"Stonehenge is in the heart of London, not far from the Thames. It is a magnificent sight on a clear day, with the sun shining through the stones and casting long shadows on the ground. The stones are huge and heavy, and it takes a lot of effort to move them. But the ancient people who built them must have had some kind of plan or purpose, and we can only guess what it might have been."

The stones are arranged in a circle, with smaller stones forming a horseshoe shape around the center. The center itself is a large, flat stone, called the Sarsen. This stone is not part of the circle, but it is the largest stone in the whole structure. The Sarsen is about 15 feet high and 15 feet wide, and it is made of a type of stone called sarsen.

The stones are held together by a system of mortise and tenon joints, which is a type of construction used in many parts of the world. The joints are made by cutting a hole in the top of one stone and a groove in the bottom of another stone, and then inserting the two stones together. This makes a very strong bond between the stones, and it is a method that has been used for thousands of years.

The purpose of Stonehenge is not known for sure, but it is believed to be a temple. The stones are thought to be a symbol of the sun, and they may have been used for astronomical purposes. Some people think that the stones were used as a calendar, and others believe that they were used to mark the passage of the seasons. Whatever the purpose of Stonehenge, it is a remarkable structure that has held the attention of people for centuries. The stones are still standing, and they are a symbol of the power and ingenuity of the ancient people who built them.

DISCUSSION ON PLATFORM AND TACTICS

March, Illinois.

Now that the subject of tactics is again on the table in the parties, it is evident that in the absence of a properly constituted central committee it is necessary to have a basis for the discussion of the platform and tactics. It would be a step in the right direction if the Socialist Party could be established in a general way throughout the country. It would not be a step in the right direction if the Socialist Party could be established in a general way throughout the country.
