SCIENCE AND THE UNITED STATES.

PROVINCIALISM.

To the Editor—

The title of your letter, "Provincialism," seems to fit the situation. It is a sad commentary on the condition of our educational institutions that they are so provincial in the matter of scientific research that they cannot even support themselves. The country as a whole should be interested in the progress of science, and the people should be encouraged to become interested in it. The government should provide adequate funds for scientific research, and the universities should be made more accessible to all who wish to study science. The people should be educated in the importance of science, and the world should be made aware of the progress of science in the United States.

I am enclosing a copy of a letter that I recently received from a friend in Europe. He tells me that they are doing excellent work in science there, and they are supported by the government. I believe that we should follow their example and do the same here. The country will benefit from it.

Sincerely yours,

P.S. I附上一封来自欧洲朋友的信。他告诉我，他们的科学工作做得非常好，并且受到政府的支持。我认为我们应该效仿他们的做法在美国做同样的事情。这将对国家有益。

SCIENTIFIC INDUSTRY.

The United States, in many respects, is a scientific country. The country has a large number of scientists, and they are doing excellent work in many fields. However, there is a great deal of provincialism in the country, and this is a hindrance to the progress of science. The scientists in the United States are not always aware of the work being done in other parts of the world, and this makes it difficult for them to compete with scientists in other countries.

It is important that the government provide adequate funds for scientific research, and that the universities be made more accessible to all who wish to study science. The people should be educated in the importance of science, and the world should be made aware of the progress of science in the United States.

I am enclosing a copy of a letter that I recently received from a friend in Europe. He tells me that they are doing excellent work in science there, and they are supported by the government. I believe that we should follow their example and do the same here. The country will benefit from it.

Sincerely yours,

THE DAILY PEOPLE

$50,000 FUND.

Amount Placed down to January 27th, 1897.

$3,020.

At the meeting of the Daily People Committee, held Monday, the 20th of December, 1896, a most important step was taken, which, if it be followed through, will result in the Daily People Committee securing a fund of $50,000.

WHEREAS, Daily People has become an absolute necessity to counteract the false and falsifying "news" that the capitalist press sets out, and to secure enlightenment in the ranks of the working class, the Daily People Committee, after much deliberation, have decided that the only way to accomplish this is by placing a fund of $50,000 in the bank.

WHEREAS, The undertaking will result disastrously if not successfully carried through.

WHEREAS, To make sure of this, the paper must be able to survive two or three years without a subscription, that is to say, for a period of not less than fourteen consecutive months, absolute, firm and sufficient capital is necessary.

WHEREAS, The sum of not less than $3000 in hand is necessary to enable the paper to continue.

WHEREAS, Despite the general secrecy of the Daily People, the subscriptions, for it has hacked its teeth through.

WHEREAS, This is evident, that in order to make sure the paper will continue to be published, it is absolutely necessary to have an absolute, firm and sufficient capital.

RECEIVED: That is, $3000 in hand, subscriptions, friends and sympathisers, to whom subscriptions are in the nature of a thing to be done, in the nature of a thing to be done.

Are there in the hand $3000 subscriptions need to be engaged, that needed and subscription?

The following resolution was passed, the same being moved by John Bruce, seconded by John Smith, and carried.
