FOR THE 100,000.

New Jersey's State Ticket and Official Declarations.

The New Jersey State Constitution that in 1860, for a very few months, was the most potent instrument for the protection of the rights and duties of citizens, has been virtually nullified by the government of the United States. The government of the United States has been so structured that it is at last arrived at a point where it is unable to perform its duties. This is a fact that our government is facing. A government that is unable to perform its duties is a government that is unable to serve its people. The government of the United States is unable to perform its duties because it is unable to protect the rights and duties of citizens. The government of the United States is unable to perform its duties because it is unable to protect the rights and duties of citizens.

The people at war.

INTO THE MOUTH OF HELL.

The ambulanc Dr. Watts, tending the sick and wounded, and Dr. Trumbull, tending the sick and wounded, were standing side by side, with the sweetening of their professions in their eyes, and the tender thoughts of their lives in their hearts, when they were called to the aid of a poor and helpless woman, who had been taken ill by the cruel blows of the enemy.

"There is a dreadful hell..." said Dr. Watts, his eyes filled with tears, "and it is not for us to go there to comfort the dying.

The good men sacrifice their own lives to save the lives of others. They are the true heroes of our land, and they shall be rewarded with glory and honor.

"And so," said Dr. Trumbull, "let us go forth to meet the enemy, and give our lives for the people of this land, that they may be free and happy.

The people cheered them on, and the two doctors went forth to the battle.

THE PEOPLE AND THEIR ENEMY.

"We are the people, and we shall not be conquered. We shall stand firm and fight to the end.

"And so," said Dr. Watts, "let us give our lives for the people of this land, that they may be free and happy.

The people cheered them on, and the two doctors went forth to the battle.

SOME POINTS ON MARX'S CAPITAL.

Address Delivered before the Karl Marx Classes of Boston and Worcester at 50, Farmingdale, Sunday, July 31, 98 by W. H. C.

It has been said that in order to understand Karl Marx it is necessary to understand the political economy of Adam Smith. This is true, but not quite so far. It is necessary to understand the political economy of Adam Smith, but it is also necessary to understand the nature of the conflict between the state and the individual, and the nature of the conflict between the capitalist and the working class. This is the conflict that Marx calls the class conflict.

The class conflict is the conflict between the state and the individual, and the conflict between the capitalist and the working class. This is the conflict that Marx calls the class conflict.

From this standpoint it is difficult to understand the political economy of Adam Smith. He speaks of the state as if it were a neutral force, as if it were simply a force that exists independently of the class conflict.

But the state is not a neutral force. It is a force that is determined by the class conflict. It is a force that is determined by the struggle between the state and the individual, and the struggle between the capitalist and the working class.
