The Mother Goose rhymes, that furnish the quotation for to-day's issue, justify the suspicion that these hitherto supposed innocent-looking nursery jingles were gotten up with deep political intent, by some far-smelling prophetic soul. How else explain the mystery of the rhymes of to-day's quotation being so complete, so startling an all around fit? They do not merely illumine the policy and plight of the S. P.; what is most remarkable is their simultaneous incarnating of the said policy and plight in the policy and plight of A. M. Simons, Editor, now of Walling letter celebrity, and doing so with his very name. The "Simple Simon" Mother Goose rhymes suggest the idea that the whole Mother se set is a sort of inspired crypt, a sort of Sibylline Books that prophetically unfold the future.

Our Brit'sh friends have frequently expressed themselves shocked at the severity of American language in political polemics. It would seem, however, that our mild-languaged British friends are fast acquiring American bad manners. Before the Budget was thrown out, one Lord called another a "liar"; and now, after the Budget has been thrown out by the Lords, "Reynolds's Newspaper" of last November 28 speaks of the action of the Lords as "tomfoolery" fit only to delude "the bumkins"; refers to the Lords themselves irreverently as "high-nunded band of coroneted hum bugs"; calls them a "hereditary quackery"; speaks of their posture as that of a body that stands "in burglarious fashion" on the industrial highway; and singles out Lord Landsdowne as "a political gambler." All of which is very true, but very strong-and, in genuine American S. L. P. style, none too strong, being true. At any rate pretty good for a "Great is America!" exclatmed Baron Tilo von Wilmowski who is touring the country with the Baroness, his wife, who was a Miss Krupp, the daughter of the cannon-maker of Germany, whose nasty-lewd life the German Socialists exposed. And "Great!" echoed the Baroness as she saw the Chicago Hull House where narcotics are dealt out to keep the workers in subjection, so different from the way things are in Germany, where, despite the Kaiser's intervention in behalf of her disreputable father, the workingdously that, if our memory serves us right, the Socialist candidate was elected in the Krupp district, and the Krupp candidate defeated. No wonder that, as the Baron and Baroness thought of the contrast their admiration of America knew no bounds.

The "Contrast, yet Parallel," published in this issue is a documentary and specific all-around vindication of the S. L. P. It vindicates the S. L. P. posture towards the structure of the S. P. as so fundamentally defective that, whatever success the S. P. might seem to meet for a time, the crazy thing was bound speedily to break down utterly.

It vindicates the S. L. P. posture towards the collective morale of the S. P. leadership as so utterly scurvy that, knowing the jig was up at home, it sought a prolongation of seeming existence by an attempt to pile one more deception upon our European comrades concerning itself and concerning the

It vindicates the disciplinary system of the S. L. P., which makes impossible the extended continuation in its ranks of such reptilian characters as the Simons letter proves himself and his associates

If "trade follows the flag," surely the flag follows the missionary. Here is Robert E. Speer, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions holding, at the annual dinner of the Presbyterian Union in this city, language that means nothing if it does not mean to be called a head? Yes. The tapeworm | Capitalism-egg the United States into a war with the South American States, in the interest of course of trade. Accordingly, the neat four-horse tandem is revealed of, the flag following the missionary, trade following the flag, and the bayonet following trade. Missionary at one end, bayonet at the other.

Score one for Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst. Upon her arrival in London the noted suffragist contrasted the conduct of the United States in the case of the two American adventurers who joined riots in Nicaragua, and in the case of the American Suffragette Alice Paul, now in a British prison for a trifling offence, if offend she did the law by throwing through a window of the Guildhall a stone wrapped in a suffrage message. The contrast is, indeed, striking. In the one case war is threatened; in the latter case smiles are exchanged.-Why?

The S. P. "Call" of the 5th of this month haw-haws at the British Labor party on the ground of the rumors that come over the cable to the effect that the Labor party is likely to fuse with the Liberals in the electoral conflict which the feudal House of Lords has precipitated over the land; and "The Call" holds up such conduct as a horrible example and a warning against Labor parties in general, in this country in particular. People in glass-houses should not throw stones. If the fusing of the British Laborites with the Liberals; in an issue such as that now presented in Great Britain, is an argument against Labor parties, then, the repeated fusings by the S. P. with both Democrats and Republicans, sometimes with both "simul taneous and at once," as was done this very year in St. Louis with the approval of the very "Call," and then, not for a great issue, but for petty politician jobs, would be proof positive that a Socialist party is no better, and a deal worse. Or was the stone fired at Labor parties from the S. P. "Call" glass-house the consequence of the paper's recently revealed affinity for the Spokane anti-polities, I-am-a-bum Anarchists?

The programme of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, now in national convention assembled at Cincinnati, is thing of beauty. Here it is:

"Monday-Registering and distributing of scuvenirs.

"Tuesday evening- Sight seeing about city.

"Wednesday evening-Banquet and entertainment at Central Turner Hall. "Thursday evening-Smoker by

Though he be an enemy, if he perform a manly deed, credit is due him and honor will applaud the deed. The Roman Catholic political organization of Italy deed, and is hereby applauded. Differently from its fraternity in America, who, though up to the eyebrows in politics, pursue terrestrial, material and political aims ambushed behind religion. the Italian wing of the Roman Catholic political organization, European dispatches announce, has decided to organize a parliamentary party. That's right! Honorable men fight in the open. Only the dishonorable fight in ambush.

How radical these pickers of the pock ets of the workers can be towards the pickers of their own pockets! Here is the Republican insurgent Congressman Charles N. Fowler of New Jersey declaring he does not believe "the American people are going to permit Mr. Aldrich to pick their pockets through the legerdemain of words," and adding that "a thunderbolt of righteous indignation and punitive wrath will strike, paralyze and shatter" the pickpockets. If the working, people whom Congressman Fowler's class of under-capitalists pickpockets were to use half as strong language towards the Fowlers, then would Congressman Fowler call them "vile Socialist incendiaries." When, however, the language is used by the Fowler class of capitalists, whom the Aldrich-Cannon upper combination of capitalists pickpockets, then such language is "eminently patriotic."

official election returns, just received at this office, a certain set of facts is luminously written:

First-Although the capitalist forces are still powerful enough to draw unto themselves an absolute majority of all the suffrages, yet are their rancorously conflicting interests such that they split into two hostile bodies, neither polling the necessary vote for election.-The total poll for Mayor was 64,233, of which one of the bourgeois candidates received 13,766, and the other 19,594.

Second-Although the Trades Union forces must have suffered serious defections, yet did they prove cohesive enough to retain, and endowed with power of attraction enough to draw unto themselves, nearly 10,000 votes more than necessary for election.-The Union Labor candidate for Mayor was returned at the head of the polls with 29,455 votes.

Third-The Socialist party was swept into the dust bin .- The poll of the S. P. candidate for Mayor was 1,418 votes, or a loss of 3,105 votes since last year, when the San Francisco S. P. polled 4,523 votes, and thereby already recorded a decline of 2,727 votes from its poll of four years previous, when the S. P. vote in 'Frisco reached the highwater mark of 7.250.

Condensed, these mutually illuminating facts tell this tale:-The attitude of the Socialist party toward the proletariat is so utterly untrue to the revolutionary demands of Socialism that, despite matchless opportunities to catch the proletariat's ear and thereby thrill the promoted the fossilization of the revolutionary proletariat. The fullest expression of this manifestation is seen in San Francisco. There, accordingly, the proletariat is seen organized into a triumphant political body of craft Union conservativeness, with the tell tale companion-piece of the traitor S. P. wiped out to all practical intent. The San Francisco picture typifies the S. P.

throughout the land. The tearing up of the social superstitions instilled by bourgeoisdom into the mind of the proletariat was the educational task that the Socialist Labor Party set to itself, satisfied that, either its own or some other body, urged into being by the Party's breath, was bound te grow, or spring up into required proportions. The "style" of the S. L. P. was pronounced "offensive," and retailers of ready-made phrases stalked through the country with the outcry: "There must certainly be something wrong with the style of the S. L. P. seeing it makes so little progress in the presence of so much latent Socialism!" To the rythm of that outery rose the S. P. Unnecessary to look into and expose the untruth of the outcry. Theoretically it may be conceded that a body may be sound, yet its style repulsive. The S. P. was to improve upon the style. It shot up with the racket and the glamour of a rocket; it has come down a charred stick. The S. L. P. was not growing fast, yet it progressed: the S. P. has taken a tumble

Across the face of the San Francisco | letarian mass into a phalanx for the political reflex of the economic bulwark revolution, the party's attitude has pro- 1 of capitalism-the A. F. of L., or Union Labor party. The tender-handed surgeon makes malodorous wounds. While no sane surgeon will give pain for fun, there are operations that can not be performed without giving pain. Laughing gas is a medicament excluded from social surgery. The Social Revolution is not entered through the gate of narcotics. Craft Unionism in America is a guild; that guild is in control of a class of stunted bourgeois: that stunted bourgeois class is the "labor leader," generally in the presidency of the "skilled" organizations, hence ever, practically, a labor-lientenant of the capitalist class. If pain it had to give, whatever the pain it gave, the lancet had to be stuck deep into the ulcer of the blindly-followed and often idelized Labor Fakir. Only by driving the harpoon deep under the rhinoceros hide of the Misleaders could the misled rank and file be quickened into wakefulness. That the S. L. P. did and persists unterrified in doing-and that the S. P. did not only not do, but condemned the doing.

The practical result of the S. P. policy was to throw the cloak of Socialism over the reactionaryism of a revamped guild system, misnamed Unionism, thus, in fact constituting itself into an outward bulwark for the inner bulwark of capitalism-A. F. of Hellism-and as typified in San Francisco, perishing in the ignoble attempt to escape the consequences of its natal treason to Socialism by rehearsing at the last hour the trick leaving as the sum total of its efforts the of the ass to escape in a lion's skin.

> expressions as, "We need a successful business man as mayor"; "It takes a man who can earn millions to spend millions"; "We want a man who can represent both labor and capital and give each a square deal, as organized labor is not a hog," were some of the typical expressions of the A. F. of L. labor leaders at this meeting.

Let the comrades all over the country wake up and do something. In the last few weeks Section Los Angeles has sold 50 "Woman Suffrage" pamphlets, about 30 Sue books, besides many other pamphlets and books. We have already started on the next campaign. On New Year's Eve we will hold a social and package party at headquarters, 317 East Seventh street. All readers of The People are invited to attend. PAINTERS MEET.

S. P. Man Helps Fakirs to Break up Unions.

Cincinnati, O., December 8.-Faithful to the indecent practices of his party, the Socialist party, in standing cheek by jowl with labor lieutenants of the capitalist class who seek to club in the head of the working class movement, Victor Buhr, a delegate to the convention of .the ers, and recently the S. P. candidate for Comptroller of New York City, took his stand with the labor fakirs in the convention who unconstitutionally tried to 'dissolve" several New York Locals of the Brotherhood of Painters. But Buhr, like other S. P. candidates, when they are nominated, is a "good union man," and therefore his consorting is no doubt a case of "what's the constitution between friends." labor skate friends. He was the first one to open fire on the attempt of several New York Locals to maintain their organizations intact. He wants a scheme to go through dear to the hearts of the old officers.

Long before the present convention met the national officers had planned move to emasculate the New York Locals whom they knew to be hostile to their regime. The officials wanted to cut down the New York opposition at the national convention of the Painters, but several unions, No. 1011 leading, beat the game to a standstill. Local 1011 had to resort to court proceedings to prevent the machination of the national officials, and it won out. Apropos of this it might be mentioned that Mr. Hilquit was an attorney for the labor skates.

When the case was brought up in the onvention the other day, Mr. Victor Bulir, as noted, rushed to the rescue of the beaten officers. What disposition will be made of the matter is at this time unknown. The S. P. man's policy of ingratiation with the fakir element is, however, thoroughly disgusting. It robs the in the first method such as follows Socialist Movement of all dignity and shooting-up a cashier or other cus-Smith, is a very wealthy man and such trails it in the gutter where it is maulted todian."

and spat upon by its foes, and abandoned by those whom it, if revolutionarily led, could uplift.

The convention of the Painters opened on Monday. There were nearly 600 duplicate credentials for delegates which involved contests. Eo far 531 delegates have been seated.

Besides the case of the New York Locals who are opposing headquarters, a Denver Local has appeared on the scene fighting the leading officials. The officers strenuously fought the admission of the delegates of this Local but it vain: they were admitted.

For the first time in its history, the organization has seen a woman delegate upon the floor of its convention. It had always been held that woman could not enter the trade, but this idea is now forever exploded. The delegate is Mrs. Guttman, from Pittsburg, Ind.

VEILED DYNAMITISM EXHIBITED

Captured I-Am-a-Bum Spokane Ringleaders Show White Feather.

Spokane, December 6 .- The article published in the Daily People on "Free Speech in Motley" in this city correctly summed up the situation in the so-called free speech contests here. The writer of that report so exactly hit the nail on the head that I would have thought he was himself on the scene instead of being in Seattle: The facts are that the leaders of these people, who call themselves L. W. W., are not engaged in putting up serious or a manly fight for free speech; ther are simply seeking advertisement and ash, at the expense of their deluded followers, while they themselves shrink from the consequences of their own acts.

Recently the police surprised the ringleaders at their headquarters and arrested five of them. Those taken into custedy were Mrs. J. A. Jones, alias Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, known among her adherents as "the woman Eugene V. Debs of America," George H. Speed, C. M. Connor, Louis Gatewood and William Douglass. The sudden appearance of the police was enough to throw these valorous people into a fright, and when taken to the lock-up and questioned, they were frightfully at sea. One thing, however, they were in agreement upon, and on this they cut a comical figure indeed: they all denied that they were members of the organization or were in sympathy with its actions. They sought to impress the authorities with the fact that they wished to be good, and smirked upon them in trying to gain their freedom. Of course, jail is not a very desirable place for themselves; that is only for the dupes. An incident characteristic of these "martyrs" is that of the Flynn woman's conduct when she was sent to the county jail under bonds. She did not see why she should be subjected to the indignity of a ride in the patrol wagon; nothing less than a cab was good enough for her. But the police chief decided otherwise, and the hurry-up wagon was requisitioned.

The five prisoners are under conspiracy charges, the punishment for which is one year in jail or $1,000 fine or both. County cute the cases to the limit.

EQUALITY BEFORE THE LAW.

Church Leader" Gets Ten Years for Stealing $400,000-Country Boy Fourteen Years for Stealing Nothing.

Madison, Wis., December 13.-Capital ist 'equality before the law" is beautifully shown up in two cases of bank robbery in Wisconsin now in the limelight.

In one Phil Allen, a Mineral Point banker, "highly respected" and a "leading church worker," stole $400,000 from his bank, wrecking it. Crazed by undeserved blame, the cashier committed suicide and his mother-in-law, heart-broken, fell dead over his prostrate body. Allen's sentence was ten years.

In the second case, George Benton, a boy excited over dime novels, attempted to hold up a country bank. He was caught, and got away with no plunder at all. His sentence was fourteen years. Speculating on the punitive results which followed these recent bank holdups and the pecuniary results attending local radical said:

"In considering methods, there is but one conclusion to be reached: That it is safer and more profitable to loot a bank with prayer and exhortation than with a jimmy and a 44-calibre gun. In manner it is highly preferable. It is neater and more orderly. There is 'no muss in the first method such as follows

ON THE DISCUSSION AT BUREAU ON BERGER'S PROPOSAL TO EXCLUDE THE S. L. P.

Berger's Argument and Allegations-Kretlow's Dignified, Firm and Trenchant Answer-Incidental Incidents-Berger's Declaration About the Unions-Gives the Lie and Is Confronted with Official and Documentary Proofs-The Sentiment of the Bureau-Demand for Docu-

The below is that portion of the report to the N. E. C. by Paul Kretlow, the proxy delegate of the S. L. P. at the recent session of the International Bureau dealing with the move of the S. P. to exclude the S. L. P. from the Bureau, and ordered published by the Sub-Committee of the N. E. C.]:

As to the proposition itself, to have the S. L. P. representative removed from the International Socialist Bureau, I can inform you that this proposal, made by Berger as the delegate of the S P. was not entertained at Berger told of "the big vote" they had in comparison with the S. I. P., and that the latter doesn't dare to publish the list of its membership any more because he claimed that the last referendum showed only about 300 votes cast, which shows a very small membership. The same as to receipts of the Party. He said the S. L. P. in rapidly disappearing; the votes are getting less every election. I will add to the credit of Berger that he used against the old Unions a very strong language. He told the Bureau literally: "They are our MORTAL enemies." I hope when he is back in the United States he will stick to the promise he gave the Bureau members to fight the old Unions.

In my answer to Berger I endeavored to show that the development in the States is such that the Socialist parties must, in the first place, see to it that their organization is built on solid foundation, more so, I believe, than in any other country of the world, because nowhere is capitalism so well advanced. It is quite certain that as soon as the Socialist parties become influential the onslaught will be made, and the organization destroyed, if it has not been built so as to resist. The vote of the S. P., I told the Bureau, is of sandbank nature. and will be lost again without a good organization, that spreads real light. and stands for the true principles of Socialism, and not for any old thing, only to get votes. That a good number of workingmen are disgusted with the S. P. methods I proved by reading of the S. P. who withdrew from that party. When I asserted that the S. P. had fused with Democrats and Republicans Berger said: "That is a lie!" But I had right there with me the official ballot of the recent St. Louis election proving the fusion with Democrats and Republicans. In Berlin, during a speech, and also at the session of the Bureau, Berger said they had about 60,000 members in good standing. I asked the Bureau to judge for themselves as to the value of this large membership, if a fact, when they only draw a vote of 422,-000. I closed my remarks with the statement that I am no politician who can gain something by keeping the workers divided, but as a proletarian I hate to fight the members of my own class, and appeal to the Bureau as well as to all sincere Socialists in both camps to assist to bring about a unity on the basis laid down by the International Congress.

I told the delegates present they can examine the literature and acts of the S. L. P. decades back and they will find nothing in opposition to the principles of true Socialism, but, if they would appoint a committee to examine my evidence, it would be a question whether they would consider the S. P. at all a Socialist party.

I must not omit to state that Berger, after the session, expressed to some delegates the hope that at Co-

Election returns for the final contests here show as follows: City Clerk: Lelande, Republican and Good Government, 30,305, Haller, S. L. P., 5,712. City Attorney: Hewitt, Rep. and G. G., 31,118; Edwards S. L. P., 4,688. Board of Education, Susan Bast, S. L. P., 7,984.

Neither the Socialist Labor Party nor the Socialist party elected any of their andidates, but considering that the Socialist Labor Party has heretofore been kept off the ballot by the Socialist party and that our force of workers was small we did very well.

The S. P. members assert that they distributed 72,000 leaflets, which were of tax-saving, middle-class appealin character. They had four candidates for the Board of Education who received votes as follows: Bowman, 8,789; Downing, 8,495; Garbutt, 8,705; Jones, 8,475. These returns are not exact as the official count has not yet been made. The Socialist Labor Party made its campaign one of clear revolutionary Socialism. Comrade Louis Haller was offered the endorsement of the Republican party and of the Union Labor Political Club but refused it. We distributed several thousand cards and leaflets.

The Good Government Reformers de feated the Republican candidate for Mayor. 'Even the alliance with the A F. of L. and the vicious "Times" element did not save the Republicans from defeat. It may be that Stanley Wilson, Fred Spring and the rest of the "hot air" pounders of the A. F. of L. helped the Rep. Mayor to defeat.

The election should be a good lesson to the Socialist party. This party owns shares in the Union Labor Temple; it has advertised in the "Citizen," the organ of the A. F. of L.; for years it has worked hard and sincerely and in return has been hard and sincerely worked by the A. F. of L., but the alliance of the Union Labor Political element with the Republican party, the Tenderloin, and also the "Los Angeles Times," the most hated anti-A. F. of L. newspaper in the United States, was too much for even the Socialist party, and most of their members left the Union Labor Political meeting in disgust. The Republican candidate for Mayor

I do not like the British policy, but I say frankly that it is better than the present S. P. It accomplishes something, in rousing the antagonism of the eapitalists to fight back. That enlivens the class struggle and out of this struggle grows clearly defined the revolutionary action, no matter upon what platform the various leaders may stand. But we, in this country, are in a state of coma, and are not feared by the capitalists either politically or economically.

LOOK AT THIS PICTURE.

[Letter of National Executive Committee of the Socialist party, of which Mr. A. M. Simons is a member, to the International \Socialist Bureau Brussels, Belgium, Aug. 4, 1909.]

The National committee of our party has recently elected Comrade Victor L. Berger as its additional representative in your bureau, and we respectfully request that he be seated as the second member for the United States, instead of the representative of the Socialist Labor Party.

In thus claiming both seats in the In ternational Socialist bureau for the Socialist party of the United States, we do not ask any special privileges.

The rule giving to each country two representatives in the bureau was established in order to do justice to the movement in such countries in which it is divided into two principal wings. It was eminently fair to give separate representation to each of the two main Socialist parties in France before they united, and it is just as proper to give separate representation to-day to each of the two principal divisions of the Socialist movement in Russia and to the Socialist and the trade union movement respectively of Great Britain.

When a division first occurred in the Socialist movement of the United States the same procedure was adopted, and with a good deal of justice. At the time of the Paris congress of 1900 the Socialist party and the Socialist Labor Party were factors of more or less equal importance in the United States. But since that time the situation has changed very radically. The vast majority of the former members and voters of the Socialist Labor party have transferred their allegiance and support to the Socialist party. The latter to-day represents the entire organized Socialist movement in the United States, while the Socialist Labor Party has been reduced to a mere nominal existence, and has neither members nor support, nor influence in the labor movement of this

The Socialist party has an enrolled dues paying membership of 44,791; the lues paying membership of 44,791; the socialist Labor Party hardly musters more than 1,000. In the recent national elections the Socialist party polled a I do not like the British policy, but Socialist Labor Party hardly musters elections the Socialist party polled a vote of 424,483, while the vote of the Socialist Labor Party was less than 14,000. In other words, if we accept the enrolled membership and electoral vote as a test of strength, and we know of no other test, then the Socialist party represents about 97 per cent, of the So-cialist movement in the United States, while the Socialist Labor Party, at a generous estimate, constitutes about 3 per cent of it.

The Socialist Labor Party does not in any sense represent a division, or wing. of the Socialist movement of the United States, and there is no more logic or justice in admitting it to the bureau on an equal footing with the Socialist party than there would be in dividing the two seats of Germany between the Social Democratic party of that country and some Socialist study circle in Berlin. We recognize, of course, that the Socialist Labor Party, as a Socialist organization, is entitled to representation in the International Congress, where it will have a vote proportionate to its actual strength and importance; but admission to the bureau of an organization as small and insignificant as the Socialist Labor Party is an anomaly which is both ridiculous and embarrassing for the Socialist movement of the United States.

Fraternally submitted by SOCIAL-IST PARTY OF THE U. S.

positions if real workingmen are to take their places. They do not propose to surrender, to those who have never worked, save with their jaws, and are tearing down every organization to which they belong.

These observations are perhaps not quite coherent having been jotted down in haste in the midst of other work. Much could be presented in better shape. I shall first await your answer and with it an idea as to future plans and hope that you will bring these in person. If not, I hope you will send me your answer by return mail. There are signs of internal upheaval in the party and we must all keep our heads clear in order to steer our course with a sure hand.

The letter in this column is a translation from the German translation published on the front page of its issue of last November 29 by the Socialist party organ, the "New Yorker Volkszeitung." Endeavors to obtain a copy of the many copies of the original, which the "Volkszeitung," says were in circulation, having failed, the next best thing is here done—publish the above translation, made for the Daily People by a competent translator. Should this office later obtain a copy of the original it will be published.

CAPITALIST MORALITY.

By Joe, Uncas, Okla. It was raining and we took shelter in dry goods store.

"This is what the workers must become conscious of. In order to have one loaf of bread for themselves, they must give four to the capitalist highwayman. Now, the gun of the capitalist highwayman is the private ownership of the land upon which to work and the tools with which the wage earners perform the work. Because there is private ownership in the land and workshops the capitalists permit the wage earners to get one loaf of bread only on condition that they be allowed to take four. To abolish this condition the workers must organize on the political and industrial fields to dispossess the capitalist class."

a very serious and critical period in the history of the Socialist Movement of this country, and that it may happen that either the work of many years may be destroyed, or that the revolutionary forces may be so concentrated as to bring us much nearer to the Social Revolution. What I have observed in Toronto has made upon me a deep impression. Not what I saw and heard at the convention itself but that which I observed outside of it, at private gatherings, is the most important. I notice in many of these people an intense hatred against the Socialist party. This is a very bad situation when one bears in mind that many of our opponents have a perfect willingness to accept the philosophy of Socialism, but want to know nothing of our organization. Fully one half of the delegates were ex-members of the Socialist party or the S. L. P., and are to-day hostile to our organization. Is not this the most terrible indictment that could be drawn of our methods? And three-fourths of these ex-members are inclined to organize a new Labor party. We are, therefore, facing two questions of importance: Can a reform of the Socialist party take place in such a manner that the party will meet the task that has been set for it? How can the party! be preserved? The party is hated by the Two or three workmen gathered about who had also come into the store for shelter, joined in the conversation I was carrying on with another workingman, and the storekeeper stood by listening. The storekeeper chimed in:

"Yes, that may be true, but how are you going to get possession of these things? You expect to pay the capitalists for them?"

"Pay the captalists? The slaves that buy their freedom never possess freedom. The workers must organize sufficiently strong to take over the means of production without paying a cent for them, and without leaving the impression that the capitalists are entitled to any remunera-

"Oh. but." said the two-by-four store keeper, "to take them from the capitalists and not pay them would be doing wrong."

At this point a collector came in and the storekeeper paid a bill.

Returning a few minutes later, the demagogues and would-be intellectuals, a veritable "Lumpen Proletariat." The real workers, those who have to fight the class struggle, are not there. These are the naked facts which do not allow themselves to be concealed by any philosophy. We must clarify the situation, we must first of all weed out the petty political demagogues. I could give you many proofs of their nefarious work. In one State they work with the Industrial Workers, in another against them. I am myself in great sympathy with the Industrial Unions although I know that they are no universal panacea. Their greatest error is that they believe they can usher in the co-operative commonwealth. We must organize the Unions neither for the past, nor for the future, but for the present, and only for the purposes of the class struggle. I believe that there have been many ridiculous exaggerations about the achievements of the I. W. W., or of the syndicalists in France. I also am in favor that there be room in the Socialist party for those who work for "direct action." There must be a reorganization of the S. P. That is almost unanimously agreed upon. It must be re-organized into a working class party fight. storekeeper's face was wreathed in smiles.

"Hee-hee-keek-keek," he chuckled. "What's the cause of this mirth?" I sked.

"Hee-hec-keek-keek," went he on with his giggling. "You see," said the storekeeper, "I owed Blank $200 for a bill of goods last month. Well, that fellow was Blank's collector and the bill was made out for only $160."

"Well, what of that?"

"Don't you see? Blank's bill for last month is paid in full and I make forty dollars by the operation."

"Humph. And you suppose of course the working people will continue to be governed by what you and your class interpret as right and wrong?" His mirth did not continue.

capitalists either politically or economically.

My experience in Toronto has shown me that the trades unions too are as much in the dark as we, and that by a sound revolutionary position we could soon win the mass of them. You, friend Walling, should bring your influence to bear in a conference of Socialists and Trade Unionists, and I wish fervently that in this our crisis you give us a helping hand. I know of your antipathy against Hunter and, perhaps, also against Spargo and Hilquit, but these comrades represent an element which we surely need. Above all we must win the union men. No one has denounced the defects of the A. F. of L. more than I, but I am forced to recognize that it comes much nearer to representing the working class than the Socialist party, and unless we are able to shape our policy and our organization so as to meet the demands, and incarnate the position of the workers, we will have failed of our mission. Several methods may be decided on, but we must above all simplify the party's management and administration. Then we must appeal more directly to union men, and we must be careful in the selection of our speakers. We have had so many ignorant theorizers for street speakers, who naturally can win over only the ignorant portion of their audiences. Our speaker's should themselves be Union men who know the class struggle of Union men from experience, and can explain the same from the Socialist standpoint. We must drive from our ranks the demagogical politicians who are seeking to raise rebellion against every person they can not use for their purpose.

The present executive committee is than willing to surrender their Concluding I wish to state further that none of the delegates, to whom I spoke of the methods of the S. P. in fighting the S. L. P. sided with the S. P. method. That lying report which was published in some of the S. P. papers announcing the exclusion of the S. L. P. from the Bureau was called "Frechheit" [impudence] by the Germans, and "insolence" [insolence] by the French.

Several of the delegates and others were anxious for copies of the documents I had with me.

WHERE MEDICAL SCIENCE AVAILS NOT

IT COULD DO MUCH MORE THAN AT PRESENT BUT BETTER MATER-IAL CONDITIONS FOR POOR ARE NEEDED.

By Jaime Angulo, Baltimore, Md.

The student of medicine, upon entering his third year in college begins for the first time practical work in the dispensary and the hospital wards. There he is brought in daily contact with patients | will go back home, disregard the surfrom the poorer classes. His mind has not as yet been made callous to suffering by long practice, and if, besides, he happen to be a Socialist he finds himself in excellent surroundings to do a lot of thinking about the class struggle.

He is struck by the disproportion between the progress of science and the amount of benefit the working class draws thereof. Science, its medical branch especially, has indeed advanced a gigantic step in the last century, and we have acquired an amount of knowledge much greater than necessary to enable men to enjoy healthy bodies. But who profits by it? Only the capitalist masters. It is true that they throw sops to the slaves, in the shape of free dispensaries and the like. But of what good is that? Let us see.

A young man comes to the dispensary hoping to be cured. He feels miserable, weak; his strength is going and his cough will not let him sleep at night. He is examined and found to have a beginning of tuberculosis. Well, now, there is no drug which will cure tuberculosis. Yet that young man's condition is not hopeless; he can be saved if he will go away to Arizona or Colorado and camp in the mountains, and be all day long in the fresh air. He will almost undoubtedly get well. CAN HE DO IT? It is out of the question, of course; he is a wage slave with a wife or a mother or a sister or somebody else to help, not a millionaire's son.

Here is another workingman coming with some chronic gastric trouble. What is the matter with him? Nothing but wrong food; and proper diet would set him alright. But in most cases it would be a joke to give that man a list of the things he must eat or avoid, and how to cook them, when he can hardly get the money to pay for enough of the chean stuff to feed his whole family, and his wife must cook on a poor stove, has small incomfortable kitchen and a swarm of children to mind! Out of the question again; that man is doomed to his trou-

Or a housewife comes with a leg ulcer.

The surgeon cleans and dresses it and tells her to go home and rest. "Don't stand on your feet, but lie down and in a few days it will be well." "But, doctor," she answers, "I can't lie down. . I must do the housework." That woman geon's advice BECAUSE SHE HAS TO, and in a week her whole leg will be a purulent wound. And so on we could go indefinitely with the list of diseases.

Science has found the cause of these diseases, in most cases, and very often the specific cure, so that there is no more excuse for people to be subject to a miserable life of sickness and accept it meekly as a punishment for their sins, as they did in the dark ages. We could not yet be entirely free of disease, assuredly, but to a great extent we could: science shows us how. Can we do it? The capitalists can, the workingmen can't. We see, therefore, the true value of the "free dispensary" sop. It enables the workingman to know the name of his disease, not to cure it. Much good that does him!

Let us now look at another side of medical science: the prophylactic side. For, better still than cure disease, is to prevent it. We know now that a plurality of diseases is due to bacterial infection, tuberculosis, syphilis, penumonia, cholera, gonorrhea, the so-called gangrene, typhoid, diphtheria, etc., etc., belong in this group. Now, bacterial infection can only be avoided by cleanliness and hygienic living. And here again, wonderful is the array of sops thrown at us by our capitalist masters. They contribute, funds to white plague campaigns and research laboratories, public lectures, etc. There the workingman is told how to live in healthy, clean houses with plenty of fresh air and good water. After the lecture he may go back to his East Side hovel. It sounds like a joke, a cruel inhuman joke, but it isn't, it is just a sop and a blind to keep the workingman in the blessed belief that he is living in a wonderfully advanced civilization with the benefit of all the enlightenment of

In exactly the same way as the perfection of machinery production has made it possible for all to live in abundance, the advance of medical science has made it possible for all to live in health, has made it possible, but not under the present system.

PROSPERITY IN PRICES.

Highest in History for Month of December.

Food prices are higher to-day than ever before known in this country during December, and within a small fraction of one per cent, higher than ever known at any time, according to Bradstreet's Review for the week.

Moreover, it is stated that the trend is still upward with no relief in sight. A man going to a wholesale market place to purchase one pound each of ninety-six article3 would now have to pay $9.12, while one year ago the same articles could have been purchased for ninety-two cents less.

The record for high prices in this country was a tained in March, 1907, but prices began to decrease later in the year, and the present prices for December are said to be seven per cent, higher than in 1907.

Prices are eighteen per cent, higher than in June, 1908, and sixty per cent. higher than in July, 1896. Since November I of this year breadstuffs, live stock, provisions, hides and leather, textiles, metals and building material has advanced, while fruit coal and naval stores have gone a little lower.

Among the staples in which increased prices are recorded during the last month are wheat, corn, oats, barley, rye, beeves, sheep, hogs, milk, bacon, lard butter, cheese, mackerel coffee, sugar, beans, petroleum, paper and hay. There have been decreases in the price of eggs, tea, rice, peas, lemons, cotton, and rubber.

An average for a series of years is set forth in the Review as follows:

THE BELTED EARL.

A Modern Parallel of Antique Social

There was one nice thing about our horse-stealing ancestors who lived six or eight centuries ago-they were

Take it in Merrie England and observe how the people ate. At the head of a long table, in a rafted room, sat the belted earl. To him the servants first brought all food and drink and he took his fill.

He passed the dishes down the table to his guest of noble blood at his right and to his wife at his left-and they ate their fill.

Next the dishes passed to the children of the house: to the poet, the doctor, the lawyer, the scholar, the priest, and to others who lived by their wits rather than by their hands; to the classes who fed in idleness because they flattered the belted earl or pleased his senses.

And after the intellectual parasites had fed, the bowmen, spearmen, and huntsmen might dip their fingers into the now-cold dishes and sop the gravy up with crusts; they, too, might drink from the great flagons-drink the liquor that stood just above the bitter

And so the table was full.

But below the table, upon the rushstrewn floor, were the people, who, in the gentle language of the day, were called "clods." "vokels." "clowns." and "churls." All these people did was to do the work. They raised the crops and harvested them. They butchered the beef and made the ale and wine. And there on the floor they got what was left after their noble master and his family, friends, flatterers, and menat-arms had had their fill. What the man on the floor got was governed entirely by the state of the appetite of the "upper classes."

And he fought with half-starved dogs for the bones and crusts the last soldier tossed among the rushes.

Very frank, but father coarse.

Mowadays the man who does the work "is his own master." He works for wages, and buys what he will. But when Patten, the belted carl of wheat, puts up prices, the farmer who raised the wheat last year gets no share of the increase, and the man who works for wages gets just so much less for his

WORK LIKE THE DEVIL

AND SPILL OUT PROFITS FOR YOUR BOSS, REV. TELLS EXPLOITED SHOP GIRLS.

Newark, N. J., December 10.-Al- (counter there is money a-plenty being minister in these days when the ministry of the present iniquitous industrial system, he must bid goodbye to his sense and reason.

Take the Rev. T. Aird Moffat, pastor of the Frst Congregational Jube Memorial Church of this city, for instance. In an address delivered last Sunday, he referred to shopping as a "fayorite form of amusement' in this country, and very properly designated it a "cruel sport." The sermon was the first of a series to be delivered during December relating to employes in stores and offices. His subject Sunday was "Behind the Counter." Speaking to the exploited sales girls, he said:

"You stand between your employer and the public, neither of which quite understands the other as you do; and yet neither of them is willing quite to credit you with your knowledge or to ask your counsel. The shock of this mutual misunderstanding expends itself on you. If the goods don't sell well, you are buyer's bad judgment. If the customer can't find just what she asks for,, the storm falls on you, though it may be she is always behind the market and your article is a decided improvement on what she demanded.

"And then some customers are so fussy and imperious. The average clerk puts up with enough hateful meanness and unadulterated crankiness in a week to sour the temper of a saint.

"A favorite form of amusement in America is 'shopping.' In its commonest forms it is a cruel sport. It may be 'a pleasure to show goods,' but it's no fun. It gets to be monotonous after a while, especially when the record of sales fails to show tangible results. "In any case the poor clerk is in trouble; if he won't 'show' the goods the custmer is mad; if he doesn't 'sell' the goods the manager discharges him. Add to all this the fact that for many hours at a time they are on their feet and that at least for many of them there is in every week a day with the awful stretch of twelve or fourteen hours' work, and one may well wonder that there is left at all anything of the spirit of courtesy.

"There are temptations too-subtly compelling conditions. One must dress well to hold her place, and yet the pay is pitiably small. In the promiscuous life of the store, too, any one is at liberty to address her. On the other side of the plain.

though it is a hard thing to say, it does spent freely while she has to pinch and seem that as soon as a man becomes a starve to get the bare necessities of life. To souls with certain sensibilities this is merely being used as one of the props is all crowding in one direction. Oftentimes the counter becomes an altar of human sacrifice."

After thus correctly picturing the awful life an exploited shop-girl is subjected to, what are the Rev.'s conclusions? That the employers should be lashed out of civilized society for their brutal treatment of the girls? That they should be put on bread and water for the starvation wages they pay? That the whole industrial system which exists upon just such iniquity and exploitation should be abolished, and a just and equitable system be established?

Oh, no! Not for nothing have the ministers been called the "Lightning rods of capitalism." The Rev. Moffat's remedy for the glaring evils. he had just portrayed was-"loyalty." alty" will cure it all.

"The key to success is loyalty," quoth he, "Loyalty to your employer; loyalty to your customer; loyalty to yourself, And these are closely interwoven. For blamed, though the fault was in the example, you keep late hours at night and your own health suffers, you are languid and cross to your customer and the house suffers the loss of her trade. Or take it the other way; there is danger to-day of the clerk becoming a mere measuring and price-quoting mechanismy But if one, seeing the possibilities of the situation, should read up on his line, and by real study become an authority on the articles he handles, intelligent people (the best kind of customers) would soon learn of it and seek his advice and count it a privilege to do business with him. He would naturally build up a large personal clientele and the house would be compelled to recognize his worth. Buyers and superintendents are made of that sort of stuff."

There is a story told of a fake firm that made money advertising a sure road to riches for a quarter. To the trusting ones who sent the quarter, the neatly typewritten answer came back: "WORK LIKE THE DEVIL AND

DON'T SPEND A CENT." The sure road to salvation held out by the Rev. Moffat to the suffering department store girls is: "WORK LIKE THE DEVIL AND SPILL OUT PROFITS FOR THE

BOSS. But how any of those superfluous profits are going to come the shop-girls' way, the Rev. wisely didn't stop to ex-

And when Armour, the belted earl of the jungle, raises the price of meat, the stockman gets no extra copper, but the workman's stew is thinner.

Not only are there the belted earls to feed, and their bank accounts to fatten, but there are diamond tiaras to be bought for his, wife and autos for the son; there are steam yachts and priceless paintings.

And then there is the college to endow and the library to build; the church must have a new pipe organ, and the literary sycophant must be fed.

There must be wine suppers for Reggie's chorus girl friends, and, of course, for are not his wits the men-at-arms which hedge around the belted earl of trusts, and safeguard him from the mob, and those other valiant men-at-arms, the senators and "public servants"?

And when these are all fed, the farm-

Woman Under Socialism -

By August Bebel

TRANSLATED FROM THE ORIGINAL GERMAN OF THE THIRTY-THIRD EDITION BY DANIEL

The Woman Question is not a question by itself; it is a part of the great social problem. Proceeding along this line, Bebel's work is an exhaustive analysis of the economic position of woman in the past and present. Despite the boasts of Capitalist Christianity the facts show that under Capitalism woman, especially of the working class, is degrated and dwarfed physically and mentally, while the word home is but a mockery. From such condition of parenthood the child is stunted before its birth, and the miasmas, bred from woman's economic slavery, rise so high that even the gilded houses of the capitalist class are polluted. Under Socialism, woman, having economic freedom equal with man, will develop mentally and physically, and the mentally and physically stunted and dwarfed children of the capitalist system will give way to a new race. The blow that breaks the chains of economic slavery from the workingman will lasted, the merchandise education commanded a high price. The artist, the poet, the philosopher, were, in monarchial countries, the companions of royalty; in our republic they were persons of unquestioned distinction. The aristocracy of intellect felt itself superior to the aristocracy of birth or of money. The only care of such was the development of their intellect. Hence it happened that people of culture could be, and often were, idealists. This circumstance explains the appearance, in tha forties, of that galaxy of men and women who took up in this country the idealist philosophy of Fourier, resulting in the communistic tidal wave that swept over the land at that time. These aristocrats of education and culture stood above the other classes and their material asperations and antagonisms. Education meant power, happiness and worthiness. The conclusion seemed inevitable, that, in order to make all men happy and worthy, in order to hanish all class antagonisms, all poverty, all wickedness and meanness out of the world, nothing else was needed than to spread education and culture. Great Increase of Educated People.

So long as this condition of things

> higher education has made immense progress. The number of institutions of learning increased wonderfully, and, in a still larger degree, the number of pupils. In the meantime, the bottom was knocked out of small production. The small property-holder knows today no other way of keeping his sons from sinking into the proletariat but by sending them to college; and he does this if his means will at all allow. But, furthermore, he must consider the future, not of his sons only, but of his daughters also. The rapid development in the division of labor is steadily encroaching upon the household; it is converting one household duty after another into a special industry, and steadily diminishing household work. Weaving, sewing to a great extent, knitting, baking, and many other occupations, that at one time filled up the round of household duties, have been either wholly or substantially withdrawn from the sphere of housekeeping. More than fifty years ago, the "store close" of which Artemus Ward loves to make frequent mention, began in this country, to compete with and supplant the homespun; and similarly, many another home-made staple was extinguished, and its production absorbed by specialized industries. As a result of all this, matrimony, where the wife is to be housekeeper only, is becoming more and more

But it so happens that the small property holder and producer is, at the same time sinking steadily, and stead. ily becoming poorer; ever more and more he loses the means to indulge in luxuries. In consequence of this, the number of spinsters grows apace, and ever larger is the number of those families in which mother and daughter must work for a living. Accordingly, woman labor does not only increase in the comains of both large and small production and commerce, it also spreads in other directions, in government offices, on the telegraph, telephone, railroads. banks, in office clerkships-bookkeeping, typewriting, stenography-and m the sphere of the arts and sciences. However loudly prejudices and personal interests may rebel against it, woman labor presses liself forward more and more upon the varius professional pursuits. It is not vanity, nor importunity, nor pride, but the force of the economic development that drives woman to labor in these as well as in other departments of human activity. is that the number of educated people has increased enormously. Nevertheless the beneficent results which the idealists expected from an increase of education has not followed Sa long as education is a merchandise, its extension is tantamount to an increase in the quantity of that merchandise, consequently, to the falling of its price and the decline of the condition of those who possess it. The number of educated people has grown to such an extent that it more than suffices for the wants of the capitalists and of the capitalist State. The labor market of educated labor is to-day overstocked as that of manual labor. To-day it is no longer the manual workers alone who have their reserve army of unemployed, and are afflicted with lack of work; the educated workers also have their reserve army of idleness, and among them also lack of work has taken up its permanent quarters. Those who strain for public office experience the difficulty of obtaining it by reason of the crowd; those others who seek employment elsewhere experience the extremes of idleness and excessive work the same as the manual workers, and just the same as these they are the victims of wage-slavery.

To-day, whichever way the proletarian may turn, he finds awaiting him the same proletarian conditions of life and toil. Those conditions pervade society more and more; in all countries the bulk of the population has sunk to the level of the proletriat; to the individual proletarian all prospect has vanished of ever being able, by his own efforts, to pull himself out of the quagmire into which the present system of production has pushed him. The forecast of James Madison, made sixtyfive years ago, that, owing to our competitive social system, the bulk of our people would ere long have lost, not only all property, but even the hope of the prospect of acquiring any, has been verified to the letter.

The individual proletarian can accomplish his own redemption only with the redemption of his whole class. That consummation cannot, however, be reached without the collective ownership by the people of their instruments of production, namely, by the Socialist Republic.

VALUE OF HISTORY.

Without Some Knowledge of It We Can Not Understand Our Own Times.

In order to understand our own time it is absolutely necessary that we know something of the times that have gone before. The generations are like links in a chain, all connected. The study, by which we can understand the philosophy of events and learn what has been done and thought before us, is history, and this is perhaps the most facinating of all studies. Unfortunately too many historians fill their books with nothing but battles and the doings of "great" men, but happily this style of writing history is becoming obsolete, and the history of the people is taking its place. The reading of hisory, clothed in the garb of fiction, without historic accuracy being sacrificed, is the most delightful way of gathering historical knowledge. Many people have a far better idea of Scotch istory from reading the works of Scott than if they had happened solely on the dry-as-dust text books. Socialism is people than with the doings of kings and queens; and with a knowledge of the history of the people we can better understand how the great men achieved prominence. Fortunately, the great Eugene Sue has given us in the form of fiction the best universal history extant. It is a monumental work entitled 'The Mysteries of the People," or, "History of a Proletarian Family Across the Ages." In this work Sue gives the leading and successive episodes in the history of the race, by tracing through the ages the varying phases of the fortunes of one family under the several systems of society, together with the nature of the struggle between the contending classes.

Swindle All the Way Through-Eviction of Ludlow Strikers Again Calls Up Deception of Capitalists.

The public's attention has recently been directed upon a little town down East, called Ludlow. There 500 workingmen, who had the temerity to ask for at least living conditions, had to put up with the outrage of having their few household belongings dumped upon the street, and themselves go without a sheltering roof. They were made victims of their employers' "welfare" work, having lived in the company's "charitably" provided houses. Thereby was illustrated how tenderly brother Capital feels toward brother Labor. The incident, however, was only the finale of what our virtuous capitalists had begun in the interior towns of Europe.

"Business," of course, is the moving force of capitalist production. Is bustness moral or immoral?-that's not the question in commercial circles. The question is: get the cash. And so any method is considered legitimate by "well-to-dos" and their followers. Swindle, it goes without saying, is seized upon with avidity. Hence, when the manufacturers get out lying prospectuses and circulate them among confiding people, and succeed in luring them from their native haunts, the matter is regarded as a "keen" and "enterprising" stroke.

The following extracts are taken from a prospectus which the Ludlow Manufacturing Associates have sent out to foreign countries:

"If you want steady work and good pay, go to Ludlow.

"If you want to live with all the conveniences of life, go to Ludlow. "If you want to play as well as work, go to Ludlow.

"If you want to put money in the savings bank, go to Ludlow.

"If you want your family all healthy, en to Taldlow

"If you want good education for your children, go to Ludlow.

"If you want to get the most out of life, go to Ludlow.

"Compare Ludlow with the place you

This is the last word in the alluring nducements the Ludlow Manufacturing Association hold out to prospective settlers in a neat booklet issued by the company. This booklet is published in several foreign languages and circulated in those districts in Poland where most of the strikers come from.

The crooks in the business world, of course, will laugh at the disappointment which the strikers now suffer. What will those people say, though, who are always prone to resent the Socialist's indictment of the criminal foundation of the present economic system? Is not all "business" conducted on similar lines of swindle?

The incident goes to show that there is only one class in modern society which is possessed of any morals, and that is the so-called lower class, the working class. It alone is a moral, because truthful and confiding, class. The Ludlow strikers prove it. They trusted in the words of their betrayers; they were not those of "little faith"; it was the "upper class" who more concerned with the history of the again showed themselves faithless and

SUCH IS BUSINESS TO THE CO-OPERATIVE COMMON-WEALTH THROUGH THE CHICKEN COOP

By Alexander Ralph.

The moon had just slipped behind the hills and the night had appreciably deepened, though the soft dim light of the stars still made the white lane faintly discernible. On one side stood the farm house, a shapeless blur, on the other loomed the barn, vague and

A cock crows. Three figures come stealing out of the shadows and halt close to the barn, where they whisper.

First Whisper: "To expropriate the damned Capitalist Class we must do the deed, though 'tis foul." Second Whisper: "When 'tis done, then will we down the employment sharks, the towering bulwarks of the exploiters."

Third Whisper (very muffled and faint): "Hallelujah, 1'm a bum-bumbum."

The shadows move uneasily. They try the door of the Chicken Coop. It is locked. Then a faint rustling of volces. Entrance through the door, Direct Action, is given up. A mode of indirect ingress is sought, namely, the window. This is very high. So one figure stands on the shoulders of the second, while the third stands by.

Figure on top: "'Tis cursed dark inside. Had we but the valiant fellow-worker [he whispers a magical name] here this night, he would illumine all with that spirit lamp, his

The top figure disappears into the hen house. He opens door from the inside and the other two enter. The door closes. It is very dark. Nothing can be distinguished.

First Figure lights a match and holds it aloft: "How bright it burns, like unto our 'Industrial Worker.'" The match goes out suddenly.

Second Figure: "Curses, one would think there were an S. L. P. man about."

Third Figure: "Bum-bum-bum." First Figure: "A few more nights like this and crumbles the whole structure of society. The R-revolution is accomplished."

Second Figure: "You forget, fellow-worker, that first the main props of bourgeois society, the employment offices must be removed."

Third Figure: "Hallelujah, bumbum-bum."

The match has gone out meanwhile. Another one is lighted by the first figure. Several long rows of chickens are seen perched on the roosts. They are asleep.

First Figure: "They roost too high. We cannot reach them. 'Tis not always easy to do great deeds."

Second Figure: "We solve the problem by an application of physical

He gets up on Figure One's shoulders. The Third Figure lights a match and begins to sing in an undertone: "Hallelujah, I'm a bum-bum-bum." His breath puts out the match. Lost in the dark, the human tower totters, then falls, tearing the roost with it. The crash is great. The chickens cackle shrilly. A' dog barks very loudly. Voices rapidly approach.

First Figure, prone on the floor: "We are undone. The R-revolution is again delayed."

Second Figure attempts to articulate something. He only succeeds in producingly a shivering gurgle.

Third Figure in a mumbling, misery-frighted monotone: "I'm a bumbum-bum."

The door opens. A farmer with a lantern in one hand and a doublebarrelled shot gun in the other enters. Two hounds growl at his side,

The lantern reveals three figures huddled in the corner, trying to solve the problem of how each can be the man behind. They are dressed in overalls and jumpers. Their eyes are saucer wide and their mouths are open. This is not their natural expression. It is fear that has torn their mouths open and driven their eyelids into hiding.

The farmer looks at them a moment and then asks: "Who in tarnation are Farmer, gruffly: "Hands up." He points the gun. "Now march." The trio file out, followed by the farmer and the dogs. Nearby is a log house in which the farmer does his curing. He locks the fellow workers in. As soon as the door is closed, they set up an infernal howling, "Hallelujah, I'm a bum-bum. Free speech. Free speech. Outrage on citizens. Down with the ballot. Bum-bum. Martyrdom No capitalist concessions. Free speech. Free speech. Direct Action. Down with the employment sharks. Free lunch. Free speech. Free speech. I. I. lodging-houses. Majesty of labor. Give us a hand-out. Bum-bum-bum."

The astonished farmer pauses. Suddenly he turns and picks up a circular coil. No cause for alarm, it is not a snake. It is a hose. He attaches it to a faucet, throws open the smokehouse door and with great brutality plays the sputtering stream into the interior. The cries cease suddenly. The, to them, unwonted application leaves the "fellow workers" streaked. miserable and silent.

The door is slammed. The key turned. The farmer's foot-falls die away. The only living things in sight are the two hounds who growl from time to time as they shift their posi-

KRETLOW'S REPORT.

Coming, as it does, at a time when the Socialist party has struck the snag that it inevitably had to strike, and, as a consequence, is rupturing into the component parts whom only fair weather could hold together, the report to the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Labor Party by Paul Kretlow, published elsewhere in this issue, arrives as a timely commentary.

The principle is cardinal with Sotialism that the proletariat of each country has to settle scores with its own bourgeoisle. Planted upon that principle, the S. L. P. has maintained that the battles of the American Socialist Movement - will have to be fought out on American soil, and not in the columns of the Socialist press of Europe. As a consequence of this sound policy, the S. L. P. left the field of European journalism undisputed to the Socialist party, which rushed thither to "do" the S. L. P. with a vast amount of more or less mendaclous, more or less ridiculous articles, followed up by a still larger volume of private correspondence and whispers to match. While the S. P. was thus dapperly busy abroad, and sought to lure the S. L. P. into such an unbeoming clapperclaw, the Party minded its business at home, never bit at the balt, and 'let the children enjoy themselves." This lasted nearly ten years. An hour finally struck when the very law of the S. P. policy brought punishment upon its head.

The yellow tactics pursued by the S. P. at home, especially since the presidential campaign of 1904, and culminating with the Red Special (Yellow Special would be more appropriate a name), had so completely blinded the party to the facts which plainly foreboded the approaching orash, that, when the crash of 1908 did come the S. P. leadership lost their wits altogether. The election .. figures spelt "death." Finding the party dead at home, the S. P. leaders then took an insanely headlong step. Led by the illustrious N. E. C. member Work from the State of Iowa whose own S. P. vote was halved, the S. P. called upon the International Socialist Bureau to oust the S. L. P. A certain incident of the Napoleoni wars was the conduct of the French fleet in pursuing the British fleet up to the Sea of Marmora, where the Britishers then turned, and sank their pursuers. A wit of the time observed that the French fleet had traveled far in pursuit of a licking. For ten years the S. P. traveled far in pursuit of a licking from the S. L. P .- and got it at last at the International Bureau.

No wonder Berger had little to say on the subject and avoided it on his return to America. Kretlow's report large homeless and propertyless mass.

with that conscious ascendency that marks the S. L. P .- makes , clear that the wonder would have been had Berger shown any sprightliness on the subject in his interviews en route back to Milwaukee, and in his speeches there on what he saw in Europe. He had traveled far after a licking-and got it-and, along with him, his whole party.

TAFT'S FIRST MESSAGE.

"War!" is the dominant note in the President's message to Congress-"War against Nicaragua!"

Though the passage referring to Zelaya is comparatively short its setting is extensive. The setting is made up of a lengthy argument against a sugar fraud inquiry; of scores upon scores of lines in opposition to further tariff revision; of paragraphs galore that talk all around the Trust Question but never into it; of extensive argumentation in favor of paternalism to shipowners, banks and civil service pets; of bonds past, present and to come. In short, the setting may be summed up in few words -the clash at home of mammoth Interests threatens intestine shock: congested wealth is raising a large brood of needy, whose clamor must be satisfied; popular suspicion, whetted by popular want, is breeding inquisitive questions; luxury, on the one hand, penury, on the other, incites Idleness to deeds of crime. The edge of war, like an ill-sheathed knife, threatens to cut its master. There is but one recourse-the time-tried recoursea foreign war which, by keeping all contending elements in false gaze, will satisfy, will silence all,

Such was the problem that faced Mc-Kinley at his first election. The "Advance Agent of Prosperity" found the "solution" in the war with Spain. The opening of new avenues for congested capital, the staving in of the barrel of the Treasury in behalf of thousands of new officials in Cuba and the Philippines, the setting of the wheels of industry in motion to equip armies and navies-all that brought relief.

The "solution" tested by McKinley is now to be tested by Taft, in all appearances. Central America offers a field for wild flights of finance, with quite a shower of gold upon camp followers of all degrees. Zelaya offers the opportunity. It seems the opportunity is to be seized.

If seized, the issue will be as in Mc-Kinley's instance. The so-called solution will prove, in fact, only a deferring. Upon the "relief" of the McKinley war followed the era of wildest speculation, bringing in its wake the worst crisis vet experienced.

The solution of a foreign war partakes essentially of the solution offered by drunkenness to present troubles. The troubles are not removed by the liquor. Only the body is thrown into an ecstasy that renders it oblivious, for the moment to the troubles that beset it, but only to awake and find the identical troubles only in increased magnitude. He who resorts to drunkenness in order to escape troubles finds himself driven with increasing frequency to repeat the dose. Moving from drunken fit to drunken fit, the ill-advised wretch, dies of delirium tremens

As with individuals, so with Ruling Classes. The Ruling Class that knows no escape from domestic distress other than the drunk of a foreign war, will be driven with increasing frequency to repeat the measure. A Ruling Class's final delirium tremens calls for the Caesar-unless, in our particular case. the Socialist or Industrial forces have d sufficient maturity to "take and hold," and thereby end the economic conditions that Beget National Ruin-or National Reaction.

TRY AGAIN, NATIONAL CIVIC FEDERATION!

reason why Socialism is an absurd dream, Ada C. Sweet states in "The National Civic Federation Review" of last November 15, that "any man will fight for his home and his property," on account of which, the lady is of the opinion that the Socialist program "would start such a civil war, as the world has never yet seen in all its long history."

For a civil war, such as the world has never yet seen in all its long history, to break loose, because of the natural instinct of any man to protect his home and property, there must be a state of things of which the following are a few leading elements-

First, there must be a large number of men without "home and property."

The very incentive to defend one's home and property must act as an incentive to acquire the same. Men with home and property are not going to turn things upside down. The men who will do the upturning must be the homeless and propertyless.

Furthermore, the number of these homeless and propertyless men must be huge. A few could never start a civil war such as the world has never yet seen in all its long history. Such a war presupposes the existence of a -calm, cool, to the point, and marked It presupposes the existence of a majority of such people: indeed, it presupposes a vast majority, opposed to a small minority, whose home and property entrenchments are so powerful as to prevent their being quickly carried, and the conflict from being quickly settled.

The second element in the state of things, needed to bring about a civil war such as the world has never seen in all its long history, and pivoted upon man's need of home and property, is measureless poverty in the midst of measureless wealth, and vastly more wealth producible-in other words, a system of plunder such as the world has never yet seen in all its long his-

To the sober mind the passages quoted from Ada C. Sweet in "The National Civic Federation Review," together with all that the passages legitimately imply, prove exactly the opposite of what the lady claims, and is paid to claim. They prove even more. They prove that of all utopian chimeras none equals that which imagines Capitalism can abide, or Socialism can fail.

SPOKANE'S AMENDMENT OF KNIP-PERDOLINGISM.

To-day's Spokane correspondence more than confirms the correctness of the views expressed by this office on the subject of the so-called Free-Speech Fight in that city. The account given by our correspondent of the craven attitude struck by the ringleaders when arrested, and their anxiety to disconnect themselves from the "organization," and, thereby, from responsibility, uncovers an even worse state of slummism than even this office, well-posted though it is, ventured to anticipate.

That there were schemers pulling the strings of the rowdyism masked behind "Free Speech" in Spokane; that a part of the scheme was to gather shekels; that another part of the scheme was a grand stand play to conceal the utter breakdown of the bogus I. W. W., the broken reed upon which another broken reed, the S. P., is leaning; -all this was known in this office. But this office also knew that schemers can not operate without dupes. The dupes being evidently there, and evidently so fanaticized as to allow themselves to be martyrized, the conclusion was justified that, when finally made to toe the chalk-mark, the schemers would, at least for stage effect, make some show of conviction, some show of manhood and womanhood. This office gave them credit for too much.

An incident, oft referred to in these columns, of the Protestant Reformation in Germany, was the insanity that broke out among the Anabaptists, with the city of Munster as their hot-bed. Luther had said something about the Naked Truth. The Munster mental cripples interpreted the words in their own way. They stripped to the skin, men and women, and in that guise rushed maniacally through the streets of the city. He or she who did not cast off all clothing was excluded from the saintly band of the Naked Truth, was a worshiper of Anti-Christ, and had to be exterminated. A leader of these lunatics was one Knipperdoling. They seized the city of Munster; turned it into a bedlam, and hero ically, to the last man and woman, held the place against all the military forces hurled against them until they were crushed.

A sort of Knipperdolingism is what broke out in Spokane. In honor of the Spokane variety it was to be expected that the Knipperdoling leaders would ave imitated their Kr tal ancestor in not showing the white feather-at least not too quickly. But they did.

As amenders of Marx, the Spokane Knipperdolings have gone further and amended their prototype Knipperdoling

"CORPORATIONS." AND "CAPITAL. ISTS."

As the best testimony against a person is what he utters against himself, this statement made by no less a constituent of the capitalist class than the New York "American," in its issue of last November 24, may be taken as fairly representative of the situation:

"Nine-tenths of the corporations of the United States," said this authority, and it ought to know, "simply exist as subterfuges to shield some body from the consequences of owner ship in the event of disaster."

That the corporate body is a "legal fiction" is well known. That a corporation enjoys in matters of law all the advantages that a disembodied spirit would have in evading barbwire fences, is a matter of commor observation. A corporation can do as it pleases. If caught, a little juggling of stock-holdings, a holding company organized, wheels within wheels fashion-and there you are. Your corporation's as bland and invulnerable as an oyster in its shell. And if worst comes to worst, all that can happen is a fine upon the corporation. The individuals who compose it go scot free, unfinable, unpunishable, ready to do it all over again. In this way it may well be true that nine-tenths of the corporations of the country have no reason for existence other than lifting someone above the law.

It was not always so. The corporation in its origin had a legitimate, a valid basis for being. It was a progressward combination of previously competing concerns; it introduced harmony for industrial antagonism; economy for productive waste. This purpose it still partakes of to-day; but another, an extraneous purpose-the dodging of the consequences of its own illegalities-has grown up and overlaid its original cause to such an extent that even in its own camp the charge is made that nine-tenths are merely law evading devices.

So it is with the capitalist. Taking his rise-albeit with crime and violence-in the necessity for systematized and economical production, he at first filled a useful place as a captain of industry. Correlative with this function came the minor one of keeping down the forces that would have overthrown him. To-day, however, the palm of captainship of industry having passed from the capitalist-he having himself handed it over to his skilled managers and superintendents-he retains, in the overwhelming majority of cases, merely his function of coercion, of repressing all society into acquiescence in his plunder of it. As with the corporations, it is perfectly safe to say that with nine-tenths of the capitalists their only reason for living is not their legitimate one of assisting, but their wholly illegitimate one of victimizing and laming the arm of, society.

"Corporations" and "capitalists," both throw light on each other. Both are ripe for the Change.

IS SOCIALISM ADVANCING?

From the Sydney "People."

We are often asked the question: Is Socialist thought advancing? To which one answer can only be given: Yes.

Socialism is the question of questions discussed in every land and in every tongue. Capitalists in their conferences cannot ignore it; churchmen, of all denominations, cannot meet without making reference to it; publicists are continually dragging its name to the front; while it is ever on the lips of politicians of every shade of opinion. Any movement whose principles are discussed, whether adversely or favorably, throughout the world,-especially a movement such as the Socialist movement,-and prominently brought to the fore, is undoubtedly on the advance. And with Socialism it is particularly noticeable that during the past ten years its principles have found favor in the minds of a great number of people who previously were opposed to it, or it not actually opposed to it, regarded it as a utopian scheme of some crack-brained fanatic. Yes, Socialist thought is grow ing; perhaps not so rapidly as one would desire, but none the less surely. The work of to-day and to-morrow is the organizing of all Socialist thoughtthrough the organization of men and women with the Socialist convictioninto the revolutionary industrial and political organizations of the working class. Merely thinking Socialism will not advance its materialization in the slightest; action is necessary. And it is only through combined Socialist thought and Socialist action operating through he machinery of political and industrial organization that emancipation from Capitalism can be accomplished and the Industrial Democracy of a Socialist State established.

Capitalist evolution proceeds apace In spite of attempts to brake the wheels of economic progress by legislating in the interest of small producers and traders, scientific and planful production moves forward. Politicians may monkey with economic evolution in this or that country for a time; but eventually they will find themselves hit with their own boomerang. The day for tinkering with capitalism has gone. The time for organization of the workers to abolish the system-now.

Once the organization of the workers on the principle set out in the Preamble of the I. W. W. makes a concrete be ginning, it will grow at as great a speed as did capitalist concentration. There are stirring times ahead for the working class and upon the education and organization of this class depends the successful and complete emancipation from wage-slavery.

"PROLETARIANS" AND "INTELLECTUALS"

In their frantic effort to save themselves from the wreck that their party has suffered upon the rock of Fact and Science, the leading spokesmen of the Socialist party are betraying what may be termed the psychic defect of their movement-a superstitious reverence for external forms

Already from Texas S. P. men there came a proposition commented on in these columns several weeks ago and looking to a change of form in the construction of their party as necessary to save it. That silly proposition might have denoted only local superstition. Since election the superstition has assumed national character. Safety is now looked for from a method of balloting for National Executive Members; and it is expected that a new era will be opened by the prospect of "proletarians" being elected, instead of "intellectuals." The superstitious reverence for external form. or appearance, in this instance is of national dimensions.

In the first place, the Socialist party membership has just voted, by a majority of 3,371 out of a total of 8,501 votes cast, in favor of two reactionary land planks, and thus exposed the strong navelstring that holds the party fettered to bourgeois interests. It is from the loins of this identical membership that the "proletarian" members of the N. E. C. are to be strained. The worshipers of external appearance or form expect to see the miracle performed of a lot of officers with the "proletarian" badge doing better than officers bearing the "intellectual" badge, although the ones and the others are the choice of a huge majority the worthlessness of whose timber may be judged from their recent deliberate performance concerning the two land planks.

Nor is this all. Within this manifestation of the superstition regarding appearances, is another-the superstition regarding the word "proletarian."

There is nothing sacred in the "proletarian." The sacredness lies in "proletarian interests." It was proletarians who shot Ferrer: and, a thousand to one, they conscientiously believed they were performing a patriotic and religious act. If the mere fact of a person being a proletarian were enough to raise him to fitness in the counsels of the Socialist Movement, then the A. F. of L. would not be the bulwark of capitalism that it

To expect from a body which, like the S. P., is so completely dominated by bourgeois thought that it instills race hatreds; that it ignores the necessity of the revolutionary Union to the extent of one wing acting as candlebearers for the Civic Federationized A. F. of L. and another wing becoming shouters for I-am-a-bum Anarchy; that it clings to the antiquated States Right notion of "autonomy"; that it bends the neck to the exploitation of a privatelyowned press; and that it has just manifested its true spirit by the overwhelming adoption of the bourgeois land planks;-to expect from such a body that the N. E. C. whom it may elect will, if labeled "proletarian," be essentially different from the "intellectuals" who have hitherto run it-to expect that is a monumental exhibition of an infatuation for the Form that gives the measure of the S. P., and may well serve as warning to the judicious.

The substance that can give birth to such a series of caricatures of Socialism. culminating with the recently and "triit, if it would, give birth to an N. E. C. of "proletarian interests." The appearance may be changed; the essence will remain. No coyote ever yet foaled a Kentucky stallion.

Reverence for the Form is fetishism. The fetish worshiper can not, in this Age of grace, be a revolutionist. Change the form, the appearance, as they may, the S. P. remains what it is-a bourgeois concern, animated by bourgeois instincts which manifest themselves at every turn in a bourgeois view of things.

STAMPING MACHINE

A New Device to Aid the Office Boss Squeeze His Help.

In the so-called "business colleges" where young men and women are drilled into profit-yielding office machines for the employers, even so little a detail as the tearing, folding and sticking of postage stamps is gone into at great length. There are any number of finicky bosses who insist upon a stamp being mathematically level, and so many millimeters and no more, from each edge. They think it "brings trade" that way, so classes in stamp fixing are now run as part of the regular curriculum in all business colleges of any pretensions. Even at that, stamps sometimes get on woefully awry to the boss's irascible eye. It is a frequent game of a large employer, to dictate such a large batch lof mail to his insufficiently large office staff, that it takes them nearly all the rest of the day to transcribe it, and then the stamping and mailing must be done under pressure in the last few minutes of working time. In this way the employer can squeeze out extra work by the bushel. But when he meets some of the results, in the shape of crooked stamps, he goes up in the air and the whole office knows it.

A result of this state of affairs is the automatic stamping machine. It serves two purposes. It puts all the boss's stamps on straight enough to please even him: and, what is even more valuable in his eyes, it enables an extra screw to be turned on the speed he can drive the help to. With a stamping machine a $3 boy or girl can stamp more envelopes in less time than an $8 or $9 clerk could by hand. This is all found money for the employer.

These machines take many forms. For example, there is the hand machine which affixes stamps, much as the numbering machine affixes numbers to the printed page. This little machine has a reservoir where the stamps (after having been counted) are placed, moistened, and delivered with each stroke of the operator. These machines are said to save their cost in wages every day they are in use.

This is equally true of the larger machines which not only number the stamps and affix them by electricity, but which seal the envelopes and deliver them at the rate of several hundred per minute. Such machines are coming more and more into use in all large slave-driving business houses where there are overwhelmingly large mails to turn out, and where every possible penny in wages must be cut out in order to pay the lazy boss his profits and dividends.

LABOR POWER.

It Alone Produces Value-Workings of a Wire Mill Illustrate, This.

Marx's great discovery, that the value of a commodity depends upon the quantity of socially necessary labor power embodied in it, is beautifully illustrated in the operations of a wire mill.

First, bars of metal four inches square are heated and passed while hot and umphantly" carried-through land planks plastic through rapidly revolving rolls, reducing them to wire rods which vary from one-quarter of an inch to an inch or more in diameter, depending upon the finished size of wire wanted.

These rods, which are formed into coils as they pass through the rolls, are dipped in acid baths to remove loose scale and provide a lubricant for drawing. Drawing consists of pulling rods while cold through holes of gradually decreasing diameter drilled in steel plates. During this process the particles of metal become clongated and strained, making the wire harder and more brittle. To restore it to a proper temper it is necessary to heat or anneal it.

When a fine diameter is required there must be repeated annealings and drawings. This may be done until the bar. which originally was four inches square, and four feet long, becomes reduced to a diameter of a single thousandth of an inch and extended 13,000 miles in length. Before so fine a size is reached the wire will cut into the steel of the die plate, so that the usual die plates must be discarded and the drawing continued through holes drilled in diamonds. the diameter of these diamond dies decreasing by fractional parts of a thousandth of an inch. This wire affords a striking illustration of a material made more valuable by the application of la-

PREPARING A "FREE SPEECH" FIGHT IN CHICAGO.

To the Daily and Weekly, People:-The I-am-a-Bum brigade and the Anarchistic element of the S. P. who have brought that organization into its present chaotic state have fused here and are engaged in a campaign of villfication, slander, and blackguardism of the S. L. P. It is a very true saying that you can not make a silk purse out of a sow's ear and especially is it applicable in this case. Just a case in point. One of the I-am-a-Bums calmly assured me in their own hall and it is a fact that his auditors did not dissent, that "the only true revolutionist is the convicted thief in a capitalist jail." So you see we have that sort of thing as a result of the pernicious teaching coupled with a degenerated specimen of the working class, fostered and encouraged by the self constituted leaders of the I-am-a-Rum brigade. J. H. Walsh, and others of that type. 1 have heard that gent declare that the only way to get even with the Northern Pacific Railroad is to burn the ties up and bridge timbers and coal as well in Portland, Oregon. They say this not in their own hall only, but out in the street also.

It won't be long after this fusion of the Anarchists in the S. P. with the I-am-a-Bums that this precious pair of twin Anarchists of different stripes will be at loggerheads with one another to the tune of "Freedom!" and then will come the grand finale of the break-up.

So, with a greater and more confirmed conviction, growing from past and present occurrences, that the posttion of the S. L. P. is absolutely correct with regard to the Socialist Movement. I remain.

PHILA. S. L. P. ROUTS FOE.

To the Daily and Weekly People:-A debate between E. J. Higgins representing the S. L. P., and J. A. Robison for the Single Tax took place on Sunday afternoon December 5, at Morning Star Hall, in Philadelphia. A good-sized audience attended, and followed the speakers with interest.

Robison presented the Single Tax very weakly and Higgins had to present that side before he could reply to it, as Robison had not even attempted to do so. In closing his first speech Higgins gave his opponent these two questions to answer: "How will the propertiless workingman get the tools with which to work on free land?" "How will the Single Tax increase production?" Robison had claimed it would.

Robison, in his second speech, did everything but answer these two questions. He told the audience that the Single Tax was gaining ground everywhere but here, how it was opposed by the British House of Peers and the American Socialist Labor Party, but in spite of this unholy alliance it was succeeding and was proving to be the one thing able to dam the tide of Socialism. In closing he touched upon the questions thus: "All that the workers will have to do will be to show their ability to use tools and they will get them. The Single Tax will force idle land into use and

Higgins showed that land was idle now because it was not profitable to use it and no sane man would hold land idle if it were possible to exploit it by increased production. Higgins pointed out that enough was being produced for all now, but the labor problem existed because four-fifths of that total productien was being withheld from the producers by a class who owned both the land and the tools to work with on land. The landowners would tax themselves off the land and then present the workers with the machinery. "on credit," provided they showed the ability to work. His lecture was good as long as he confined himself to "Morgan's Ancient Society," but when he left that he was lost. He quoted "Ancient Lowly" to prove that Christianity was the beginning of the Labor Movement and its founder a Socialist. Then he stated that "another Jew" 1,800 years later had placed the Movement, which up to then had been of an emotional nature, on a scientific basis. The latter part of his lecture was an awful mass of contradictions. 'In answering questions Menasian got himself and his comrades into an uneasy position. He said that the democratization of institutions in France was brought about by sudden and violent revolution, but in England the process was peaceful and gradual. As to the need of an industrial union to back up the ballot, Mr. Menasian said that as the working class were predominant in the army and navy, they could be relied upon to overthrow the ruling class. More questions brought more uneasiness, and then when we asked why the S. P. would not debate with the S. L. P., they quick

"At the beginning of this year three decades had passed since the first edition of this book appeared. As I already stated in the foreword to the ninth edition, the book appeared under exceptional conditions. A few months before, the anti-Socialist laws went into force, and suppressed all Socialist literature. If any one dared, in spite of the law to disseminate forbidden publications, or venture to publish such and got caught, imprisonment up to six months was his reward. But both were 'risked.'

"The first edition appeared at Leipzig, but under a false flag. Zurich-Hottingen was given as the place of publication, and the 'People's Book Dealer' as publisher, where also the 'Social Democrata' which was forbidden in Germany, was published.

"The second edition had its difficulties; could only publish it in 1883 because personal difficulties did not allow me to do it earlier. The second edition appeared at the publication magazine (J. Your letter charging The People with "unnecessary hostility toward the Roman Catholic Church" was published in full, followed by an editorial foot-note proving that you were in error with regard to the only specification that you made. Your reply does not claim that your letter was mutilated, and it does not claim that the fact adduced in the editorial foot-note is false. Your reply is merely argumentative. Readers of The People can think for themselves. They had your charge with its alleged specification; they had the editorial denial of the specification. Readers of The People can tell who was wrong and who was right upon the facts, without any further chewing of the

H. K., NEW YORK-Equity? In the measure that Mr. Siff talks of equities he knocks himself over the head. Equities never can be the handle for revenge. What Mr. Siff was after, when he started his suit against the S. L. P., five years ago, was revenge-revenge for the Party's officers having balked the scheme he, Julian Pierce and Liouis Cohen hatched to kill the Daily People, consolidate its plant with the wild-cat printing outfit that Mr. Siff then ran, and turn the "consoldated" affair inte a sort of Kerr & Co privately owned publishing concern, with themselves as the Kerrs & Cos. Whatever equity Mr. Siff may have had his conduct has forfeited. The forfeiture, together with the additional expenses he has undergone, Mr. Siff owes to himself alone for having allowed himself to be played upon by an unprincipled man.

LABOR NEWS NOTES.

We hope that none of our friends who intend to make X mas presents will overlook the value of Labor News books as desirable sifts. We have just got in a new lot of "Woman Under Socialism." This new lot is quite an improvement over the first edition; better in the quality of paper; better execution of the cover design, and better in the binding. This book is a splendid value at one dollar.

Then there are the Sue books: what better present than a set, if you can afford to give a present costing that much? Should you not be able to give a set any single volume makes a present that will be appreciated.

I. W. W. NOTES.

By H. Richter, General Secretary Treasurer, Hamtramck, Mich.

During the last two weeks Madame 'La Grippe" monopolized nearly all attention at Headquarters. It required the persuasive force of Dr. Medica to convince the lady that her departure was very desirable. Success seems in sight at this time. Seeming neglect finds its explanation in the foregoing.

The tree of Industrial Unionism is not governed by the seasons of nature, it follows its own inherent laws of development; it sprouts in winter's frost and summer's heat alike. Just to mention a few of the indications of the renewed growth after last year's setback:

From Chas. Hawkins, New Bedford. Mass.:

"Send all necessary material and information to organize a Local. * * * The disruptive tactics of the last socalled Convention may turn out a blessing in disguise."

From Herman Olson, lumber worker, Orient, Wash.:

"Enclosed find $5. Send $2 worth of G. E. B. leaflets. * * If acceptible would like to become member-at-large." From E. M. Scanavino, Tuolumne,

"I notice with pleasure in the columns of the D. P. that revolutionary I. W. W. is not dead. * * * As soon as I land a job which I expect, I will join as member-at-large. * * * For enclosed amount forward leaflets.

From F. G. Moore, St. Louis, Mo.: "Forward material and information to organize Local of I. W. W."

From S. L. Ford, Port Norfolk, Va.: "Send immediately material for forming I. W. W. Local."

Ladies' Tailors, Br. No. 1, of C. W. I. U. No. 2, Detroit, Mich., Is being tested by the bosses as the slack season sets in. The pay for overtime was withdrawn; the men answered: "No more overtime." One of the bosses laid of two men, although he still had plenty of work; the rest of the men recognizing their identity of interest, quit so as to stop this overbearing action of this little skinner. The outlook for success is good. The membership recognizes that a sound revolutionary union is their

CANADIANS TAKE NOTICE!

All Canadian readers of the Daily and Weekly People are urgently requested to correspond with the National Secretary of the Socialist Labor Party of Canada, Philip Courtenay, 144 Duchess avenue, London, Ont., with the object in view of spreading correct propaganda literature of our Party, and organizing active working sections in your locality. Wake up! Organize! Educate!if you want Socialism tions of strength and effectiveness, before you deign to contribute your share to the economic class movement?

There is no worker so poor as to be unable to meet the financial obligation of his class movement; there is none who has not the necessary time it requires of him, if his action were guided by a full knowledge of his class interest instead of traditional habits and capitalistic notions, and his puny individual interests.

If the worker does not succeed to master himself he will never be able to control the forces needed to abolish wage slavery. He remains forever the plaything of the currents that capitalist society periodically sets in motion for its own preservation.

Become active for a purpose:-Join the I. W. W.

We can not worship at the shrine of Capitalism, and build the temple of Socialism; the material that sustains the robber burg of Capitalism, in its changed state, will carry the Socialist Republic.

Act accordingly.

Did you note that the per capita to the General Organization has been reduced to 5 cents for each member and month? This leaves the larger part of the funds in the treasury of the Local, the initiative for agitation and organization must also be taken by that body. A voluntary contribution to the general organization fund is always in order.

Twenty cents sent to headquarters brings you 100 leaflets issued by the G. E. B. Distributed among wage workers, that are infected with the notion of factions in the I. W. Translated from the Original French by DANIEL DE LEON

A Tale of the Thirteenth Century, the period that, with Music and Poetry, softened the rudeness and coarseness of previous times and prepared the way for the Age of Chivalry.

Religious bigotry still reigns supreme, and though more "refined" persecutes as of old.

The story has all the fascination of a drama, as it unfolds the tragic and the laughable, giving always a true picture of the times.
