THE MONTANA CAMPAIGN
Now the Copper Kings Met Death=
When the death of Senator Charles M. Laramie occurred last week it was generally believed that the initiative means of the Copper Kings had failed. The two great families of mining royalty, however, had made their move, and the result was that the resignation of Senator Laramie brought about a change in the leadership of the Copper Kings.

The MONTANA CAMPAIGN.

The Copper Kings have been forced to admit the failure of their plans for the control of the Montana legislature. The death of Senator Laramie, who had been their leading supporter, has left them without a strong ally in the state capital.

The Copper Kings have been trying to exert influence in the Montana legislature for several years, and their efforts have been directed at obtaining control of the state government. They have been able to secure some favorable legislation for their interests, but they have not been able to achieve their ultimate goal of complete control.

The death of Senator Laramie has dealt a severe blow to the Copper Kings' plans. The new senator is expected to be a loyal supporter of the Copper Kings, and his absence will leave the Copper Kings without a strong advocate in the legislature.

The Copper Kings will have to regroup and develop new strategies if they hope to achieve their goal of controlling the Montana government. They will have to find a new leader who can help them secure the necessary support in the legislature.

Conclusion

The death of Senator Laramie has dealt a severe blow to the Copper Kings' plans. The new senator is expected to be a loyal supporter of the Copper Kings, and his absence will leave the Copper Kings without a strong advocate in the legislature. The Copper Kings will have to regroup and develop new strategies if they hope to achieve their goal of controlling the Montana government. They will have to find a new leader who can help them secure the necessary support in the legislature.
ENGLISH UNION IN DANGER.

John A. Boys of Oxford University, an executive member and a leader of the Labour party in London, has written a letter to Prime Minister Bonar Law. In the letter he expresses concern about the situation in England, stating that the British government is in danger because of the current economic conditions and the growing support for socialist ideas. He urges the government to take action to prevent a possible socialist revolution. The letter has generated a lot of attention and has sparked debates within the Labour party about the future of the country.
