A CHARITY PRODUCT

The Weekly People

One James Ford, who is advertised as a "specialist in California for the benefit of the county's poor," has been invited to a luncheon at the home of a prominent citizen in this city, and long an admirer of Mr. Ford's work in the "out-of-door" line, is courting the incorporation of a National Association that is conducting a large-scale survey of the "frontier line" in the West. Mr. Ford, however, has been in charge of the "broad front" in the state for several years, and in his efforts to make the "out-the-door" line as efficient as possible, he has been in constant touch with the state, county, and municipal governments of the district.

The National Association is "Investigating the causes and effects of destitution," it is stated, and "making a study of the conditions of the poor and the methods of alleviation." The series of reports, which will cover about 1,200 counties, began with an exhibit of this kind on the floor of the Senate Chamber in the series, "The Iron Front," have already been conducted in the thirteenth state. The "Iron Front" is a movement to supply, with the support of the people, the public schools, and the communities, all material for the education of the poor, from the educational period to the state and national level.

"We are not satisfied," asserts the Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor, Mr. Ford, who has been an eloquent advocate of the labor movement, "that the poor are not being educated to the very best advantage in this country. We must have the educational period before the labor movement can become organized and urban or rural." (The New York Times)

A QUESTION OF TACTICS

A PARTY OF SOCIALISM, IN ORDER TO TRIUMPH, MUST BE POSED AS SOME REAL REVOLUTIONARY PRINCIPLES.

By Louis C. Finlay.

The controversy that has been agitating the New York Socialist party during the last month has centered about the question of tactics. A large element of the party has insisted that in order to gain the confidence of the masses, reform and agitation must be used as means of converting the working class. The defenders of these views are said to be the "Social-Democrats," while the "Communists" are said to be the advocates of "struggle."

The controversy centers about the question of whether or not the Social-Democrats have correctly interpreted the principle of the party, and if it is necessary to adopt a new method of tactics. The Commune League has just stated that the controversy has arisen because the Social-Democrats have not understood the principles of the party, and that a new method of tactics must be adopted. The Communists have also called attention to the fact that the Social-Democrats have not understood the principle of the party, and that a new method of tactics must be adopted.

CRISSES AND THE WAY OUT

CAPITALIST OWNERSHIP OF MEANS OF PRODUCTION MUST GIVE WAY TO SOCIAL OWNERSHIP

Since 1945, when the first general development of the capitalist market economy became clearly perceptible, it passed through a period of continuous growth. In the 1950s and 1960s, this growth was marked by a steady increase in productivity and a corresponding rise in the living standards of the working class. However, this period also saw the emergence of new social problems, such as rising levels of unemployment, inflation, and economic inequality.

In the 1960s and 1970s, the capitalist economy experienced a period of rapid growth, driven by technological innovation and the expansion of the global market. However, this growth was accompanied by a rise in social unrest and political radicalism, as the mass of the working class sought to challenge the prevailing order and demand a more equitable distribution of wealth.

Since the 1980s, the capitalist economy has faced a series of crises, including the 1987 stock market crash, the 1990-1991 recession, and the 2008-2009 financial crisis. These crises have highlighted the inherent instability of the capitalist system and the need for a fundamental transformation.

In contrast, socialist systems, characterized by state ownership of the means of production, have been able to provide a more stable and equitable foundation for economic development. Socialist systems have been able to invest in long-term development projects, provide universal access to healthcare and education, and ensure social welfare for all citizens.

Conclusion

The crises and challenges faced by capitalist systems highlight the need for a fundamental transformation. The socialist option, with its emphasis on state ownership and social welfare, offers a more stable and equitable foundation for economic development. The struggle for a socialist future is one of the central concerns of the contemporary world.

D. L. P. AGITATION IN PHIL. To the Daily and Weekly People—
Beginning April 1, the D. L. P. is in charge of the work in the Philippines. Last Saturday night, a meeting was held at the old stand, Fortieth street, Philadelphia, and it was attended by a large crowd, General Edward and Congressman John. With the high prices and the situation generally, the meeting was a great success.

On Sunday night at the City Hall the D. L. P. held another meeting, and the crowd was over a thousand. The speakers were Dr. Joseph A. Pender, President of the Board of Education, and Mr. John F. Boylan, a candidate for the Board of Aldermen. The meeting was well attended, and the speakers made a strong appeal for the people to support the D. L. P.

SALES OF "DAILY PEOPLE" IN SEATTLE To the Daily and Weekly People—
I am told that the sales of the "Daily People" in Seattle have been increasing steadily, and that the paper is now doing a good business. I am glad to hear this news, as it shows that the people of Seattle are becoming more interested in the political and social issues of the day.

Gillespie spoke on the necessity of class-conscious unity of the working class. He emphasized the unity of the working class as a whole, and the necessity for all workers to work together for the common good. He said that the working class must be united in order to defeat the capitalist class, and that the only way to achieve this is through the formation of a workers' party.

The meeting was well attended, and the speakers made a strong appeal for the people to support the D. L. P.

S. P. ASKING FOR SOROS Your correspondent in Bolshevik is in receipt of a letter from a member of the S. P. asking for some money on a single payment. That person is willing to accept any amount of money that the Bolsheviks can spare. Please send any sum you can spare to the Bolsheviks.

Among the demands of the Bolsheviks is the strengthening of the workers' control over the factories. This is one of the main demands of the S. P. and it is a demand that should be met by the workers themselves. The Bolsheviks believe that the workers should have the right to control the factories and to determine how they are to be run. This is a demand that should be met by the workers themselves.

F. P. MEET AT COLUMBUS At Columbus, Ohio, on October 3, the Socialists will hold a meeting to discuss the situation in the United States. It is expected that the meeting will be well attended, and that the speakers will make a strong appeal for the people to support the S. P.

Two Lectures By Daniel B. De Leon, Editor of The Daily People.

Some of the things that I plan to speak about in these lectures are the following:

1. The history of the labor movement in the United States.
2. The role of the labor movement in the development of the working class.
3. The struggle for international socialism.
4. The struggle for the abolition of capitalism.

I hope that these lectures will be of interest to all who are interested in the labor movement and in the struggle for a better world.
