ON TO WASHINGTON!

Lessons of the Fall River New Scale of Wages.

The Reductio of Wages in the Fall River Cotton Spinning Mills of June 15, 1897.

The Combination of Workmen in the Fall River Cotton Spinning Mills of June 15, 1897.

The Fall River Mass. wage reduction, as stated in the documents of the Boston papers, is due to the fact that the workmen have been reduced in numbers from 12,000 to 3,000. This is the result of the organized action of the workpeople in that city, who have been united in a strike for a better scale of wages.

The strike was called by the workpeople in the Fall River mills, who have been suffering from low wages for some time past, and who have been engaged in a struggle for better working conditions. The workpeople have been united in a strike for a better scale of wages, and have obtained a reduction of wages from 12,000 to 3,000.

IMMIGRATION

As Seen From the Washington's Point of View.

SOME MENTAL PHENOMENA.

By Zorer M. BLAIR.

There are, indeed, certain fundamental laws of psychology, which, if they do not completely disclose the nature of mental processes, may help us to understand the phenomena of the mind.

The first law is the law of persistence. The second is the law of reproduction. The third is the law of causality. The fourth is the law of association.

The law of persistence states that the mind is a persevering faculty. It is not the result of any sudden impulse.

The law of reproduction states that the mind is a faculty of reproduction. It is not the result of any sudden impulse.

The law of causality states that the mind is a faculty of causality. It is not the result of any sudden impulse.

The law of association states that the mind is a faculty of association. It is not the result of any sudden impulse.

In conclusion, it is evident that the mind is a persevering faculty, a faculty of reproduction, a faculty of causality, and a faculty of association.
