WILLY WORKER: “Dear Santy, you are too kind. What can I do for you in return?”

SANTA CLAUS: “Oh, never mind, little boy; just let me know once in a while that you like me by dropping a ball to either of the old pairs.

SYSTEM IN PROPAGANDA.

BY W.M. H. LEFFINGWELL.

In Whittier’s Magazine.

If there is one class of people who are always on the defensive when anyone mentions the word ‘norm’; it is the Socialists. We tell people the way they should vote, the way they should run their businesses, the way they should live; the angle we take is such as to point out the worst of the present system, but we fail to see entirely of making our own system better as the only way of living.

JACOB: “No, I am not one of your Socialists at all. I am an old man who has been in politics long enough to know that there is no such thing as a perfect government.”

The Socialists are a class that want to do something, but they want to do it in a hurry. They want to see the old system swept away and a new one established. They want to do it without delay. They want to see the old system swept away and a new one established. They want to do it without delay. They want to see the old system swept away and a new one established. They want to do it without delay. They want to see the old system swept away and a new one established. They want to do it without delay. They want to see the old system swept away and a new one established.
MUNICIPAL PROBLEMS.

BY E. M. WINSTON,

The problem of the municipal corporation has been one of the most important in the development of socialism. The socialist movement has shown great concern for the improvement of this system, and has sought to replace it with one that is more equitable and effective. In recent years, there has been a growing movement for the reform of municipal corporations, with many proposals for changes in the structure and operation of these organizations. While some of these proposals have been well received, others have met with opposition.

The problem of municipal corporations has been a complex one, and it is difficult to say what the ideal form of such corporations should be. However, it is clear that there is a need for some form of citizen participation in the decision-making processes of these organizations. One possible approach is to establish a system of direct democracy, where citizens have the power to vote on important issues.

A NEW TRAP.

In the context of the question of municipal corporations, it has been suggested that there is a need for some form of citizen participation in the decision-making processes of these organizations. One possible approach is to establish a system of direct democracy, where citizens have the power to vote on important issues.

The New Inventions

From the idle inactivity of the past to the excitement of the present, the carnival notes this year are filled with the most recent and greatest inventions.

A Novel Plan

The primary campaign fund, which is in serious danger of running out of funds, is proposing a novel plan to raise money. The idea is to hold a giant raffle where the winner gets a share of the total funds collected. This plan is expected to bring in a significant amount of funds.
