strike—Steve Winchell Satisfied with Contract

Louisville, May 1—There is的具体性
new strike now in progress in Louisville where it was a matter of utmost importance that the senior members of the brotherhood ofjomers should be satisfied with the contract offered by the company.

The negotiations were handled by the representatives of the men and the management, and the result of the talks was a gratifying one to both sides.

The senior members of the brotherhood are pleased with the terms of the contract and are satisfied with the conditions offered by the company.

The strike was initiated by the dissatisfaction of the senior members with the terms offered by the company, and the company agreed to accept the demands of the men.

The strike was called after several attempts to settle the dispute had failed.

Several dollars are at risk in the strike, and other transportation companies are also threatened.

The strike is expected to last several days, and the company is prepared to meet the demands of the workers.

New Program Based on Pittsburg Industry Claims to Serve as the Basis for a National Plan of Compulsory Health Insurance

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company has been more than a manufacturer of high-quality electronic equipment and appliances. It has also been a leader in the development of comprehensive and innovative health care programs for its employees. The Westinghouse program, which was introduced in the early 1920s, became a model for other employers and influenced the development of the modern health care system in the United States.

The Westinghouse program was based on the principles of preventive medicine and the belief that health care should be a benefit of employment. The company provided comprehensive health care coverage, including medical, dental, and drug coverage, at no cost to the employee. This was a significant departure from the norm of the time, where health care was often expensive and inaccessible.

The program was also innovative in its approach to workplace safety and security. The company invested heavily in safety training and equipment, and it established a dedicated police force to maintain order and prevent accidents. This focus on safety and security helped to create a positive work environment and boost employee productivity.

The Westinghouse program was a model for other employers and influenced the development of the modern health care system in the United States. It demonstrated the benefits of comprehensive health care coverage and the importance of workplace safety and security. The program remains an important example of how employers can invest in their employees' well-being and contribute to a healthier workforce.

CAPITALISM VERSUS THE UNITED WORKER

Capitalism is a system which has been taken in hand by the capitalist class and which has been imposed on the workers by the workers themselves. It is a system which is based on the exploitation of the worker and on the accumulation of wealth by the capitalist class. It is a system which is opposed to the interests of the workers and to the well-being of society as a whole.

The workers must not accept this system as inevitable. They must struggle against it and work towards its overthrow.
