DEMAGOGIC TAXATION POLITICS.

This article appeared as the leading article of the day when the issue of May 7, 1890, was published.

The action taken in response to these demands, or this will be the result of such action, as the result of the action taken by the Democratic leaders in the Senate. The New Yorker, in spite of the fact that the Senate has not been completely disbanded, is not at all, or at least partially, if not entirely, to be held responsible for the condition of the political atmosphere, or even for the condition of the party itself, which is as much to the credit of the New Yorker as the condition of the party itself is to the credit of the Senate. The New Yorker, it is true, has been guilty of some indiscretions, but the New Yorker is not to be held responsible for the condition of the party itself.

A few days after the election of the Democratic leaders in the Senate, I shall have another opportunity to write again on this subject. The party is in a worse condition than it was before the event, but the New Yorker is not to be held responsible for the condition of the party itself.

O'Kelly's famous rule, still applies.

The time has come for us to heed the warnings of the Age and act. Our children will look to us for leadership.

WE FIGHT FOR EVERY VOTE.

OUR MAY-DAY ISSUE.

The May Day issue of the People has been particularly timely this year, as the movement has been so strongly advocated by our colleagues, on account of its vital importance to the working class, and its success in the struggle for the Eight Hour Day.

The success of the Eight Hour Day movement rests upon the fact that the movement is based on a common spirit of unity. The movement is not a mere means of obtaining the Eight Hour Day, but it is the expression of the desire of the working class to achieve a greater measure of freedom and happiness. The movement is not a mere means of obtaining the Eight Hour Day, but it is the expression of the desire of the working class to achieve a greater measure of freedom and happiness.

THE PEOPLE, SUNDAY, MAY 7, 1889.

THAT TIME WAS, THAT TIME IS NO MORE.

The meeting of the May Day Committee in New York, on April 30, was remarkable for the spirit displayed. The meeting was called to order by Professor A. P. Garvin, who, in his usual straightforward style, said:

"Our purpose is to organize a May Day Committee for the celebration of May Day, the international holiday of workingmen, and to make the day a solemn and joyous occasion for all who believe in the ideals of the International Workingmen's Association."

The committee decided to hold a demonstration on May 1, and to hold a banquet in the evening. The committee also decided to invite the participation of all labor organizations in the city.

ROSE BUST Men: who Use Plain Language Can be Trusted.

Readers, you will find that there is a new movement among the working men of this city. The Rose Bust men are using plain language. They are no longer hiding behind a veil of, "Bust," or "Bust," or "Bust," but are speaking their minds in plain English. This movement is welcome, and we hope that it will spread to other cities.

CORRESPONDENCE.

"I have had an opportunity of observing the conditions in the workrooms of the Rose Bust men, and I can assure you that they are working under very favorable conditions. They are paid a just wage, and are allowed to work only eight hours a day."

May 1, 1889.

Yours truly,

S. P. NEWT.
