The generosity displayed by the philanthropist Mr. Rockefeller, in committing $10,000,000 to the proposed Memorial Library in New York, has given to the movement of literature a new impetus. Mr. Rockefeller has given them good, and the nation has already shown its desire to retain them. They are, in a sense, the guardian angels of the nation, and we are all of us thankful for their presence.

Mr. Rockefeller's gift is not the only instance of philanthropy in literature. In recent years, a number of wealthy men have made large contributions to the cause of education. These gifts have been a great boon to the country, and have done much to foster the growth of literature.
