LINES DRAWN

Socialism from A to Z

PHILIP JACKSON, New York, N. Y.

In the subject of socialism is beginning to receive the attention which it deserves, and it is time that we in America should try to give a brief outline of the principles of the socialist movement and the organizations that are attempting to carry it out.

The Socialist Labor party was founded in 1870, and since that time has grown in numbers and influence. As a result of this growth, the party has been able to influence many people to adopt socialist ideas.

As a science, Socialism aims to know the nature of the forces which govern the world and to explain the social conditions of mankind. The socialist movement has been instrumental in raising higher and higher the ideal of government and the methods of social organization.

The Socialist Labor party, as a whole, does not believe in the present system of government, but aims to replace it with a system based on the principles of socialism. The party is working towards this goal by carrying out its programs and by educating the people to its ideals.

The Socialist Labor party has a program which it is working towards carrying out. This program includes the following:

1. The abolition of private property in land and in all means of production.
2. The establishment of a state-owned industry, which will produce all the necessary goods for the people.
3. The establishment of a state-owned education system, which will provide education for all the people.
4. The establishment of a state-owned health care system, which will provide health care for all the people.

The Socialist Labor party believes in the principle of democracy. It believes that all people should have equal rights and opportunities, and that the government should be run by the people for the people.

The Socialist Labor party is not a party of revolution. It believes in working for its goals through the democratic process. The party is working towards its goals through its programs and by educating the people to its ideals.

The Socialist Labor party is working towards the goal of socialism, which it believes will lead to a better world for everyone.
