THE MISSION OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

BY EUGENIE V. DEBS.

To free the workers of the world from the curse of wage-slavery and to create a broad base of federating on the principles of freedom, equality, and mutual aid, is the lofty aim of the Socialist Party of America. This aim arises from the conviction that the production of wealth is not the work of individual capitalist exploiters but of workers working with and for the common good. To organize the workers into a compact and well-armed political party, and to prevent the danger of political corruption, is the work of the Socialist Party. The aim of the Socialist Party is to organize the workers into a compact and well-armed political party, and to place the political power of the nation in the hands of the workers, and to prevent the danger of political corruption.

The Socialist Party, seeing all this and understanding from careful study the whole of the conditions of life, does not aim to fight the legal parties; but it aims to organize the workers into a compact and well-armed political party, and to prevent the danger of political corruption. This aim arises from the conviction that the production of wealth is not the work of individual capitalist exploiters but of workers working with and for the common good. To organize the workers into a compact and well-armed political party, and to prevent the danger of political corruption, is the work of the Socialist Party.

THE SIXTH ANNUAL PICNIC OF THE SOCIALIST PIONEERS. A TASTY MEAL. A NATURAL COVENANT. AN ENJOYABLE DAY.

The sixth annual picnic of the Socialist Pioneer Association was held at the town of South Chicago, Ill., on the 13th inst. It was a success in every way. The weather was beautiful and the day ideal for a picnic.

The scene was a picturesque one, with the green fields and woods providing a natural setting for the rustic revels. The participants were a colorful and diverse mix of individuals, some dressed in traditional picnic attire, while others preferred more modern garb.

The day began with a ceremony of dedication, where speeches were given to commemorate the occasion. The speeches were followed by a meal, which was the highlight of the event. The food was delicious, with a wide variety of dishes catered by local vendors. Everyone enjoyed the food, and the atmosphere was festive and lively.

The afternoon was filled with various activities, including games, music, and dancing. The participants showed great enthusiasm, with many of them joining in the fun.

The picnic ended with a farewell ceremony, where closing speeches were given. The day was deemed a success and was enjoyed by all.

The Socialist Pioneer Association looks forward to holding similar events in the future. The next picnic is scheduled for next year and will be held in the same location. The association invites all to attend and enjoy a day of fun and fellowship.

THE INTERVIEW. A CONVERSATION WITH JUDGE ROBERTS. A TALE OF TWO JUDGES.

The interview with Judge Roberts was one of the highlights of the day. Judge Roberts, a prominent and respected jurist, shared his insights on various legal matters.

He began by discussing the importance of justice and fairness in the courtroom. He emphasized the need for judges to be impartial and to uphold the law, regardless of personal biases or considerations.

He also spoke about the role of the judge in society, noting that judges are often viewed as symbols of authority and of the rule of law. He stressed the importance of judges being approachable and accessible to the public.

The interview was a thought-provoking and informative discussion, with Judge Roberts providing valuable insights into the world of law and justice.

THE BOOKS RECEIVED.

The books received this week are a diverse collection, ranging from fiction to non-fiction, and from historical to contemporary works.

The books include "The Battle of North Woods," a historical novel by Winston Groom, which tells the story of the Battle of North Woods, a significant event in American history. The novel is well-researched and provides an engaging and informative account of the battle.

Another book is "The Great Gatsby," a classic novel by F. Scott Fitzgerald, which tells the story of Jay Gatsby and his pursuit of love and wealth. The novel is a timeless work of literature, and its themes of the American Dream and the corrupting influence of wealth are still relevant today.

The collection also includes "The Art of War," an ancient Chinese military treatise by Sun Tzu, which has been influential in both military strategy and business management. The book's strategies and principles are still applicable in today's world, and it continues to be a valuable resource for leaders.

These books, along with many others in the collection, offer a rich and varied selection for readers interested in expanding their knowledge and engaging in thoughtful reading.

THE WORLD'S EXPOSITION. A REPORT FROM THE WORLD'S FAIR.

The World's Exposition, held in Chicago, Illinois, in 1893, was one of the most significant events of the 19th century. The fair, which lasted six months, attracted millions of visitors from around the world.

The Exposition was a showcase of technological innovation, with numerous exhibition buildings featuring exhibits of the latest inventions and machines. Many of the buildings were designed by leading architects of the day, and they housed a wide variety of exhibits, including mechanical wonders, technological marvels, and artistic creations.

The fair was also a celebration of culture and diversity, with exhibits from many nations, demonstrating the multicultural nature of the world. The fair included music, dance, and art performances from around the globe.

The World's Exposition was a milestone event in American history, and its legacy continues to be felt today. The fair's impact on technology, art, and culture cannot be overstated, and it remains a symbol of progress and innovation.
INDUSTRIAL FACTS AND POLITICAL FORCES.

When in 1900 and 1901 the Socialists stated that the Bryan movement represented the will of the people, they offered no hope for the working classes. The present movement of the Socialists, however, represents the special emphasis of high ideals in the working classes, and the ability of the people to act, and the willingness of the people to act, the manner in which the people are acting now, are more clearly justified by philosophy. It appears evident that the present movement is the result of, and is itself representing, a movement in the working classes that is based on the ability of the people to act, and on the willingness of the people to act.

Politics is nothing but the shaping of the will of the people. The Socialists have been able to shape the will of the people to do what they want in the way they want.

The Socialists have been able to shape the will of the people to do what they want in the way they want, and the will of the people to do what they want in the way they want is the basis of the Socialists' success. The Socialists have been able to shape the will of the people to do what they want in the way they want, and the will of the people to do what they want in the way they want is the basis of the Socialists' success.
